

Skates Ring on Ice as Hockey Teams Battle

American Workers Stage "Stay-In" Strike in Plant

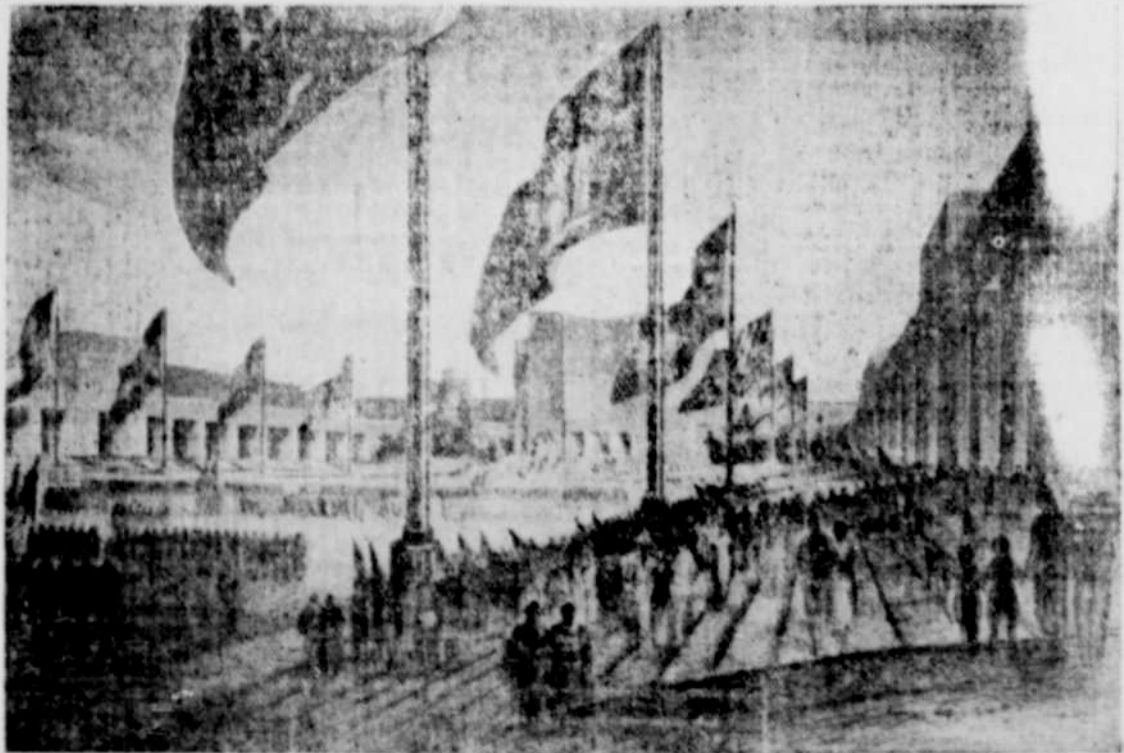

Emulating the example of industrial strikers in France a few months ago, approximately 1,000 workers in an automobile plant in South Bend, Ind., held the fort during a recent strike. While the operations of the plant were suspended, sweethearts and friends passed food into the workers who chose to remain inside the plant.

Fifth "Philadelphia" Is Launched for U. S. Navy

The Philadelphia navy yard, appropriately, was the scene of the recent launching of the light cruiser "Philadelphia"; fifth naval vessel to fly the U. S. flag under that name. Mrs. George H. Earle, III, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania, sponsored the new craft, that is seen here sliding into the water for the first time.

WHERE STATES MAY EXHIBIT AT NEW YORK F.

NEW YORK, (Special).—When in 1939 the residents of the several states and territories visit the New York World's Fair, they will find their official representatives and the "home" exhibits in the "Hall of States", shown here at the right in a first drawing of the "Plaza of Governments", ceremonial centre of the $125,000,000 international exposition.

The quadrangle will be large enough to permit such exercises as the massing of the flags of the states or of the colors of the world—while tens of thousands of spectators watch from the vantage of the broad flights of steps which form one architectural feature of the many already planned by the Fair Corporation.

In the background is the proposed "Federal Hall" and, at the left, a range of other Government buildings. The principal approach to the great Plaza will be from the direction of the "Thematic Centre" of the Fair, over an extraordinarily broad avenue lined with row upon row of grown shade trees flanking low water basins and cascades.

AGRICULTURAL AMERICA TO HONOR CENTENNIAL OF JOHN DEERE'S SELF-SCOURING STEEL PLOW

June Ohrstrom examines what is left of one of the first three plows made by John Deere who in 1837 gave to the world the self-scouring steel plow. The 100th anniversary of this historic event will be celebrated in 1937. The inset photograph is of John Deere.

MOLINE, ILL.—National honors will be accorded by agricultural America throughout 1937 to John Deere in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of his steel plow which ushered in a new era of progress for the prairie states and agriculture in general.

It was in a little blacksmith shop in Grand Detour, Illinois, in 1837 that Deere fashioned and gave to the world the self-scouring steel plow. This achievement, hailed as one of the most important contributions to modern agriculture, will be honored in thousands of small and large communities with "John Deere Centennial Celebration" days, with community leaders and farmers participating.

Deere was born in Vermont in 1804 and came to Grand Detour in 1827, where he established a blacksmith shop. He heard the farmers complain that the sticky soil, while rich in fertility, gummed their primitive plows and made plowing virtually impossible.

Deere applied himself to the problem, and one day, while in a sawmill, he noticed a broken steel saw blade. As he contemplated its smooth, gleaming surface, an idea took shape in his mind.

Obtaining the blade, the 33-year-old blacksmith labored carefully and long and finally produced the history-making plow. In the presence almost of the entire community and settlers from far and near Deere hitched a horse to his gleaming plow and began a triumphal march up and down the test field.

This was the only plow produced that year; eight were hammered out the next year, and business grew until in 1842, when the demand became too great for his slender resources and he took into partnership Major Leonard Andrus. In 1847 Deere decided he wanted better transportation and sources of supply, so he relinquished his partnership, moved to Moline and established the John Deere plow works.

Today the John Deere organization still maintains headquarters at Moline but from the original small plant has grown an internationally famous farm implement house whose products, covering the entire gamut of farm machinery, are in use all over America and in every part of the world.

Old Letter Found

PWA Writer

Portland, Dec. 18, 1936.—Alfred Segsworth, field worker for the historical records survey, WPA writers' project, in listing source material for Oregon history in Jackson county discovered three fragments of an old letter, one of them being widely separated from the others. He pieced the letter together, and found it to be from the United States Treasury to Col. John E. Ross. The text concerned a shipment of beef which Col. Ross had furnished the Oregon-California battalion for the Rogue River Indian Wars. Upon the date mentioned, Sept. 7, 1853, Ross had furnished the battalion with beef valued at $2238.60, a claim for which the treasury allowed. Thomas D. Ross, of Central Point, son of the man to whom the letter was directed now owns the fragments.

TOES AND TOES

"I'm afraid I have ptomaine. Who's a good doctor to see?" "Tomaines! Oh, for anything the matter with my toes I always call on a chiropodist."

UP-TO-DATE

"Those Newriches are dread illiterate." "Yes; they are much more familiar with the parts of an automobile than with the parts of speech."

OVERWORKED

"The only objection that I have to golf is that it sometimes comes a trifle wearisome." "But you don't play the game." "No, but I have a friend who does."

ARITHMETIC

"You want to know how easy it is to find out." "How?" "Ask her, then double it."

"Lay down, dog, lay down!" "He doesn't understand you, man, don't you see he's a Boston bull."

INOCULATION

Jane — Even typhoid and consumption can be caught from kissing, Mr. Rash! Rash—I've taken the preventive treatment for both, Miss Jane.

EFFICIENT SERVICE

Waiter — Why so happy, Sir? Diner—I just found a fly in my soup.

FASHIONABLE

"My, these folks keep a nice dog."
