

Many Jobs Offered To Ex-War Workers

With lumbering, transportation and food processing plants badly in need of workers, a fair proportion of those laid off by war industries should be able to find jobs. Because of V-J day coming in the midst of Oregon's busiest season, the unemployment load probably will not reach its height for several months. Officials of the Unemployment Compensation Commission made this analysis when asked to comment on benefit payments during the readjustment period. Administrator Silas Gaiser explained that the employment service through its 24 local offices is co-operating to handle any reasonable claims load.

"The employment service has listed thousands of jobs with canneries, railroads, lumber and logging firms and other industries," the administrator said, "they are prepared to offer work in accord with the displaced person's skill and experience."

"During this period, most workers should accept the best jobs available at prevailing wage rates. Some may have to return to pre-war occupations, even though the pay may be temporarily less. This difficult period ahead will require a maximum of patience and understanding."

In case the war plant layoffs come too quickly and there are not enough jobs to go around, the unemployment commission now has nearly $73,000,000 with which to tide workers over. Benefits of from $10 to $18 a week for from 5 to 20 weeks may be paid to eligible workers each year.

Unemployment claims may be filed against Oregon at any of over 1,500 employment offices throughout the country. An interstate exchange system has been built up to take care of migrants from any state or territory.

All-Risk Insurance Offered Ore. Growers

Federal all-risk crop insurance, now being offered to Oregon growers on 1946 wheat crops, has been strongly endorsed by the heads of two major farm organizations in the state, according to William J. Enschede, chairman of the state AAA committee. Closing date for applying for insurance on fall sown wheat is September 30.

Support of the program by all now and for possible future extension of insurance to other crops, is urged by Morton Tompkins, master of the Oregon State Grange, and by Ronald Jones, president of the Oregon Farmers Union.

In a letter to all subordinate and Pamosa grange masters, Tompkins said: "I feel strongly that all Grangers should be interested in seeing to it that the crop insurance program succeeds. If the program on wheat is successful, we can look forward to the day when weather, insects, fire, disease and flood are removed from the hazards of farming."

Pointing out that crop insurance is a part of the Farmers Union national agricultural program, Jones, in a letter to the presidents of all locals, declared: "If ever want crop insurance now is our chance to get behind this program and make it work while we have government support." He also stressed the self-sustaining mutual aspects of the program.

Both granges and union locals were urged by their state leaders to undertake sales agencies for federal crop agencies for federal crop insurance wherever possible. Such arrangements are being made in a number of counties, Enschede reported.

Navy Still Offering Training Program

Despite the end of the war, 17 and 18-year-old boys may still enlist in the Navy's famous V-5 flight training program, it was announced today by the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, 117 Marion St., Seattle, and 426 Park Bl., Portland.

Applicants must graduate from high school before Oct. 1 and be ready to go on active duty in the Navy Nov. 1. Enlistments, however, may close by Sept. 15.

"Aviation will play an important part in the post-war Navy to help assure this nation's security," said Lieut. Comdr. J. Green Jr., Director of naval officer procurement in the 13th naval district.

"The Navy feels that enlistment for flight training, which is equal to a $27,000 aeronautical education, ranks next in prestige to an appointment in the naval academy."

One year of college study is first on the list for every naval aviation cadet. That is followed by 26 weeks of pre-flight school, 16 weeks of primary flight training, and about 20 weeks of advanced flight instruction at Pensacola, Fla., or Corpus Christi, Tex. Graduates are commissioned officers in the naval or marine corps reserve and wear the Navy's coveted wings of gold.

Boys are urged by the Navy to write the Seattle or Portland offices for information or to come there for written and flight physical examinations. Applicants who live outside Seattle or Portland will be furnished round-trip transportation by the Navy if they meet the minimum qualifications.
