Dwarfed Trees Perfect
Dwarfed trees, 800 varieties of them, were recently exhibited in Tokyo. Some of the trees were only a foot high but as perfect in detail as any monarch of the forest. Some were sold for $8,000 each. Evergreens are the trees usually dwarfed. They are skillfully fed starvation portions of water and shaped with stocks.

Paris Latin Quarter
The Latin quarter of Paris is the section of the city in which the University of Paris is situated. Education in the university was formerly given in Latin, and the students used to go about the town singing their songs in Latin, thus giving rise to the name which persists to the present day.

Languid Righteousness
In doing good we are generally cold, and languid, and sluggish; and of all things afraid of being too much in the right. But the works of malice and injustice are quite in another style. They are finished with a bold, masterly hand.—Edmund Burke.

Nation's Cotton Crop
The United States supplies over half of the world's yearly cotton crop. The value of this varies from a billion and a half to four billion dollars, depending upon the market value of cotton. It was introduced to America about 800 years ago.

A Celestial Menu

THE story of the Graf Zepelin's world tour is now history, and history also to its passengers is the food provided by Heinrich Zubie, chief steward on the huge craft. They undoubtedly cherish memories of the flight, but don't you think that some of them have also just a reminiscent tinkle of the palate when they think of the things that Zubie got from Louis Sherry when the big airship left New York, and which he served to them far up in the air.
An Astonishing Menu
These foods included, among other things, three hundred one-gallon cans of soups, relishes, meats, fish, vegetables, French dressing, mayonnaise, catsup and sauces. Potato chips, caviar, peeled asparagus, sour gherkins, and special table water were also among the provisions put on board.
The fresh fruits included grapefruit and oranges and the fresh meats served were sirloin steaks, lamb, tongue, and Virginia and domestic hams. Bread and cake in large cartons, as well as tasty tartlets were taken along on the airship.
Even Ice Included
To keep all the foodstuffs fresh, and in order to be able to serve cold what should be served cold in this celestial menu, dry ice was included with the food cargo. Flying may in time become commonplace, but there was nothing commonplace about the canned and fresh foods provided for this great initial flying adventure.

The striking topic, What is Our Church Planning This Year? has been given for the study in the young people's devotional service Acts 2:41-47:13-1-3. are the scripture texts. This is the beginning of Young People's Week in the Endeavor societies. Our young people will have charge of all services of the church during the week.
In the church services of the day the pastor will preach both morning and evening. The morning sermon will deal with the subject: Two Great Little Words. Some positives and some negatives in the Gospel Message, will be discussed in the evening. Good song messages will help your worship.

THE BUSY BEAN

THE bean is one of the most cosmopolitan of vegetables, for it is represented in nearly every habitable part of the globe. There is no telling when beans were first cultivated, but we know that the ancient Egyptians and Greeks cultivated them and that when the first explorers landed in the New World they found them to be part of the Indians' yearly harvest. The lima and the kidney bean are thought to have come from South America. The latter is the haricot of France and the frijole of Spanish-America.
A Real American Dish
When the pioneers in our country settled here they found that the combination of pork and beans was a most satisfying one and today the phrase, "Boston baked beans and brown bread," calls up a vision of great-grandmothers smilingly serving immense mounds of rich, steaming beans to an eagerly awaiting family. In those days beans were baked for many hours in big earthen bean-pots, but today commercially canned beans are preferred by the majority. Canned, dried beans are put up with pork, with tomato sauce, and with other sauces. The beans canned without pork have become a staple dish with our large Jewish population.
The various forms of canned beans are put up with the most scientific care. Usually the dried beans are cleaned, picked over by hand and soaked. Sometimes they are boiled until tender before being put into the cans, and sometimes they are parboiled, but they are all actually processed at high temperature after the cover has been hermetically sealed on the airtight can. The pork, tomato sauce, or a plain sauce made from salt, sugar, molasses and spices is cooked with the beans. Such beans are labeled "pork and beans," "beans with tomato sauce" and so on. Whenever you see a can of beans which says "baked beans" you may be sure that before being put in cans they were actually baked in ovens by dry heat until they are mealy and brown, for this is a government ruling.

Kidney beans and lima beans are canned ready for use as a vegetable dish or mixed with other foods.
The Popular Stringless Bean
Stringless beans is the general name by which beans newly picked from the vine and canned are called. The beans may be the familiar green pods, or the tender, yellow wax beans. As is true of all canned vegetables, stringless beans should be heated in their own liquid in order to attain the best flavor and retain their mineral salts and vitamins. Or they may be chilled right in the can, and then used most acceptably in making salads.
And here are some new recipes for using different types of beans:
Baked Beans Parmesan: Sauté one small, diced onion in two table-spoons of butter until golden brown. Add one diced pimiento, one number 2 can of baked beans, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and three table-spoons grated Parmesan cheese. Heat thoroughly. Serve garnished with sweet gherkins.

Lima Beans on Casserole: Sauté one small minced onion and one-half of a green pepper, shredded, in one tablespoon of fat for five minutes. Add contents of one can of tomato soup and of one number 2 can of lima beans. Season to taste. Pour into a buttered casserole and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F.
New Bean Recipes
Kidney Bean Medley: Mix the following ingredients lightly together: contents of a number 2 can of red kidney beans, one cup cooked spaghetti, one-half cup chopped, salted peanuts, one-half cup grated cheese, one cup canned tomatoes, salt and pepper. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake for thirty minutes at 375 degrees F.
Financier's Luncheon Salad: Cut cold, rare, roast beef in thin, small slices; drain a can of stringless beans, and slice cucumbers very thin. Marinate the meat and vegetables, including some cold, cooked or canned, artichoke hearts, separately in French dressing for at least an hour before serving. Drain and then pile beef in a lettuce leaf in center of plate. Surround with three small leaves holding a spoonful of beans, cucumber and artichoke hearts, respectively.
