Everybody works but the hobo. Medford is going to pave her streets with chestnuts.

Central Point don't have to lose her diamonds to attract attention.

Many a man who has found a way to the marriage altar would like to find a way to alter the marriage.

The "bicycle face" is the latest disease. It is caused by trying to look pleasant while riding a bicycle over a rough pavement.

The only way to tell a woman's age is to first ask her and then add one-third to the number she gives you.

The Ashland doctor who was called up the other night to administer to an editor of that town who was suffering from cramps, discovered later that the editor was also cramped for cash.

A lady who was delivering a temperance lecture in Grants Pass the other evening picked up the bible, exclaiming, "I will throw this bible at the man who is mean to his wife!" Every man sitting in the front row ducked his head. Of course this was not a confession of guilt on their part; they evidently knew that a woman couldn't throw straight.

A Medford man took some shirts to a Chinese laundry in that town the other day to have them washed. The man was told to call for them Saturday night. He didn't call for them until Sunday morning. He was told they were not ready yet. "You told me to call for them last night," said the man. "Yes, but you didn't call for them last night," said the cunning Chinaman.

A Grants Pass editor ate a lot of apples the other day, and while on his way home from the office that evening he was taken with a severe pain in the region of the bread-basket which caused him to double up like a jack-knife and perform many queer antics. A crowd that was watching him from the hotel clapped their hands and in a chorus shouted, "Bravo! Epatant! Good! Bon! Outofsight! Ripping! Merveilleux!" "Great nutmegs," gasped the editor, "the fools think I'm doing a stunt."

A farmer living near Jacksonville went to Portland the other day and put up at a hotel that night. He left the gas in his room burning all night and was charged extra for gas when he settled his hotel bill. He demanded an explanation, and was told that he had left the gas burning all night. The farmer said he read the notice under the gas jet and it said, "Don't blow out the gas," and added, "Gol darn Portland, anyway; I had heard of Gold Hill farmers being bunked in Portland, but this is the limit."

A Medford wheelman rode over to Gold Hill the other day and just as he entered the town he ran over some fragments of glass and cut both tires of his bicycle so badly that he couldn't repair them. He saw a big string of Bologna sausage hanging out in front of a butcher shop and went over and purchased the whole lot, cemented them to his rims and started back to Medford. The butcher, who is a German, turned to a lady customer, exclaiming, "Vell, dit you efer?" The lady didn't say whether she did efer or not, but it is safe to say that she never efer.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER.

Its Importance Not Appreciated by Some Persons.

It is the local press which serves you in every emergency. There you go in trouble. It is there you go in prosperity. If you want to boom any manufacturing enterprise, any railroad project, for the development of your town, for your lodge to increase your influence, or if your lodge desires to add to its membership or to erect a new hall or in any way advance its interests, the local press is immediately appealed to for help. So it is with our churches. If it is a picnic or a festival, a new carpet or an organ, the local press is found to be useful in furthering every good object. If a raid is to be made on sin by the ambassadors of Christ, the columns of the local paper are used freely and gratuitously in advertising the revival or protracted meeting. The candidates and politicians find also the importance of the local press.

Clearly there are many reasons why the local press should be cultivated. Yet in spite of all these facts the people most interested in the local paper are sometimes the last to give it their support and are frequently known to take several metropolitan papers and shut out their local paper altogether. If there is anything in the argument about the advantages of home trade, surely it makes a strong appeal on behalf of the local press, because the money for the labor is always expended where the paper is printed, and if paid out with one hand for subscription, advertising or job printing it comes into the other hand, and thus remains with you. If by any means you freeze out your local paper and leave yourself at the mercy of the foreign, you would find out more fully than words or arguments could explain why the local paper should be cultivated.—Derry (Mass.) Enterprise.
