INSULTING AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE

Chronic deficits mean but one thing—insolvency. And whether it concerns an individual, a business or a nation, insolvency denotes ruin, inexorable and final.

The federal government has not balanced its budget for nearly a decade. It has reached the "chronic deficit" stage. The politicians, although they feel that it is dangerous to try to seize any more of the people's wealth in the form of taxes, cannot resist the temptation to spend more and more borrowed public money on the plea that the country is wealthy and have no fear of a huge debt! Such a plea is utterly false. It is an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

Of course the country is wealthy. If it were not, the squandering officeholders would have wrecked it long ago. But this wealth admittedly cannot all be confiscated in the form of taxes to pay the debts of government. The extreme limit of this kind of seizure has about been reached—hence government tax income is nearly at the maximum until the day when more wealth is created.

The only alternative is to decrease expenses, if insolvency of the federal government is to be avoided.

THE MOST DANGEROUS PLACE

Believe it or not—the most dangerous place you can be in at home! According to the National Safety Council, the principal causes of deaths from home accidents last year were divided as follows: falls, 17,500; burns and explosions, 5,600; poisonings, 1,700; firearms, 800; mechanical suffocation, 1,000; poison gases, 1,100. The grand total was 32,500 deaths—ninety out of a hundred of which were unnecessary, and could have been easily prevented.

The Red Cross, in company with other safety organizations, has been carrying on a drive to awaken the public to the danger of home accidents, and to show how hazards may be easily removed and avoided. Take a look around your own home. Is there a loose rug at the top of a staircase? It may easily cause a fall that will result in long agony in the hospital, or death. Can unlock-medicine cabinets be reached by children? If so, they are in imminent danger of fatal poisoning by such a common first-aid accessory as iodine. Are guns kept unloaded and out of reach of amateur hands?

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM"

Fleeing a tornado near Clyde, Texas, parents of these babies were killed, their automobile tossed a quarter-mile away. Hours later a telephone lineman heard a child's whimper in a roadside ditch. There he found 3-year-old Jesse Donald Rutledge, water up to his chin, holding his 3-month-old brother Daryl's head above water. Relatives being unable to care for the orphans, Red Cross workers arranged a maintenance fund to support them until they are 16. A Texas college promised scholarships and ranchmen started a herd of cattle for their benefit. The Red Cross will help the boys make adjustments as they grow older.

You can think of many more such vital safety questions. When you do, answer them at once—and not by guesswork, but after a rigorous investigation of every room in your home. And once you've eliminated hazards, keep them eliminated. Remember that a home that is safe today may be filled with dangers tomorrow.

Keep safety in mind at all times—if you want to keep your name and the name of your loved ones off the future lists of home accident victims.

Central Point High To Have School Dances

A large group of students presented themselves at a recent meeting of the school board, with the request for school dances. Several parents were also present, along with other interested citizens of Central Point.

The reasons for school dances and ways in which the dances should be conducted were discussed and evidently met the approval of the school board, for the morning of November 1, the following notice appeared on the bulletin board:

"Consent has been granted by the school board for the formation of a club for social dancing for those interested in this activity. This club is to be sponsored by a group of interested parents and with faculty supervision. All dancing in connection with the school is to be confined to the activities of this organization. Further details will be issued as soon as they are worked out. This arrangement is made with the understanding that the activities of this organization shall in no way take the place of other social activities usually carried on by the school.
