

Dinner Party at Lithia Springs Hotel

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Prosser, who have been greeting friends in Ashland for several days, en route from their trip around the world to their home in San Francisco, entertained at a dinner party at the Lithia Springs Hotel on Wolf

Tuesday evening, prior to their departure for California. Mrs. Prosser's daughter, Miss Grace Hurt, was also hostess at the dinner, and their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Provost, Mr. and Mrs. Domino Provost, Mrs. Daisy McGarry and Mr. and Mrs. Julius P.

Dinner was served at a large table with a basket of orchid asters at the centerpiece. After dinner was spent visiting, until train time, when Mr. and Mrs. Prosser and Miss Hurt departed on the Shasta for their home.

LACE

After some years of puritan plainness, we are suddenly becoming frilly, and lace—dainty and mysterious is again coming into its own. We find it as the trim of a dress, as collars, cuffs, draperies, as edging on lingerie; or as the whole of a gown, if you please. If the wearer is short, the pattern should be small and the lines run up and down. A tall slender figure can wear a bold pattern of lace over a contrasting background. This tends to shorten the stature. Lace shawls and lace scarfs are popular today and we even have lace hats. All this lacy effect is softening to the middle aged lady, who had a hard time of it trying to feel at home in those straight, simple, untrimmed things which look so lovely on the lithe girl of sixteen. Lace adds dignity and elegance to a costume and is airy-fairy looking for hot weather.
