By K. D. P.

For quite a time I have been unable to express my opinion of the non-resident fishing license fee and I have racked and racked my brain in an effort to express my belief. But I hit upon an editorial that absolutely explains my view. The editorial was printed in the Morning Oregonian of last Tuesday. After reading this article you will understand why there are so many who are opposed to the special non-resident fishing license fee. Here is the article:

NO FISH TO SPARE AT CUT-RATE

Pray do not be puzzled if the average holder of a resident's license to fish in Oregon waters glumly refrains from uttering ringing huzzahs, on reading that there is a bill in the legislature which proposes trading trout and salmon to the tourists as an inducement to linger in our state. To be sure, the game fish of the state belong to all the people of the state; nevertheless it is true that it is resident license revenues which prevent them from fading away. And though we like the tourist, and cry them welcome, the fishing isn't so good that we should insist on them helping us make it poorer.

Visitors from other states already are privileged to obtain licenses permitting them to fish two days for $2. The new bill is a whole lot more hospitable. For another four-bits it would extend the license to a ten-day period. The visitor from a sister commonwealth could thereupon proceed to make the most of his cut-rate license, and, with nothing urgent on the agenda except angling, the odds are that if he knew the butt-end of a rod from the tip he would get his money's worth. A great many Oregon anglers, who buy licenses annually, probably do not fish ten days each year. As though to admit that there is something inequitable about this cut-rate license for tourists, the bill provides that Oregon residents can also obtain one of the ten-day licenses for $2.50. That's nice—or is it?

A great many people will on reflection agree with nearly all Oregon anglers in the opinion that our game fishes are not and ought not to be considered a bargain-counter stock in trade for tourist attraction, or a premium for extended visits. The existing vacation license is reasonable and hospitable, but more than this would be obviously unfair to the resident angler who buys a license regularly, and who is the mainstay of the revenues which provide hatcheries, enforcement and administration of a peculiarly precious yet none too securely established natural resource. Measures of fish conservation continually are adopted with but little if any protest from Oregon anglers. If these measures mean anything, as we think they must, they constitute proof that Oregon has no surplus of game fish to offer as a special inducement to tourists in search of piscatorial surprise sales.

Stamp Plan Meeting Held at Medford

Mass meetings all food retailers in Coos, Curry, Douglas, Jackson, Josephine and Lane Counties will be held next week to discuss details of operation of the Food Stamp Plan which will be inaugurated in the six south-western Oregon area on January 28.

Mass meetings of food retailers are scheduled for the following dates and places: January 27, Eugene, Oregon at the Circuit Court Room of the Court House; January 28, Grants Pass, Oregon, Circuit Court Room; January 29, Medford, Oregon at Court House Auditorium; January 30, Roseburg, Oregon, at Circuit Court Room; January 30, Gold Beach, Oregon, at the Circuit Court Room and January 31 at Coquille, Oregon at the Circuit Court Room. These meetings will be held at 8:00 p.m.

It is essential that all food retailers attend the mass meeting most convenient to them in order that they may be informed as to their part in the plan.

According to M. Louis Belangie, Area Director of the Surplus Marketing Administration, federal agency which administers the Food Stamp Plan, the volume of new food purchasing power represented by surplus food stamps is equal to a new industry with a sizable payroll coming to each of the counties.

"To illustrate the importance of Food Stamp Plan to the farmers, retailers and public assistance families in the six county area," said Mr. Belangie, "we can take the amount of surplus food stamps which will be used in the area usually as estimated at $274,000. It would take a new industry with the yearly payroll of $870,000 in the area to result in $274,000 being spent for food."

UNEQUAL TIRE WEIGHT

A badly worn tire on the wheel opposite a new tire may cause shimmy due to unequal weight, according to the emergency road service of the Oregon State Motor association. A four-ply tire on one side and a six-ply on the other may also cause the car to sway and shimmy.

LOW GASOLINE MILEAGE

Low gasoline mileage is not always caused by faulty carburation, according to the emergency road service of the Oregon State Motor association. Some of the more common causes of low mileage are: under-inflated tires; dragging brakes; faulty ignition; poor compression; clogged carburetor screen, and incorrect spark gap.
