

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Womack were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Meadows on the Crater Lake highway near Medford, Sunday.

Loren Webster arrived Friday night for a short visit with his parents. He was held up at Portland on account of the high waters and came home on the plane. He had to leave Saturday evening. Lorne is making a fine record and will graduate soon. He is in the air corps in Canada and will soon have his wings. It depends somewhat on the weather as to how soon, as it requires 129 hours in the air.

Mrs. Eudora Bohnerts reports that the recreation club is having another entertainment for the soldiers at Camp White Sunday afternoon, January 17. All Central Point girls, who can attend, should call 197 and make arrangements for transportation. They should also come prepared to buy their supper. Watch for a more complete story on this next week.

A new lot, Levi Strauss Overalls at Faber's.

Carol Weidman is visiting her sister Mrs. Frank Thompson at Klamath Falls. Mrs. Thompson is teaching school.

Mr. Edward Innman is still at the hospital center at Ft. Louis.

W. J. Norcross is still in the hospital and doing nicely. It is not known just when she will be able to return home.

Mrs. Pearl Bonney is confined to bed with the flu.

City Recorder Guy Tex is ill at his home with the flu.

Mrs. Leatha Ward, who is teaching school in Chilquin, spent the Christmas holidays with her mother, Mrs. Hallie Hesselgrave and grandfather Mr. W. E. Alexander. Mrs. Ward's husband is in Iceland in defense work.

Mr. Woodrow Reich is expected to return home today from the hospital, where he has been having treatments for blood poison in his arm.

Little Bobby Green broke his arm before Christmas and they never realized it was broken until so late the doctor had to re-break it. He went to Medford this morning for a treatment.

Billy McMannama is at Farragut, Idaho, and likes it fine. He would be glad to hear from his friends.

Supported Prices to Vegetable Growers

Supported prices to growers for nine vegetables is a major feature of the government's 1943 canning vegetable program, designed to provide assistance to growers and processors in obtaining maximum production of processed vegetables.

So reports Robert B. Taylor of Adams, chairman of Oregon's USDA war board, whose organization is contacting canners and growers preparatory to recommending support prices for Oregon. Specific support prices, Taylor said, will be established for snap beans, corn, peas, tomatoes, beets and carrots for canning, dehydrating and quick-freezing; pumpkin and squash for canning, and cabbage for kraut.

These prices will be maintained through certification of processors who agree by contract to pay not less than the specified prices to growers, Taylor explained. The program is similar to the canned tomato and pea expansion program in operation last year.

Ceiling prices at processor levels will be established on the basis of grower support prices. A higher price will be paid certified canners for government purchases. Taylor emphasized that the government will not guarantee prices to growers, but will give every grower an opportunity to contract with a canner who will pay the approved prices.

Government purchases in 1943 for the armed forces and for shipment to allies under the lend-lease program will take more than half of the canned vegetables, nearly all of the dehydrated vegetables, and substantial quantities of quick-frozen vegetables, Taylor has been informed. If production sought under the program is obtained, about 70 per cent of the canned vegetables consumed by civilians during recent years will be available for their use from the 1943 packs.

Besides price supports for growers and processors, the vegetable program also includes orders allocating tin, rubber and glass containers to obtain maximum use of critical materials, price ceiling regulations, and a program to assist in securing needed supplies of labor.

Congratulations To
