THE SUICIDE BRIGADE

There seem to be a good many people in this country who don't care much for living but who would be the first to be aghast if accused of it. For no reason at all, they are constantly and cheerfully risking their necks—and yours.

This group of citizens—who total hundreds of thousands—constitutes our reckless, ignorant and irresponsible motorists. Consciously or unconsciously possessed of the idea that their abilities are not second to those of the daredevils of the race tracks, they make a practice of driving faster than the law allows, even though they are going nowhere in particular and have all the time in the world to get there. They weave in and out of traffic—if they waited until the roadway was clear for passing, they'd lose a precious second or so. They drive on the wrong side of the road. They have a contempt for traffic lights and signals, which were obviously created for less gifted mortals. They laugh at the rumored perils of hills and curves, and take extreme pleasure in passing on them. When their brakes go bad and their steering and lighting systems falter, they put off repairs until some distant tomorrow—they'll certainly be able to get by until then without a mishap. And so it goes, down the entire list of acts of commission and omission that cause our toll of 35,000 automobile deaths per year.

The rest of us wouldn't have any kick coming if the suicide brigade risked their own lives only—that, after all, would be their prerogative. But they menace us as well—menace everyone and everything which uses the streets and highways. The innocent suffer along with the guilty—and, unless these drivers are curbed, each of us runs an excellent chance of being eventually numbered among the victims of the suicide brigade.

A FAIR BREAK FOR ALL

Throughout the country, groups of consumers are rising in protest against high prices, notably those charged for milk, meat and other agricultural products.

In many cases, these protests are doubtless justified—but there is danger that a misunderstanding of actual conditions may cause people to become inimical toward the farmer's desire to obtain a fair selling price for his goods. That desire is the underlying principle in the work of all our great agricultural cooperatives. High prices charged at retail don't necessarily mean that the actual producer gets even profitable prices. Giving a farmer fair prices doesn't mean that the consumer is going to be stung. In the case of most commodities, the final selling price is many times the price paid at the farm. The rest of the cost represents profits and charges occurring along the distribution line.

Many authorities believe that distributors and other middlemen get too much of the selling cost of products—while the farmer gets too little. The purpose of the co-ops is to equalize this—to see that everyone gets a fair deal and that none make an excessive profit. Once that is achieved, farmers will make money—and the consumer will get stable, quality products for a fair and reasonable price. That is in the interest of the entire nation, which in normal times, is largely dependent on farm purchasing powers for the money that keeps factories going, provides jobs in our cities, and maintains pay rolls.

STATESMANSHIP SHOULD TRANSCEND POLITICS

On April 19, United States Senator McNary of Oregon said: "What the country needs more than anything else is rest, reassurance and confidence. All would profit by this happy eventuality."

Speaking at the recent Founder's Day Exercises of the University of Virginia, Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson said: "The American people will insist, with Jefferson and Wilson, that their national government shall be content with its constitutional role as arbiter of just and definite laws, proceeding from the people and enacted by their duly elected representatives."

These statements differ only in the growing weariness of American people, of all parties and classes, with experiments and "self serving" political schemes which are actually retarding, rather than advancing, recovery.
