Judging from the number of candidates which have entered the political arena for the governorship of Oregon there will be a red hot primary campaign this spring. To add to the confusion comes the announcement that State Treasurer Kay will not make the race. As soon as he withdrew Geo. Neuner of Douglas county steps into the fray. Kay was thought to be the strongest man out for the race and when he stepped down it made the race all the more spirited.

Whether all the candidates are now in cannot be determined for there are several names mentioned which have not been entered as yet. C. E. Gates, of Medford, who has always let it be known that he would not be adverse to making the race has not taken the step that would make him a qualified entrant, as yet. The symptoms were rather strong for a while for Gates admitted that he was being urged by his friends from all over the state to get in but as he has not done so yet, we take it that the clouds of battle have not sufficiently cleared away to let "Pop" see just what is going to happen. Other favorite sons in several parts of Oregon have just put out feelers but have not thrown in their hat, yet.

Even if there are no more entrants it looks like a good race will be had by all.

One hears many stories about Chicago these days which makes the blood run cold. Murder, lawlessness, banditry, incompetency etc. stalks the city. When we know that Chicago is located in the center of this great nation of our we cannot help blushing with shame. Conditions which are not far worse and perhaps not so bad draws action from our government.

Right at the present time the United States has troops in Haiti, Nicaragua and China—endeavoring to teach those people—if you please—how to govern themselves. Imagine the inconsistency. Here in the next largest of all American cities we find bankruptcy, murder, anarchy and ruin and the government permits it to be while in distant China our marines are teaching the Chinese subjects how to act.

Why not an expeditionary force to Chicago where it might act to remove a blot from our own great nation.

HYDE SEES CHALLENGE TO FARMERS IN 1930

good team, pulling for a better planned and more profitable agriculture in America.

"Every one of us makes a private Outlook report, whether or not we consult the official reports. We act on our own opinion of future prices when we decide to plant a certain acreage, or to increase or reduce our herds and flocks. In these Outlook reports, we try to give you the facts on what farmers here and abroad are planning to do; on what consumers want; on distribution of agricultural products so as to avoid gluts or shortages.

"These reports are prepared by men of the Department, after consulting with the Farm Board and the several State agricultural colleges, and surveying the world-wide situation. The colleges will adapt the recommendations more closely to local conditions. Their recommendations, bringing the problem down to a community basis, will come to you next month in thousands of farmers' meetings conducted by the extension services of the agricultural colleges.

"Past experience indicates that the reports anticipate future trends correctly nearly nine times out of ten. That is better than any one of us would be able to do alone.

"The Outlook Reports are not blueprints of a production plan for your farm in 1930, but are a body of authentic facts, carefully interpreted. There is plenty of place for your own individual, informed decision. Without your challenge of the new decade.

"This is a year when it is particularly necessary for each producer to estimate his plantings and his markets, in view of the price outlook for each commodity and to plan production accordingly. To obtain a higher level commodity and to plan production accordingly. To obtain a higher level of prices than that which now prevails, it appears necessary to reduce rather than increase 1930 production, especially the production of crops. You can get more detailed information, and personal consultation on your problems from your agricultural college or from your county agent.

"I want to emphasize the fact that controlled production and orderly marketing are not ends in themselves. They are means to an end, and that end is a rising tide of well-being, economic and educational, and an American standard of living on the American farm. It is to that end that I urge every one of you to bend your intelligent, informed, and organized effort."

HOME POINTERS

From the School of Home Economics, Oregon State College
Butter is one of the richest sources of vitamin A.

A little lemon or orange juice added to stewed dried fruit will often improve the flavor.

Homemakers can often save time by planning to have left overs to use for deserts. For instance, when cooking prunes for breakfast it is wise to cook enough to have prune whip a day or two later, or to cook apple sauce and use it for Brown Betty.

One of the most important points in cooking all products in which much egg or cheese is used is that they are best cooked as a low temperature and removed from the heat as soon as possible.

White bread is not harmful, it is merely lacking in some valuable constituents which are supplied by whole wheat and graham bread.

Graham baking powder biscuits are a pleasing variation at times. They are made by substituting graham flour for one-half of the white flour, and adding the milk carefully as a little more or less may be needed with the change of flour.

Maybe That's Why

Rev. Dr. J. is among us for a brief season. He says and does exactly as he thinks right, without regard for the opinions or beliefs of anyone else. His wife is not with him.—Rural Paper.

Deserved Praise

The big telescope of the university observatory had just been trained upon the sky when a star fell. "Hot dog!" said the new night watchman, "that fellow sure is a crack shot."—The Outlook.

Has Its Disadvantages

"My greatest thrill," writes M. B. A., "was experienced when a mild looking man, sitting in front of me on a fast express train, calmly put down his paper, and stepping onto the platform of the train, deliberately threw himself off. . . ." That is one way of traveling faster than a fast train. If you are sure of arriving at the hoped-for destination.—Capper's Weekly.

Oldest Forest

An inter-glacial forest—one which grew between two glacial eras and was covered over by the second glacier, thus being preserved for centuries—has been discovered on the north side of Mendenhall glacier near Juneau, Alaska.

Good Work Done by Humble

The growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts; and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who live faithfully a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs.—George Elliot.

Odd Relationship

A buxom Irish girl approached the manager of the carnival side-show and said: "I want to speak to the Hindu mystic. Please tell her that it is her sister, Bridget, calling."—The Outlook.

Memory

We consider ourselves as defective in memory either because we remember less than we desire, or less than we suppose others to remember.—Johnson.

Sure of One Meal

Ad in African paper: "Wanted—Gentleman who can furnish a half-dozen eggs to my half pound of ham. Object, matrimony."—Boston Transcript.

Bright Salesman

"Can you give me 'The Cricket on the Hearth?'" asked the old lady of the new salesman in the book shop. "I don't think we have it in stock," replied the youth, "but I can show you a ping-pong set which is every bit as exciting."

In cold weather a blanket over the lambing pen will insure sufficient warmth to keep the new lamb from being chilled.

The more acres a man can farm with his equipment the cheaper will be the cost of production of his output.

Clackamas is now the leading poultry county of Oregon, with an income of $1,000,000 from this source in 1929—an increase of 300 per cent in the last five years.

A great deal of interest in chopped or ground hay for feeding has developed in Oregon and much experimental work has been done to determine its value, if any, over unchopped hay. Some opinions are, says the experiment station, that if the hay can be chopped very cheaply, it may pay, but it is not a necessity, while others have found that chopping or grading brought decided improvement.

Many a husband with a little extra time in the house due to a slackening up of farm work, can make his wife very happy by sharpening the kitchen knives, tightening the springs in the roller shades, oiling the hinges in the squeaky doors, lengthening the bed slats that are always falling out, and then if he has any time left, he might paint the lower cellar step white as a signal for his wife and children when descending the dark stairway.

It is said that keeping the sidewalks clean of snow in Scotland is a simple task. After a heavy snow-fall the mayor drops a coin in the snow and announces that he has lost a schilling.

to pay the reparations installments, but if this comes to pass all the allies will have to do will be to turn the account over to a couple of installment house collectors.
