

Anti-Prohibition.

This column is edited by the secretary of the anti-prohibition league of Jackson Co.

"I appeal to the manhood of the country to be temperate in all things, and not in an arrogant manner attempt to dictate to the people. Man has always been expected to willingly face a foe, whether before his own castle or when his country's life is endangered, and, as through the four years of our civil war, where every hardship had to be encountered, exposure to most inclement weather, working in rifle pits and standing guard during the long hours of the night, when even the great and good Abraham Lincoln and every intelligent general or private recognized the absolute need for pure stimulants to protect the systems of these brave men from the ravages of the deadly marsh fever, and rations of whisky, pure from the corn and rye of the farms left behind us, were issued regularly, and yet, when some of the timid "stay-at-homes" became frantic toward the close of the war and asked President Lincoln what was to become of the home life when those terrible soldiers were discharged from the service, the simple answer of this great "man among men" was that they need have no fear from the men who went out from their homes, wives and sweethearts, to protect the integrity of our country; that they would return with the sword laid aside and occupy positions of trust throughout the land, and his prediction has proved true in every sense, as the record in every state will show. And this great army has also proven that the whisky it had, when formed and on the battlefield, was never injurious to its soldiers in after years, and there are few of those remaining alive today who would not combat this arbitrary idea of the party of advanced ideas to prohibit the manufacture and sale of the products of the soil, made pure and unadulterated, or the right of manhood to use it like a man and as an American gentleman, and if such fanatical laws are allowed placed on our statute books the next volunteer army will be drafted from this advanced idea element entirely.

"Don't discourage American manhood, but elevate it by encouraging self respect among all. Restrict license to those who can be depended upon to transact their business on as clean and respectable lines as a bank or public library, and then we can hope to become a happy and contented family, with manhood unimpaired, and happy womanhood "its bright and faithful auxiliary."

"Prohibition is a principle that does the most good when each individual makes a personal application of it to himself; besides, it leaves no room for argument."

AN OLD SOLDIER.

WHAT IT MEANS

A vote for prohibition means: High taxes or no municipal improvements.

Illegal sale of the same amount of liquor and no revenue. Disregard for existing laws; bootleggers and blind pigs.

A vote against prohibition means: Rigid enforcement of law by fearless officers that you can elect.

Funds with which to pay officers for enforcing existing laws, which are now flagrantly violated.

Good streets, more electric lights and fire protection.

Possible factories, business enterprises and investors which come to liberal cities.

HARD TO CATCH THEM.

Stringent laws already exist regulating the liquor traffic. We have statutes forbidding minors from frequenting saloons or buying liquor. Selling to intoxicated men or to men of known intemperate habits; selling on Sunday.

Why are these laws not enforced? There would be a chance to detect violators of the law in an open, regulated saloon, while it is next to impossible to catch the bootlegger.

Socialist Candidates Here.

D. M. Brower, of Ashland, and R. Messner, of Gold Hill, socialist candidate for representatives from this county, addressed a good sized audience in the town hall Monday evening. Like his opponent, Henry Kubli, Messner is not a Demosenses on the platform but he might be a heavy weight in a committee room chair. Dr. Brower is a pleasant speaker and his address was well received. He claims to preach the gospel of industrial justice and equality and declares that he would rather be accused of being an ordinary horse thief than an ordinary politician. He ridiculed the statement so often made by critics of his party that the socialists want to "divide up" as being either the result of ignorance or malice and explained in detail the tenets of his doctrine. Mr. Messner declared in favor of expediting the county books and said the socialist candidate for county judge will not take over the office unless the books are straightened out.

It Pays to be first.

The first California cherries shipped east this year six days ahead of last year. The box sold in Chicago for $20. The first ripe cherries of the season to arrive on the Los Angeles market was a tiny box containing nine cherries, which were put up and sold at $3. or $1 per cherry. It always pays to be first.

Great Growth.

The First National Bank of Medford, whose advertisement appears in this paper, has resources of over $100,000.00, which is eighteen times larger than when it began business in June, 1905, with only $25,000.00 capital. This beats all records of growth among the Banks of Southern Oregon.
