Douglas Fir Passes Rigid Test at U. of O.

Douglas fir timbers, after 53 years service in Hayden bridge, near Eugene, were found not only to equal new timbers in strength, but were actually stronger, when tested by E. H. McAllister, professor of mechanics at the University of Oregon. Here Prof. McAllister is shown with the machine which is exerting thousands of pounds of pressure down on the fir beam.

University of Oregon, Eugene.—Douglas fir timbers, after 53 years of service, were found not only to equal new timbers in strength, but were actually stronger, it is stated by E. H. McAllister, professor of mechanics at the University of Oregon, who has completed a research investigation on material taken from Hayden Bridge, a structure erected near Eugene in 1874.

The timbers in the bridge were found to be in an excellent state of preservation, and Professor McAllister's conclusion is that Douglas fir can be preserved in sound structural condition for at least half a century by the simple expedient of covering from weather and providing for a free circulation of air.

More than 200 tests, on machines which exert from 30,000 to 200,000 pounds pressure, were made on the old timbers, while for basis of comparison similar tests were made on both green and seasoned pieces of the same size. Although some of the timbers that went into construction of the bridge would not be acceptable as bridge material under modern grading rules, the average strength was found to be in excess of the average strength of new timber in green condition, while in most cases it was well above the average for unused timber that had been air dried for two or three years.

Thistle Raising Profitable

The teasel, a cactus-like thistle, provides the only entirely satisfactory means of carding wool, removing the burr and bringing up the nap. Consequently in some parts of the world, especially in England, in northern New York and in Oregon, raising thistles for the wool manufacturing industry is a regular business. Teasels were introduced into America by William Snooks, an Englishman, in 1826.

Explaining Much Misery

Few things are needed to make a wise man happy; nothing can make a fool content; that is why most men are miserable.—La Rochefoucauld.

High on Roll of Fame

According to Dr. Charles W. Elliot, a list of men prominent in educational history in the last 200 years would include Adam Smith, Michael Faraday, John Stuart Mill, William Ellery Channing, Horace Mann, Herbert Spencer, Ernest Renan, Charles Darwin, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Louis Pasteur.

All Are Finger Printed

Argentina is the only country to have national finger-printing. For that reason it is claimed to be the one country where it is impossible for a person to lose his or her identity. There is a record of the finger prints of every one of that country's nearly 10,000,000 inhabitants.

Cure for Lying

It is sed (by naturalists) that angleworms, rubbed on the back of the neck, will cure a man of lying. I don't believe this, unless it kills the man.—Josh Billings.

Whence "Old Harry"

"Old Harry" is believed to be a corruption of "Old Hairy." In olden days his Satanic majesty was frequently pictured as a hairy old fellow.

by all who attended. The young people of the Endeavor had charge, and had asked Mr. Arthur Webster to be the speaker in the morning, and Rev. John Stille to speak in the evening. Both messages were good and were well received. Thanks—Miss Loomis Davidson was missed from her place on Sunday evening. Some infection in the eyes was the cause. She is improving.

Five of our laymen attended the meeting in Grants Pass last Friday evening and heard Bishop Lowe and others speak. All report a good time, and that the Bishop is calling the church back to the old time simplicity and power of the gospel. Miss Gladys Bond expects to be a week-end visitor in the parsonage home this week. Miss Bond is always welcome to her many friends in Central Point.

Mrs. L. Swartz is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Marine, in Central Point this week, her husband having brought her over from Medford on Monday morning.

Glen Warren, formerly of this city was killed in Grants Pass Saturday evening. He was riding a bicycle, and was struck by a car. He lived only four hours. He was formerly a member of the Sunday school and congregation here.

Mrs. H. W. Davisson of Table Rock, arrived home on Monday from her visit to San Francisco. She reports a delightful visit with her sister.

Mrs. L. M. Howell of the Agate district has rented her farm to Mr. Elder Conner, and she, with her daughter and son-in-law, (Mr. and Mrs. Guy Humphreys, has moved to Medford. The Connors took charge of the place last week.

Joe Johnson and Melvin Mayfield enjoyed a fine dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mayfield on Monday evening. It was the occasion of the birthday of Melvin. The boys will grow up—and eat as they grow.

Eight were dedicated to the Lord in baptism at the church on Sunday morning. A class of communicant candidates will be formed right away, in order to prepare any who may wish to unite in full membership with the church at Easter time.

All the members of the ladies' Bible class are asked to try to be in the class on Sunday morning, and invite a new member. A special effort is being made to enlarge the membership of the class.

Rev. and Mrs. Johnson attended the funeral services of the late Glen Warren, held at Grants Pass on Tuesday afternoon. The burial was in the Medford Cemetery.

Word from Miss Elizabeth Duncan who is teaching school at Blackfoot, Idaho, says that the thermometer registered 43 below zero one morning when the children got to school. Pretty severe for a southern Oregonian.

"Warnings and Promises" is the title of the lesson from the 7th chapter of Matthew, given us for study this week. We are just beginning the book, and any who are not in bible school ought to get in right now. Our school has a class for you, and you are welcome. 9:45, is the time of opening.

"Ways of Studying The Bible" is the theme given to the young people. 2nd Tim. 3:14-17; 2:15, is the scriptures assigned. Let the leaders be on time with a program and the others will be not far behind. 6:30 is the time.

Rev. M. A. Marcy, D.D. of Eugene will preach in the morning service. Mr. Marcy is the District Sup't of the Southern Oregon Dist. Ore. Conf. M. E. Church. All are invited to hear him in this service. In the evening service the pastor will preach on the theme: "Locations". The choir and congregation will join in worship and praise in song. And good specials will be on the program.

Miss Lucy Shafer, field secretary of the Board of National Mission of the Presbyterian church, will speak to the ladies in a service at the church Friday afternoon of this week; and in a popular service in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. "Architect, farmer, teacher, speaker—all of these are within the experience of Miss Shafer" are some of the statements made of her.

Peaches And Economy

"SHE'S a peach of a girl!" is a popular expression which young men use in regard to maidens who strike their fancy. And, if we recommend peaches as the economy of this month, we want it distinctly understood that we do not refer to the human, but to the canned variety. The human ones are not famous for saving you any money.

During the last year 395,000 tons of clingstone peaches were produced in their sunny, California home, and it is interesting to know that of this immense number, some 350,000 tons were canned. Naturally, this many tons will fill a huge number of cans, and when cans of peaches are so plentiful their price is likely to be low.

Peaches, both human and canned, have their pretty color in their favor, but the latter variety also offers the convenience of being sliced or halved and all ready to serve.

It is universally conceded, we believe, that human peaches are sweeter and more delicious than anything else on earth, but delicious desserts can also be made of the canned variety. Here is a delectable one:

A New Dessert

Peach Melba: Soften one-half tablespoon gelatin in two tablespoons cold water. Beat one cup heavy cream, add one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla and one-fourth teaspoon almond extract; and fold the gelatin. Chill eight canned peach halves. Serve the cream mixture piled on the cut side of a peach half and pour a little of the peach syrup over it. Garnish with chopped nuts.
