The price paid for milk by the cheese factory will be based on the San Francisco butterfat market. It varies according to the butterfat in the milk. The local price was 17c and the San Francisco market 21c yesterday. The cheese factory will help anyone to buy cows. If a person will pay one-third down, the factory will pay the balance and a small payment will be taken out of the checks every month until the cows are paid for. Good cows can be bought for from $65 to $75 a head. Up to date the cheese factory has made 2000 pounds of cheese or about 450 pound a day. They have been short of milk cans and cannot get all their milk yet. They expect to be running full blast in a few days.

Mr. C. L. Hawkins and son from Klamath Falls were in town taking orders for seed potatoes. He said the ground was frozen 16 inches deep in December and hasn't thawed out yet. Mrs. Musty spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Belle Davis in Medford.

Jacobson and Jensen, the highway contractors, are the same contractors who worked here from 1907 to 1913. They put in the water and sewer system here and in Jacksonville. Also worked in Medford. They boarded at the old Dunlap hotel then and now Mr. Jensen boards at the Valandra. Mr. Jensen said the work on the present highway must be finished by the 15th of June. ## TWICE in a WHILE

"grow in grace and good works,"

But we got a lot of fun out of the fact that a certain editor, whom we are not supposed to name, and his staff was so darned busy with "good government" ideas and other things that a mere meeting of a thousand substantial farmers and dairymen from all over the entire county, together with a lot of prominent business men of all the cities of the valley, was too insignificant to rate even a four line local in the "leading newspaper of all Southern Oregon!" And still some folks think that's a "real newspaper."

But say, folks, do you know it's funny how many men we run across who made that wild goose chase to Alaska along about 1900 or thereabouts. The woods are full of them.

And speaking of Alaska, can you beat this? In the spring of 1903, just thirty years ago, this writer went to Nome on the old steamer Ohio. After 13 days at sea we landed in Nome on the 16th of June. Next day we hiked out to camp on the Snake river. But for the first few miles we rode on the most fearfully and wonderfully made railroad then known to man. The tracks were laid on top of the tundra and later a bit of gravel from the beach was hauled out and put on the ties to keep them from blowing away. The engine was a small upright boiler mounted on a handcar, with vertical pistons like a hoisting engine. Instead of a pullman we rode on a baby fiat car, sitting sideways and letting our feet hang. Just a few days ago we ran across the man who built that Northernmost railroad, and while we refrain from giving his name away, he is a resident of this city. Verily, this is a small old world.

Local Man Appointed Distributor for New Motor Car Unit

Official announcement has been made of the appointment of C. Grimes, Central Point, as distributor for this district way re of Charter Starter Drive, an improved motor-car unit which proved sticks or jams, even in the coldest weather.

This brand-new mechanical development is manufactured by the Burgess-Norton Mfg. Co., of Geneva, Ill. According to C. M. Burgess, president of this company, former chief of the National Standard Parts Association, the lives of more than 400 American automobilists, killed last year in railroad-grade-crossing "stalls" might have been saved if universal public acceptance of this new feature had been effected.

"Emergencies created by starting through jamming or sticking at moments when life or death depends upon sureness in operation have revealed the fallacy of utilizing inefficient equipment in motor-car operation," he said.

"For many years engineers have wrestled with this problem. The object has been to discover a starter that cannot stick, is simple, quieter, quicker and surer in functioning, and includes interchangeable features permitting switching to motor-cars on the road without change to engine or starting motor.

"In Charter Starter Drive an answer to this problem has been found."
