FRED PARKER, Agt. S. P. Co., 31st Central Point, Oregon.

Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba, Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"As long ago as I can remember my mother was a faithful user and friend of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, but never in my life have I realized its true value until now," writes Prof. H. A. Howell, of Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold; the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by Mary A. Mee.

UPLANDS CELERY.

A Marsh Crop Successfully Raised on Dry Soil.

Celery we all know is a plant that likes humus laden moist land; hence people who have not tried calmly state as a fact the cheerful fiction that celery cannot be raised on a market garden soil much above the water level. Having raised the sweetest and crispest celery in our back yard (which has been tilled for a century or so as a vegetable garden), we had no hesitancy in planting various varieties at No. 1 experiment station of the Long Island railroad, having been assured it would not even grow, but we took second prize at the county fair with this celery.

No. 1 station, according to the United States geological survey, is 112 feet above the sea level; therefore it required very little nerve to plant a small patch of celery at station No. 2. Although the soil is somewhat lighter, the altitude is only sixty-four feet above sea level. Humus is absolutely and entirely lacking, caused mainly by the annual "forest fires," due to cheerful neglect of precaution by neighbors burning brush to the north of us, in that section of the island at present given over mainly to cord wood industry. A shallow ditch was dug, humus was furnished by barnyard manure, celery plants set out, and occasionally, or, to be more exact, semioccasionally, the irrigation sprayers were turned on the celery plants, and, as is the ambition of all plant life, they grew, and station No. 2 turned out celery that holds its own in competition with that grown anywhere, writes H. B. Fullerton in American Cultivator. We shall continue to grow celery at stations Nos. 1 and 2, as it eats well, sells well and makes an excellent variety.

New Tobacco Varieties.

It is an established fact that there are great areas in the United States not now growing tobacco which have the soil, climatic and other conditions suited for growing valuable tobaccos and which for the welfare of American agriculture should supply the demand of the manufacturers. One of the most important phases of the development of these undeveloped sections is the production of varieties of tobacco adapted to their soil and climatic conditions.

The change of seed from one tobacco growing region to different soil and climatic conditions, particularly from the south to the north, is likely to result in the breaking up of the type of the variety and the appearance of plants with characteristics very different from the established type. These new types of plants can be propagated by using self fertilized seed, and uniform varieties of tobacco can be secured by continued selection of the best individual plants for seed production.

The use of Florida grown and imported Sumatra seed for growing in the Connecticut valley during the past few years is a good illustration of the effect of a change of seed. The plants grown from this foreign grown seed were extremely variable, individual plants of new and unknown types of tobacco appearing in the fields. The seeds of desirable individual plants of these types were saved under bag, free from cross fertilization, and several valuable new varieties have been secured adapted to the conditions in the Connecticut valley and uniformly coming true to type year after year.—A. D. Shamel.

Damage by Field Mice.

Blackberries, raspberries, grapes, currants, gooseberries and strawberries are often badly damaged by field mice, and when the animals are abundant whole plantations are ruined. Strawberries are especially liable to injury because of winter mulching and also because the plants themselves furnish excellent food and shelter for the animals.

Fallen leaves in autumn and snow in winter drift and collect along rows of blackberry, raspberry, gooseberry and currant bushes and furnish cover for mice, which work along the rows and girdle the green stems, and when seed canes are left uncut and weeds are permitted to grow up among them the resulting tangle adds much to the liability of attack. Winter mulching of small fruits also increases the danger, and if practiced the utmost care should be taken to clean surrounding areas.—David E. Lautz.

Manure For Asparagus Beds.

A heavy application of barnyard manure say time during the winter will be an advantage to asparagus beds after the old stalks and other trash have been well cleaned off.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Martha Davis, aged sixty years, of Peoria, Ill., who recently died of dropsy, in her life had been operated on eighty-five times.

Mrs. Rose Politzer of Chicago has legally adopted Mrs. Julia A. Horman. The foster mother is sixty-five years old, and the foster child is forty-five and has a husband.

Mrs. Sophia Crotto, 105, lives in Old Quebec. Her voice and appetite are good, but otherwise her faculties have sadly failed. She says she daily prays to "le bon Dieu" to take her.

Who can beat the record of Miss Cahill, who is now a junior in the Bath (Me.) high school? For the past nine years, or ever since she entered the public schools, she has not been absent or late.

Mrs. Abner Bates of Folly Cove, East Gloucester, Mass., is a remarkable woman for her eighty years. She recently collected twenty-two wishbones and dressed them up for dolls to be sold at a hospital fair.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Nichols of Newark, N. J., claimed the letter mailed Dec. 30, 1854, at New Orleans to "Miss Elizabeth Garthwaite, Newark, N. J." The letter reached its destination a few weeks ago, and the mystery of its half century delay may never be cleared up.

Mme. Fritz Scheff, the prima donna, has her voice insured for $50,000, and a clause in the contract provides that if she loses her voice for more than a week from any cause whatever an ascending scale of remuneration shall be paid the management, and if it should become necessary to abandon the tour the entire sum shall be paid.

Sporting Notes.

There is rumor of a match race between Sonoma Girl, 2:03 1/2, and George G., 2:00 1/2, to be decided at Redville in July.

Jim McGuire, manager of the Boston American league club, will also captain the team. Bob Unglaub was skipper last year.

Harry Blake, who once played the outfield for Cleveland and who was noted for his arm of iron, is to manage a team in the Texas league this season. Gotch expects to meet Hackenschmidt in this country early in the summer months and announces his intention of retiring from the wrestling ring after the event, win or lose.

With all the crack athletes from ocean to ocean faithfully training for the coming Olympian games, the present year will undoubtedly be the greatest in the athletic history of this country. The results of this year will also be far-reaching and will do much toward uplifting the athletic standard of America.

Church and Clergy.

In going to church the leg of Rev. F. A. Bright of Waynesburg, Pa., was broken by a fall. After finishing the service the minister had the leg set.

Rev. Dr. C. F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, John D. Rockefeller's pastor, continues ill, and it is doubtful if he will be able to return to the pulpit.

For the preservation of St. Paul's cathedral in London it is proposed to inject under pressure Portland cement grout about the consistency of cream under all the piers of the dome and the tower.

Rev. Father D. S. Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, of St. Louis, will go on an extended trip abroad after Easter. He will make an intimate study of Catholic questions and will visit the pope.

Train and Track.

During the past six years 159 grade crossings west of Pittsburgh and 508 grade crossings east of Pittsburgh have been removed on the Pennsylvania lines.

The Sandy River and Rangley Lakes railroad has been organized at Gardiner, Me., with a capital stock of $241,000, to take over all the narrow gauge railroads there.

Venezuela now has thirteen railroads, but the longest is only 111 miles, while none of the rest is over fifty. Most of them run from the sea up into the mountains, and the grades are very steep. One road has a grade of 440 feet to the mile.

Animal Tales.

Belim Smith of New Auburn, Wis., owns a hen which, he says, laid a three yolk egg every day for a week. The eggs are as large as goose eggs.

Miss Grace Simmons of New Kensington, Pa., has a pet pullet which each morning appears at the kitchen door, and when admitted it deposits its egg in a nest prepared for it.

Ezra W. Perkins of Montclair, N. J., says he has a dog which found a basket of provisions in the road, out of which he took a fifteen pound turkey and carried it home and, returning, selected some porterhouse steaks, which he also carried to his master.

College and School.

Rev. W. H. Sallmon, president of Carleton college, at Northfield, Minn., has tendered his resignation, to take effect next July.

J. F. Sharp of Geary, Okla., has risen from janitor of a ward school building to be president of the Southwest State Normal school at Weatherford.

Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $50,000 to Morgan college, a Baltimore institution for the education of colored youth, in case the officers and trustees of the institution raise another $50,000. Morgan college was founded forty years ago.
