

Killed by Train

W. R. McKissick, a miner employed at the Blue Ledge mine, came to his home in Medford last Saturday and found fault with the conduct of his wife.

After indulging in a street fight Saturday afternoon with William Law, a brick mason whom he accused of being the despoiler of his home, he Sunday afternoon swore out a warrant for the arrest of Law, who had fled to Grants Pass. The recorder gave him the warrant to mail to the authorities at that place.

As he left the town hall a freight train bound north was about to depart and he was seemingly seized with a sudden idea to take the warrant in person to where it could be served. In trying to swing under a flat car with the apparent purpose of riding on the breakrods, he lost his grip and was drawn under the wheels and instantly killed. Two members of the train crew saw the accident but were, of course, powerless to prevent the occurrence. The train was stopped as soon as possible and detained until the corner was communicated with, who ordered the remains removed. Coroner Kellogg arrived here in the evening and decided that an inquest was not necessary.

McKissick was about 35 years of age, a native of Missouri and a miner by occupation. He worked at the Greenback mine for about three years. He lived at one time in McCloud, Cal. Supt. F. W. Carnehan, of the Blue Ledge, speaks of him in terms of praise. A pathetic feature of the tragedy was the fact that some person in haste to be the bearer of bad news, proceeded to the home of the deceased and informed his wife of what had happened, and she was permitted to come and view the gruesome sight as it lay beneath the car in all its repulsiveness. Her distress was heartrending in the extreme. The funeral was held Monday afternoon and was well attended by a number of friends of the deceased.—Medford Tribune.

"Made-in-Oregon" Opera Company

A "Made-in-Oregon" opera company is to play the Considine and Orpheum circuits next season from the Pacific to the Atlantic. It is headed by Ed Andrews, the well-known and justly popular comedian, who is also the author of the operetta to be produced, "Birds of a Feather." The company is now in rehearsal in Southern Oregon. It will open at the Grand in this city on September 10th, will play the Considine circuit as far as Chicago and will there be transferred to the Orpheum for a tour of the eastern states.

C. D. Hazelrigg is the director of the new vaudeville company. Catherine Lee, Mrs. Andrews in private life is one of the sopranos. Nellie Andrews, niece of the comedian, is another, while Henri Ganson, who has done extensive work in comic opera and drama, is the tenor of the company.

"Birds of a Feather," the vehicle in which the new company will ride to fame from Oregon to New York, is to be a bright and tuneful operetta along original lines, brimful of fun and good music. Each member of the company has had years of experience in stage work. The many friends of Mr. Andrews in Portland and Oregon will watch with interest his invasion into the ranks of vaudevillians.

It seems fair to predict that the company will have a season of large success, says the Portland Journal. The "Made-in-Oregon" company is one of Miss Mae Nealon Sundayed at home, returning to Jacksonville Monday morning. RUSTIC.

Table Rock, Aug. 16.

The Owen brothers have finished baling hay on the Frierson-Pendleton ranch and did a good job.

W. R. Byrum reports that his chickens are harvesting his potato crop too early, much to his disgust.

The work on the road between here and Agate being nearly finished, the gang have moved camp and are now at work around the upper Table Rock. This piece of road has been about the worst in the county in the winter season. We are all glad of the prospect of its improvement.

The posts for our school house fence are on the ground and the lumber may get here before the winter rains.

George Pankey and family, who has been in the employ of R. C. Washburn, has moved back to Central Point.

Leslie Davis was laid up for a few days from a hurt received from the header, but is getting all right again. RUSTIC.
