Seven goats near Red Bluff ate seven sticks of dynamite. Says the Sacramento Union. There were seven different explosions, and as many goats are scattered for miles around the southern part of Tehama County.

There is no Good Time to Rest in Advertising.

The important fact in the management of a store is that it is open for business regularly on all business days, says an exchange. This fact makes it important that the pulling power, the influence, of the advertising should be as steady as the service of clerks. There is no day on which the advertising can be suspended without doing injury to the store—just as sure and positive injury as would be done by suspending any other function of the store for a day or two now and then.

For advertising has come to be a "function" of every live store—a part of the "service" it renders to the public. Advertising information is calculated to save the time and money of the store patrons—and there is no good time to suspend such a function as this.

Table Rockets.

Mrs. Benton Vincent gave a graphophone entertainment one evening last week in the school house, which was largely attended and much enjoyed. It was the opening of the Bryan campaign here, some of his speeches being among the records rendered.

OREGON'S MILK IS TOO RICH.

Harriman in Oregon on Vacation.

Portland, Oregon, August 10, 1908. (Special Correspondence.)

The Postmasters of Oregon had a rousing convention at the Portland Commercial Club Friday and Saturday.

Postmaster Minto of Portland presided and gave a luncheon to the visiting fraternity. A special incident was the organization of the Fourth Class Postmasters, with Addison Bennett of Irrigation as president and W. J. Clarke of Gervais secretary. Everybody felt that they had greatly profited by attending.

Vigorous protest was entered by the commercial interests of Oregon and the Oregon State Dairy Association against the adoption by the Pure Food Conference at Mackinac Island, Mich., of a standard for evaporated milk requiring 28 per cent solids. Oregon's milk is rich in butter fat, owing to our climatic conditions, but abundant pasture means less solids than in milk from cows fed eight months in the year. Oregon dairymen and condensers insist that solids should be such as result from the use of whole milk in their product.

E. H. Harriman, the greatest individuality in the railroad world, is enjoying with his family the glories of Oregon's August climate at Pelican Lodge, near Klamath Lake. Their stay will cover several weeks. Vice-Presidents Julius Kretschmitt and E. E. Galvin accompanied Mr. Harriman to Oregon, but during his vacation they will be busy inspecting their roads throughout the state.

The Good Roads Conference opens tomorrow. There is absolute assurance of a thoroughly representative gathering and it is generally understood that permanent organization will be effected and result-getting legislation agreed upon. Conference is under the auspices of the Oregon Development League.

Three Oregon athletes won honors at the Olympic games in London. No other state in the Union made such a showing. The boys will be royally entertained in Portland when they return early in September. Both athletic and commercial bodies are uniting in the arrangements.

The different Fair associations of Oregon are co-operating for a splendid display of products and great showing of livestock at the Fall Show in Portland, with the best races ever held in the state. All this has its part in the development of the state—by creating such an interest in livestock production as will mean an ample supply for the support of the great packing plants now under construction in Portland.

A delegation of business men from Spokane, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of that city, will be entertained in Portland August 15th.

The sale of special one-way tickets from all points in the United States to all points in Oregon begins September 1st and continues until October 31st. Your community can get more than its share of the newcomers, with a little effort.

Stamp Your Fruit Boxes.

A drastic law enacted in 1907 is of much interest to persons who grow or sell fruit. Under the provisions of this law every person, firm, association, or corporation engaged in growing, packing or selling green fruits in Oregon is required to mark, stamp or label plainly on the outside of every box or package when packed the name and address of the packer, and if the packer is not the grower, the name and address of the grower as well as of the packer must appear prominently upon the box or package. It is made unlawful for any merchant, shipper or vendor to represent that any green fruit were raised, produced, or grown by any other person than the one who actually raised them or that they were raised or grown in any other place or locality than that in which they were actually grown. Any violation of this law is punishable by fine or imprisonment or both and the possession for the purposes of sale of any falsely or illegally marked box or package is made prima facie evidence that the person having such illegally marked box or package is the violator of the law. All persons are warned to conform with the provisions of this law.

The monitor Florida, which has been serving as a target for big guns and torpedoes, is to be renamed in honor that her present name can be given to a battleship. If the English style of naval nomenclature were adopted she could well be called the Impregnable.

Dec. 9 will be the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Wesley, the father of Methodism. America will be active in the celebration, having been more zealous in following his teachings than his native England.

Dry Farming.

"That practically every foot of the semi-arid lands of Umatilla county will produce crops under the dry farming methods now in use in the arid districts of Kansas, Nebraska and Wyoming, is the belief of J. S. Welch of Chicago, a dry farmer expert formerly of Cheyenne, Wyo., who was in the city today on his way to Portland on business.

"I have seen drier land than you have in Umatilla county converted into fine farming land which is now supporting a good population and yielding a handsome income to the owners. True, this land looked forbidding when the pioneer dry farmers went upon it. It was without water, had but little rainfall and was barren of vegetation and exceedingly unpromising. Some of it was fairly good range land for a portion of each year but it was not first-class wild grass land.

"But the patient farmers have plowed it deep, cultivated it, frequently disced it, harrowed it, rolled it and packed it down with the moisture of the winter season in the soil and it is now yielding from 30 to 45 bushels of corn, good yields of dry land alfalfa and excellent barley, oats and cow peas.

"The land that was once almost valueless in its rough state is now worth from $25 to $50 per acre and is supporting a heavy population. The dry farming area is spreading constantly. Like the growth of timber which follows the settlement westward dry farming is coming westward and within a few years it will reach the arid section of Idaho and Oregon.

"You do not need half of the moisture you think you do to produce good crops.

"I believe that this system will reduce the west as quickly as irrigation and the cost of installing the system is so much less than that of irrigation, that poor men can go upon dry land empty handed and within a few years be independent, while under irrigation the poor man must have the price of the water in addition to the price of the land and under many of the systems must wait for several years for the water."—East Oregonian.

Granulated Sore Eyes Cured.

"For twenty years I suffered from a bad case of granulated sore eyes," says Martin Boyd of Henrietta, Ky. "In February, 1903, a gentleman asked me to try Chamberlain's Salve. I bought one box and used about two-thirds of it and my eyes have not given me any trouble since." This salve is for sale by Mary A. Mee.
