Grain Insurance

During the harvesting season fires in grain fields are almost of daily occurrence. They originate from sparks from locomotives, from cigars and cigarette stumps and matches, carelessly dropped in the field or by the roadside; from squirrel poison (phosphorus), trucks and tractors backfiring, and from many other accidental causes.

The destruction of the crop is swift and complete; in an hour's time or less, a year's labor, the money expended, and the profit about to be realized, may be realized, may be swept away. The question to every farmer is, can you afford to meet such a loss without insurance when the rate is so low?

Our policies cover grain uncut, cut, in shocks, in stacks and in sacks. Call 77.
