Fair Visitors May See Foods Tested

State fair crowds may see right before their eyes the testing of hamburgers, butter, coffee cream, ice cream and milk served on the grounds during fair week, September 1 to 7, inclusive.

This will happen because for the first time in history the state department of agriculture (which operates the fair) will have a working exhibit on the fairgrounds at Salem. The department has chosen for its display part of the laboratory equipment and some of the weights and measures apparatus from the division of foods and dairies.

Actual official tests of the foods mentioned will be made in the laboratory on the grounds by A. H. Dewey, assistant chief chemist, and Ruth Ward, laboratory bacteriologist.

The department's weights and measures heavy duty testing truck and equipment will also be on exhibit, with A. A. Reed in charge. Both displays will be in the grandstand exhibit quarters.
