Electric Cars Headed for Ashland.

A Salem news dispatch to the Portland Telegram says: From W. S. Barstow, of the firm of W. S. Barstow & Co., the New York engineers in charge of the construction of the Oregon Electric Railroad, comes the positive announcement that definite plans have been made by the firm of Moffat & White, New York capitalists, who are financing the project for the continuation of the construction of the electric line from Salem as far south as Roseburg and ultimately to Ashland. As soon as the line between Salem and active steps will be taken to begin work upon the second stretch to Eugene and then to Roseburg. - Tidings.
