The outcome of the coming gubernatorial primary is quite apt to bring about a test of strength among the American Legion politicians, if present plans are not soon changed. Each of the Republican party candidates who are held to be the strong contestants for the chief executive position, has selected a Legion man to conduct his campaign.

This condition indicates either one of two things—either the Legion is considered as a strong enough political power in the state to be a menace to the chances of a candidate or else the legion men are fast assuming positions of prestige in this state and from their ranks come the most active campaigners.

The battle lines are being drawn and soon the publicity men will have the newspapers and the radios shouting the merits of the several candidates. The three leaders in the race are all quite prominent and are successful men in their several callings. Any one is big enough for the job and the vote of the people will not be governed so much by the candidates ability but by the platform upon which he runs.

Except in the political centers, little is being said, especially in the agricultural sections. The rural voter has not yet decided what step to take.

Today, March 6 was the day set for general Communist uprisings all over the world and especially in this country. According to Mr. Woll of the American Federation of labor this action is a part of the Bolshevist propaganda which he, along with millions of other Americans, believes is not needed here.

No one can truthfully say that the industrial conditions in this country are as they should be but on the other hand, the average American feels that there are better ways than that of the Bolsheviki to master these problems. We do not need the dictatorship with the subsequent persecutions to solve our problems. Our country has gone thru many a crisis worse than the present one and recovered and it will get thru this one much easier if the cause of the communists is left over the sea in far off Russia.

Whenever there is a labor shortage there is always a footing found for radicals who would revolutionize the existing conditions. The present is no different from the past. The strange thing which we have noted, however is that most of these movements are fostered by men who are not overly zealous to earn an honest living if it requires work. They feel that the worker should have all the revenue and the executive should receive the wage of a roust-about or apprentice.

We have noticed that few of the transient unemployed search for a meal at a place where work threatens.

If more of the men and women who are involved in inciting strife over industrial conditions would spend as much time looking toward the betterment of their chances for meeting such a crisis they would not be so apt to need the services of any such organization as the communist movement.

A woman has a fat husband and instead of throwing things around and messing up the place in general when she gets mad at him, she just throws his shoes under the bed.

Maybe hard work never harmed any one, but we've never noticed any marvelous benefits from carrying out a couple of tubs full of ashes.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

When a jury reported in court in Pittsburg, the other day, the foreman who was a woman, reached in her purse for the verdict and then had to tell the judge she had misplaced it. Doesn't that sound home-like?

A generation ago the popular slogan was "Four years more of the full dinner pail." Now it is "a sedan, a coupe and a rumble seat roadster for every American family."

Greatness Must Be Won

There are two ends to every ladder—and the bottom is where one starts. The man at the top, disappointing though he may look, did not fly there. It is not often that men "have greatness thrust upon them."

Write Your Own Telegrams

The telautograph service is now being added to the state telegraph system of France and one can now transmit a telegram in his own handwriting to all the leading French towns. The service is not only useful for sentimental but practical purposes, as the courts will probably accept a signature sent by wire as legal.

Famous Chairs

One of the most beautiful chairs in the world is the chair of Dagobert, king of the Franks, who died in the year 638. It is made of cast and chased bronze of very fine workmanship. But St. Peter's chair at Rome is said to be the most ancient and interesting piece of furniture in existence.

Worthless Eggs No Waste

Eggs that are worthless so far as food value goes are not wasted by the large dealers, but are covered with kerosene after being broken, treated with boracic acid and sold to tanneries for use in one of the first processes of making leather. The shells are removed by sieves and the egg mixture is placed in a revolving drum with the raw hides to make the plant.

Curious Book

There is a book belonging to the family of prince de Ligne of France that is neither written nor printed. The letters of the text are cut out of each folio upon the finest vellum, and, being interleaved with blue paper, it is as easy to read as print.

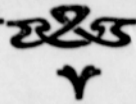

Confederate Money

The paper on which Confederate currency was printed was not distinctive paper. It was comparatively good quality paper with a grayish tint and was printed on both sides.

A little shredded coconut and a bit of almond flavoring give a delicious new flavor to rice pudding.

The disagreeable odor often left in dishes or pans that have contained fish may be removed by adding a large tablespoonful of salt to the rinsing water when washing them.

A corn popper is very convenient for roasting walnuts. If the whole nuts are put in and roasted until the shells are soft and crumbly, the meats are delicious.

A pretty way to serve biscuits for a luncheon is to cut them in tiny rounds, (an empty paprika can may be used for this) and fit three in each compartment of a muffin pan. This gives a clover leaf effect.

A new way to cook potatoes: Scrub them thoroughly with vegetable brush, boil in "jackets" until tender, cut in thick slices, brush with fat and brown under a broiler. The result is delicious.

Have you ever tried "souffle" crackers? To make them, the soda crackers are laid in a flat pan of ice water for eight minutes. Then the water is drained off and the crackers baked in a medium oven for 45 minutes. They should come out a light golden brown and flakily tender.
