Christian Science services are held every Sunday morning in the Masonic lodge room, opera house building, at 11:00 o'clock. All are invited to attend these services. Subject for Sunday, September 6th, "Man."

Dr. and Mrs. George Farra, of Corvallis, visited his cousin, E. L. Farra and family last week. This was Dr. Farra's first visit to the Rogue River valley and he was more than pleased with the general appearance of the country.

A number of Los Angeles families arrived here yesterday morning traveling by team looking over the country. They were denied the privilege of camping at Medford and came on here this morning to stop for a few days to look over the country.

E. J. Kaiser, of the Ashland Valley Record, accompanied by two sisters and a niece, was in town last Sunday enjoying a pleasure drive around the valley. Miss Kasier, who is a teacher in the Seattle schools, will leave this week for that city to resume her work at the beginning of the next term.

The following teachers, former students of the southern Oregon normal school, have secured positions for the ensuing year: Margaret Snuck, Cove school; Margaret Williamson, A grade in the Grants Pass schools; Gertrude Eastman, the Murphy school; Nellie Crocker, city school; Edith McCune, Watkins school; Ray Hevener, North Bend; Ethel Puckett, West Klamath; Virginia Baker, Wallowa; Lee Wright, Agate or Butte Falls; Nett Drew, Klamath Falls; P. M. Corum, a principal at Roseburg; Clara S. Corum, principal of Pleasant Hill school; Grace Smith, Independence; Gaiel Welch, Bonanza; Maude Rippey, Gold Hill, primary grades; Ernesta Byers, grade in Albany schools; Orra Patrick, teacher of drawing, city schools.

Mrs. Gibson and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, returned Sunday morning from an extended visit with friends in Great Falls, Montana. They left yesterday for Ashland, where they will reside during the winter, Miss Gibson having accepted a position as teacher in the public schools of that city.

E. J. Kaiser has installed a new Mergenthaler linotype machine in the Valley Record office at Ashland. This indicates prosperity in the newspaper field in the up-valley town, and as the Tidings recently installed a similar machine it must be that all the boys up there are getting rich and respectable.

James Shields and family returned Monday from a most enjoyable outing at Newport, where they spent the past two months. They enjoyed the sea breezes, the fishing, the rock oysters and all the many things that are "different" from the interior. Mrs. Shields, who has been in poor health for some time, is much improved by her sojourn at the coast.

No. 1 of Volume 1 of the Talent Rustler, published by Bickmore LeRoy, at Talent, Oregon, is the latest addition to our exchange table. The paper is a 6 column, 4-page publication and is well written and neatly printed. The Herald extends best wishes for the future prosperity and usefulness of the latest Jackson County journalistic venture.

Besides the large exhibit that the Oregon Agricultural College will make at the Oregon State Fair at Salem, September 14-19, the officers of that institution have arranged to give the fair visitors some special entertainment each day. Each afternoon the commodious auditorium adjoining the main pavilion will be darkened and from its platform different members of the faculty will give lectures illustrated by stereopticon views pertaining to their respective departments at the college, all of which have a bearing on the agricultural industries of the state.

Friday, the fifth day of the fair, has been set aside as "Agricultural College" day and special efforts will be made to have this the most important occasion of the entire week. The Oregon Agricultural College has the reputation of being one of the leading educational institutions on the Pacific Coast and its participation in the program of the fair shows that its president and its co-workers fully appreciate that the fair is a worthy cause which has been a great factor in the state's development.

Soldiers' Reunion.

Arrangements are about completed for the big soldiers' reunion which will be held here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. It is expected that a crowd of several hundred people will be present and nothing will be overlooked to insure all visitors a pleasant time. A number of gifted speakers will be present at the several sessions of the meeting, and Mayor Hopkins will deliver an address of welcome to the veterans and their friends at the session on Wednesday evening. An interesting program is being prepared for that evening, as well as for each of the other evenings of the encampment.

Grand Pavilion Dance.

Arrangements are being completed by some of the young men of the town to give a grand pavilion dance in the pavilion at the old Fair grounds every evening during the meeting of the old soldiers which convenes next Wednesday. A new floor has been laid in the pavilion, and the Hazlerigg orchestra, of Medford, has been engaged to furnish the music. Nothing will be left undone to make the occasion a big success, and all who enjoy dancing should avail themselves of this opportunity of enjoying their favorite pastime.

Receiver Would Collect Dough.

Another chapter in the Medford & Crater Lake railroad tangle developed Tuesday, when J. F. Reddy, receiver of the concern, commenced suit in the circuit court to collect various amounts from some 58 different stockholders due for stock held that has never been fully paid for. It has been claimed that much of the original stock of the company was held by individuals who never paid for it and the suit is brought in order that the affairs of the defunct company can be properly adjudicated and the receivership wound up.

Where Did It Come From?

Ashland Tidings. While engaged in the work of constructing a concrete foundation for a cottage for Dr. Reader on Vista street the other day J. E. Plaisted found a twenty pound iron cannon ball among the gravel which had been hauled from the bed of Bear Creek below the Eagle Mills. It had taken on the color of stone somewhat, but its unusual weight attracted the attention of Mr. Plaisted. It is up to the wise ones now to explain how the ball came to be imbedded in the creek. In what Indian war and by what artillery?

Waterfowl Now Ripe.

On Tuesday, September 1st, a wider field of sport opened for the Oregon sportsman, as that day began the open season for ducks, geese and swan, as well as for deer.

For the benefit of those of the Herald readers who are newcomers in Oregon we republish the following information with regard to the Oregon game law:

It is unlawful to sell, offer for sale, barter or exchange, ship, carried or transported beyond the boundaries of this state, any deer, moose, mountain sheep, elk, silver-gray squirrels, swan, prairie chicken, grouse and all species of upland birds and ducks.

To hunt without a license.

To run deer with dogs or night hunting.

To kill Chinese pheasants in Jackson County.

To kill female deer in Coos and Curry counties.

To kill quail or Mongolian pheasants in Grant, Harney, Gilliam, Umatilla and Wheeler counties till January 1, 1912.

To trap, or destroy nests of, protected game birds.

To shoot on enclosed lands without permission.

To ship or sell deer skins without being properly tagged.

Penalties—Fine to transport game outside of this state for the sale, etc., $100 to $500 and imprisonment.

Violation of game laws, $15 to $500.

Fine to hunt without a license, $25 to $100 and imprisonment.

For deer tags apply to any justice of the peace or county clerk.

Hunter's license good anywhere in Oregon.

Back From Huckleberry Mountain.

Ed Farra, J. D. Parker and Benj. Prato have returned from a trip to the famous huckleberry patch above Union creek after having a most enjoyable outing. The best berries are to be found on a high mountain which is inaccessible for wheeled vehicles, and the hundreds of visitors who go there each season have the time of their lives "packing" their "grub" and blankets on the hurricane deck of a cayuse up the steep trail. All kinds of people may be seen on the trail, these gentlemen say, and a few instances they alluded to are worth mentioning. A big fat Indian brave from the Klamath agency packed his pony with the grub and camping outfit, which included a big feather bed. Part way up the trail the pony got frisky, and when he quit bucking the feathers lined the trail for half a mile and one aborigine was obliged to sleep on the cold, hard ground, just as his forefathers used to do. A party from Silver Lake, which included two pretty school ma'ams, had trouble with their pack horses early in the game and their camp equipage was strewn all over the mountain. While the men of the party were gathering up the wreckage the ladies walked on. One of the school ma'am's Cinderella slippers blistered her little footsie tootsie, but she was game, and, taking off her shoes and stockings, she tackled the rocky trail barefoot and went to the top in schedule time. She was soon the most popular girl in the camp. These are some of the extreme types of humanity. A big "Injun," expecting to sleep on a feather bed while huckleberrying, and a young school teacher, climbing mountains barefoot, without expecting to.

Prato did not have any feather bed with him and says he didn't need one. Farra got the party up at midnight every "morning" so they would have plenty of time during the day to enjoy their outing. Ben says next time he goes with Ed he will place his order for an "inning" instead of an outing; then he can stay in bed all day if he wants to.

Life at the Hop Yards.

J. A. Mann, who with his family is camping at the DeArmond hop yards, below Grants Pass, writes the Herald thus interestingly:

"We are camping at the old campground at DeArmond's hop yard. We find an average crop of hops here, but a number of the smaller yards have been dug up this season. The apple and pear crop seems to be short here this season. The weather is cool and pleasant, with light frosts on the mornings of August 25th and 26th. Oliver went out to the river this morning and caught a fine steelhead, and we expect to get a deer by Sunday, as they seem to be quite plentiful in the hills around us. Hop picking will begin September 1st. There is a big huckleberry crop here this season."

"J. A. MANN."

Political Information.

Registration reopens September 29. Close for election October 29. Presidential election November 3.

"Oregon's Advertising Unequaled."

Portland, Oregon, August 31, 1908. (Special Correspondence.)

"Advertising Oregon" is the title of a page in "Printers' Ink" of July 8th, one of the most widely known of advertising journals. And it is no wonder that the state's work along these lines has attracted this attention, for no portion of America is circulating the attractive literature that burdens the mails of Oregon every day in the year. Now that the colonist rates are to be in effect—and they begin tomorrow—every citizen in the state should feel it his duty to advertise the fact in his personal correspondence, to send information about his community to eastern acquaintances and to aid in every possible way the commercial organizations which are working to increase the state's population.

Portland is to act as host to the American Bar Association today, and delegates who attended the convention at Seattle this past week say that many members of the association plan trips through Oregon before returning to their eastern homes.

The United Chambers of Commerce of Japan have extended an invitation to the representative business men of the cities along the Pacific Coast to participate in an excursion which will leave San Francisco on September 25th. Those preferring to go by another route, however, will join the party in Japan. The entire trip will consume about three months, and the visitors will see the famous chrysanthemums at their best.

There is every indication of a most cordial co-operation on the part of the commercial bodies of Oregon and Washington in advancing the interests of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, and in every other movement having for its purpose the upbuilding of the North Pacific Coast. An evidence of this is a recent interchange of visits by the active officers of commercial bodies in Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and other northwestern cities. Co-operation of the same character exists between the livestock associations of the different sections, and through their working in harmony there is assurance that, beginning with the first meeting this fall, the finest horses from the best stables of the entire country will participate in the events planned for Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

The most elaborate book ever published on Oregon is in process of preparation by a firm whose books on other sections of America are in a class by themselves. They have enlisted the services of Benj. A. Gifford, of The Dalles, in securing hundreds of choicest views for this use. Mr. Gifford's collection of Columbia River photographs which adorn the convention hall of the Portland Commercial Club have been responsible for many tourists taking this river trip.

Dr. J. C. Booth and little daughter, Esther, of Lebanon, Ore., visited at the home of Robt. Kyle Monday on their way home from San Francisco, where the doctor had attended the California State Medical Association. He read a paper before the association on "Periodical Paralysis."

Mayor and Marshal in Tangle.

A flurry was caused in local municipal circles Monday, when Mayor Hopkins notified Marshal Williams that his services would not be required after that date. It is understood that the Marshal took a vacation of several days, without permission from the mayor, and that fact, together with a desire to retrench somewhat in the expense account, caused the mayor to take the action he did. Marshal Williams, however, stood on a provision of the charter which says the mayor may not remove an appointive officer except with the approval of the council. The charter seems to be somewhat conflicting on this point, one clause stating that the mayor may, at his pleasure, remove such officials, while in another place it says that such action may only be taken by the executive with the approval of the council. Mayor Hopkins learned of the conflicting provision of the charter yesterday forenoon just as he was starting with his family to Crater Lake and further action on the matter was deferred until the regular monthly meeting next Monday evening.

A Crater Lake Wreck.

Will G. Steel, the Crater Lake land-lord, reports the loss of his small gasoline launch. Quite a severe storm occurred on the lake one night last week, during which the launch broke loose from its moorings and was dashed against the rocks, wrecking it so badly that it cannot be repaired. The engine was removed from the wreck and will probably be used in another boat or in the old one if it is rebuilt.
