LONLINESS

Lonliness is a form of suffering for which I never can have much sympathy. It is so closely related to selfishness. Why should one be lonely in a world where so much good to be done, so many interesting fields to conquer, so many causes calling for volunteers so many others who are lonely?

It seems to me the lonely person must be self-centered and look only within, or upon the things of his own. Could he forget himself and throw himself into some useful enterprise for the good of others, he would soon find himself happily companionable with many fine people.

To take part in church, lodge or political club work, with a high motive of pushing the cause along is a panacea for loneliness. Nothing makes for friendship like effort together in a common cause. Join those who are rallying around some worthy idea or effort and you will have no time for loneliness.

CHILD BEHAVIOR

Look for the causes, rather than the results, when children do wrong, if you want to help them to build character. You may find that the child got in wrong company, that he was weak willed, that he was undernourished and too hungry, that he was ill and nervous and fretful and not himself, that he is not getting enough sleep, that he had adenoids or bad tonsils, and from his weakness is getting the failure habit and an inferiority complex which leads him to do unusual things to console himself.

If a child cannot attract favorable attention from those whose approval he craves, he is likely to do something wrong to give vent to his desire for attention of some kind, figuring that evil notoriety is better than to be ignored. The delinquency of many a poor lad or lass is his last stand or desperate effort to show bravado and overcome some handicap. It may be a moral explosion caused by long repression and gloom over failure.

If the parent studies carefully the causes which lie back of the behavior of his child, he can usually find motives and urges or combinations of inciting circumstances which explain it.

It is almost certain to be the fault of the parent, rather than the child, if the child is developing wrong character tendencies. By removing these causes, the child will have a chance to be his best self. There is something inherently noble in the soul of every normal child and he will surprise you by growing good if you give him the proper environment.

Knowing the Scriptures

Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the school of religion of Yale University, in discussing the need for Bible teaching illustrated his point by telling of an examination paper recently turned in by a young lady in a educational institution, who was asked to tell what she knew about "Magna Carta." Her answer was that Magna Carta was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, who was seriously wounded. His wife hearing of the incident, immediately went to him, picked up his gun, took his place in the battle, and said, "Shoot if you must, this old gray head but I will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

It is not too great a travesty on the knowledge of the Bible commonly found.

BYLLESBY NEWS FEATURES THIS TERRITORY

Some excellent publicity for this territory has resulted from the August issue of the Byllesby Monthly News, published by Byllesby Engineering and Management Corporation of Chicago and distributed to stockholders of the Byllesby interests throughout the world. The issue features the new Prospect No. 2 hydro-electric power development of The California Oregon Power Company and gives an interesting report of the progress being made on this new power project which will be the largest of its kind in the state of Oregon. The front cover carries two fine photographs of the Prospect developments and the main article is illustrated with a photo showing how the plant will look when completed.

Another item of special interest concerns The Volt Annual recently published by The California Power Company. This item speaks very highly of the Copco booklet and quotes several interesting paragraphs from The Volt. It is concluded by the following paragraph:

"A comprehensive highway map, and a map of the territory served by The California Oregon Power Company are featured in this book, copies of which may be obtained on request from the Company's office at Medford, Oregon."

That the above publicity has accomplished some real results is evidenced by the scores of requests which have been pouring into the Copco Publicity Department. Letters have been received from readers of the Byllesby Monthly News from all over the United States asking for a copy of The Volt Annual and in many cases the writers stated that they were interested in this territory as a future home. Needless to say, Copco has already furnished these prospective settlers with copies of The Volt Annual and will also follow up this effort with other literature of similar nature in an endeavor to attract these people to a future residence in "Copco land."

Camel

The cigarette preferred by experienced smokers

In the remarkable growing popularity of the cigarette, many brands have bid for favor, but Camel continues to lead by billions.

Quality put it there—quality keeps it there.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.
