CENTRAL POINT AMERICAN, CENTRAL POINT, OREGON

Pointers Continue

It seems to me that the referees must have getting all winded from last year's effort to call every foul that they saw. Because this year there seems to be less whistle blowing with the result that more rough games are in evidence than there have been for several years. Some day one of those basketball games might get too rough with serious injuries to some of those players. I think the referees better be a little more careful this year and call them just the same as they did last year. Of course it is very annoying at time to have too much tootings but it's far better to save youth than to have crippled ones.

I stated in the past that it pecked my eyes up to see that Blasing was in the starting lineup. After seeing him play in two games I understand why he has been chosen to start. He's a ball player. Though at times he was too jittery and missed many a shot, he showed promise of being a real player. There are some rights that he is hotter than the dickens at playing and some nights not too hot, but I can say one thing about him, and that is that he is always pretty steady on defense work making him pretty valuable to the team

--0--Looks like I am giving too much compliments to one player, but there are other players on the team that are very good. Such as Myers, Holland, Beebe, Williams and Pinkham. But they have been through hard campaigns which give them very much experience while Blasing has not been through the mill. After several more games under his belt. he's gonna be all right. -0---

Things seem to quiet down since the announcement that Copco is going to do some repairs on the Gold Ray dam. For a while there has been some agitation that Copco do something about rebuilding the fish ladders. I hope that they are not going to just let things go by. It is time that all sportsmen's clubs force some attention on the fish commissions or government agencles.

-----Way back in 1908 the fish ladder at Cazadero dam on Clackamas river was washed out and ever since there have been rows after rows over the failure of the Portland Young, is ahead by several points. General Electric company to build Grangers in group one are urged by a new ladder. Now the people admit that it was not the faults of the P.G. & E. that the ladder has not been built because it was due to the Acheivement Awards fact that fish and game commission ers, the United States bureau of fisheries, and THE SPORTSMEN couldn't get together, first on the need for the ladder, and, the second, on the type of the ladder to be installed.

In the main event the first stringers defeated powerful Medford Hi sophomores 29 to 18. It was another of those rough games that kept the referee busy in calling fouls on the teams though only one player went out on personal fouls.

Tomorrow (Friday) night at high school gym the Pointers will tangle with Kerby Hi school, which will be the end of the first half of the scedule.
