IN CASE OF BURNS

Medical science often takes time out to explain some of the less intricate curatives to the general public—curatives which anyone can safely use in case of emergency. Arlie L. Moon, M. D., tells in a recent article in Life & Health, the proper treatment for burns: "In the early treatment of mild burns a soothing burn ointment may be quickly applied on gauze dressing and placed over the affected part and held in place with a bandage. One of the newer remedies which is being applied to burns, with apparently very excellent results, is cod liver oil. The vitamins present in this preparation seem to have some effect on the skin, which hastens the healing process.

"If a burn is at all extensive or severe it is best not to apply anointment or any greasy material, as the physician may wish to make use of a 5 per cent tannic acid spray to the affected area, which forms a tough, dark coating over the skin and protects it from the air and hastens the healing process. This preparation is not effective when an ointment has been applied, and the greasy material must first be removed, which is a difficult, painful process. However, baking soda may be moistened with water, which has preferably been boiled, as this renders the water sterile and helps to prevent infection. The water should be warm, and the moistened baking soda should be placed on gauze dressings and applied to the affected area. This will give considerable relief. If the burned area covers a considerable portion of the body, the person may be placed in a tub of warm water, which will give great relief as an emergency measure."

In very recent years, the medical profession has made remarkable progress in the treatment of burns—many severe cases which would have proved fatal not so long ago, are now saved, and disfiguring scars largely prevented. This is just one of the many chapters in the book of achievement of private medicine in this country.

EARNED TRIBUTE

United States Representative Clifford Davis of Tennessee, recently paid the fire insurance industry a well-deserved tribute for its splendid work in aiding national defense through fire defense.

Addressing the House, he said: "The National Board of Fire Underwriters has undertaken this work under a dollar-a-year contract at considerable expense to the capital stock fire insure companies that compose its membership, without any wish for reimbursement, but simply a desire to serve the best interests of the country."

"Its recommendations for safeguarding cantonments, supply depots, hospitals, naval properties, warehouses, terminals and shipyards—its plans for fire protection and defense were developed with the utmost thoroughness. As a result, when possession of Army cantonments was delivered to those in authority, fire losses amounting to less than $3,000 had been sustained in construction valued at more than $100,000,000."

"To a greater extent today than ever before wars will be won not alone on the battlefronts, but through the efficiency of services of supply so necessary to our fighting forces. Conservation of production facilities and supplies is a vital part of production itself, and the services in this respect which are being given so freely by the National Board of Fire Underwriters have a value far beyond our ability to estimate. It is fortunate that we have such an organization to which our country can look in times of stress."

It is work such as this, carried on quietly 24 hours a day, that is bringing ever nearer the time when American military and industrial power will be greater than that of all the dictators combined. It is work such as this that is conserving, not only material things, but that most precious of all elements—Time.

Woodrow Phillips is working at the Faber's Market and Gene Holt is in the Feed store while John Tharp is taking his vacation.

Foncy Leonard Back At Work Again

Foncy Leonard is back at his work again. He was called Monday to the Floyd Hart ranch to shoe the little pony and a riding horse. "On our mountain trip, the pony climbed over logs or what not that the big horses went over", said Mr. Hart, "stood the trip better, and came home fresher than any of the horses." Mr. Leonard carries a reputation for expert knowledge and workmanship in fitting and nailing horses' shoes. And can make the shoe by hand to fit the horse's need.

Howard District

By Mrs. Ella H. Leonard

Mr. and Mrs. Derby with their son and daughter, Dan and Joan, of San Leandro, California, stopped for several hours at the Foncy Leonard home Monday. They came to Oregon for their vacation and were eagerly anticipating seeing Crater and Diamond Lakes. They expected to cover Oregon as much as possible in the week's time allowed them. It was the first time the children (H.S. age) had ever seen cream skimmed from a pan of milk and a bowl of clotted cream. "We know we are going to get a lot of pleasure out of seeing the Oregon country," said the Derbys.

Stanley Gustin is working on a very heavy project in chemistry allotted to him as a summer's job by his college professor—a matter of chemical engineering. Stanley has a private laboratory where he has been conducting experiments several years, outside of school hours.

Mr. Gustin is house painting at Phoenix. During his hours at home, he has finished an outside fireplace which has both a broiler and an oven.

Mrs. Homer Brown and children Jeannette, Truman and Gene of Bremerton, Washington are visiting Mrs. Brown's daughter Opal and other friends in the valley. They are staying at the Rossel Motel cabin. Mrs. Brown reports that Mr. Brown is still busy all the time. They had met some friends from Medford. She states that there were people from every state in the union working there, some very nice people.
