Mr. H. P. Jewett who was called to Salem on account of the illness and death of his mother last week, returned home Sunday evening. We join his many friends in heart-felt sympathy in his sorrow.

The live-wire, progressive and forward-thinking business men of your city are the type of men who believe in newspaper advertising. Newspaper advertising gives them an inspiration to do greater things and solves the problem of a quicker turnover of stocks.

Mary Jane Beebe is helping Mr. Isaacson in his office work. Miss Grace Hermanson, who was formerly in his office is attending Normal in Ashland.

The Relief Corps met Saturday. A nice lunch was served by Mesdames Yekel, Minnick and Roy Anderson of Medford. Visitors were Ethel Weed and Mrs. Pickle of Medford.

The first air trip from Medford to Lakeview was made Monday, Oct. 15. The new air line is managed by Bill Randall and will make daily trips. Rates are reasonable and gives us air connection with eastern Oregon.

The Relief Corps will hold a Halloween party Monday night, Oct. 29 in the Walker dance hall. Every one is invited to come and assured a good time. There will be a fish pond, country store, pumpkin pie chili beans and coffee. There will also be entertainment during the evening.

The Missionary Circle of the Christian church met at the home of Mrs. Viola Lampman, Friday. An instructive and pleasant afternoon was spent.

Mrs. Guy Tex is home for a few weeks putting things in order for the winter after which she expects to return to Prospect until after the New Year.

FOR RENT—Nice 4 room modern home, $12.50 per month. See J. O. Isaacson.

The post office has received a new duck stamp to be placed on hunter's licenses. This stamp will cost $1.00 and will be used for bird refuges. It will be used everywhere from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Old timers can remember when geese and ducks were so plentiful that farmers hired men and boys to watch the fields and shoot them in order to save their crops from destruction.

Mrs. Kenneth Beebe left with friends at Ashland Wednesday for Los Angeles where she will visit her sister in Hollywood for three or four weeks.

C. Pink Thomason returned Tuesday from the headwaters of Mill creek with one of the biggest deer of the season, a buck weighing more than 200 pounds. Herb Upton was his companion on the hunt. They report that the storm sent the deer to lower feeding grounds.

Fred Hesselgrave received a letter from J. C. Robnett at Portland saying that Mr. Alexander had requested him to write in regard to Mr. Alexander's condition. Mr. Robnett says that he has called on Mr. Alexander three times in three days and finds him doing nicely and that the nurses say he is showing some improvement daily and that the doctors report he will get well.

Mrs. A. Moore Hamilton and young son, Alexander Moore, Jr., left the Sacred Heart hospital Monday for their home on Crown avenue in Medford.

Probably the prize hunting accident took place when a man was taken for a chipmunk and shot painfully but not seriously. What a hunter that bird must have been. If he were out after elephants he never would see anything big enough.

Mervyn Gleason shot a buck with a freak set of horns this last week. One side had four prongs perfectly normal, the other side had one prong about the same size and shape as a duck's bill.

Mrs. Jennie White who has taught the Climax school the past five years, returned Thursday, October 18, to her home in Central Point.

Feed Survey Shows Shortage Over Nation

Ever since the devastating drought of last summer every person in this country has been vitally interested in the food and feed question. The Agriculture Department has assured us that there will be no food shortage, though we will have to switch to other diets to take the place of those favorites which perhaps may be scarce. The feed situation has been regarded as much more serious. This, of course, directly affects the stockman and farmer. But it indirectly affects every American because there is no feed for our animals and there will be no animals for meat.

The nation's total feed and forage supply, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, is sufficient to provide only a little more than a subsistence ration for livestock in drought areas and rations below normal in others if the present number of animals are maintained. At the request of the Secretary of Agriculture the bureau made a special feed and livestock survey as an aid in planning to meet the drought emergency. This survey in general confirmed earlier estimates of the effect of the drought on the feed and livestock situation. But due to the corn-hog program, the cattle and the sheep buying program, etc., by early winter the number of meat animal units is expected to be only 80 per cent of that on farms on the corresponding date last year. In fact the total number of meat animals on farms at the end of this year will be the smallest in 35 years.

Regarding feed grains the survey showed total supplies on farms on September 1 as being estimated at 57,629,000 tons, of which about 3,000,000 tons will necessarily be diverted to industrial uses. But feed grains will be supplemented by about 6,000,000 tons of commercial by-product feed, making a net feed-grain and mill-feed supply for feeding purposes of about 60,000,000 tons. The combined number of livestock and poultry farms at the start of winter is estimated by the bureau at 115,449,000 grain consuming units. To carry this number of animals until new crops will be available, on rations ranging from only slightly above maintenance in the drought states to somewhat below normal in the states having more adequate feed and to allow for seed and a minimum carryover there would be required, it is stated 63,765,000 tons of feed grain and commercial feed. This leaves an indicated shortage of 3,000,000 tons of feed grains below requirements for the reduced ration.

Allowing for similar reduced rations of hay and other roughage, requirements for the feeding season are placed at 93,067,000 tons of hay or its equivalent, or about 1,600,000 tons more than the apparent supply. But this deficit may be partially met by greater use of corn stover. The survey also showed that farmers' intended purchases of feed were much in excess of intended sales. These two intentions, it was stated, can be harmonized only if those intending to buy should materially reduce their purchases, and those having surplus for sale should change their feeding plans so that they may have additional supplies to sell. Referring to the feed price situation, the bureau says that prices of feed grains have already advanced to a level relatively high compared with livestock prices.

Shelter Belt Project Started in Midwest

In spite of all the recently advanced arguments against the practicability of the Great Plains Shelterbelt Project and of Comptroller General J. Raymond McCarl's decision withholding the original $15,000,000 allotted for it, it now appears as if the project will be pushed through. At any rate preliminary work on the 1,000-mile tree belt has already begun and is being pushed with the $1,000,000 of Emergency Relief Funds allotted for it. Since the project represents a progressive experiment to ameliorate adverse natural conditions the full result of which cannot yet definitely be stated says the Forest Service, the $1,000,000 now available will be concentrated largely on works of an explanatory character. Plans and methods will be developed for extending the work on such scale as Congress may decide.

General location of the shelterbelt will be within the 20-to-25-inch rain fall strip extending from North Dakota to western Texas, and at an elevation of 1,500 to 2,000 feet above sea level. Technical foresters will assist in establishing the exact location. Administrative offices for the project have been established at Lincoln, Nebr. Forest Service research men at the Lake States Forest Experiment Station at St. Paul, Minn., are working on the technical phases of the program for establishing trees of the kind capable of surviving the rigorous climatic conditions of the Great Plains.

Ted Smith of McCoud visited his mother, Mrs. Smith Tuesday and Wednesday.
