Musings

By the Editor

Howdy, folks! Here we are in our new shop, at last. Another of life's pictures is painted. Tonight we can heartily agree with Kipling:

"When earth's last picture is painted,

And the tubes are all twisted and dried;

When the oldest color has faded,

And the youngest critic has died—

We shall rest—and faith, we shall need it.

Lie down for an eon or two,

Till the Master of all Good Workmen

Shall call us to work anew."

At least the worries and tribulations which have almost driven us crazy (or at least more crazy than usual) for the last three months are over, at least for the present. We don't mean that the new shop is finished, by any means, for it is far from that, but the inside is done, at least far enough for us to move in.

Now the fun begins, trying to remember in which box we put things when packing up. You folks who have gone through a simple house moving will understand that. The only difference being that a print shop always gathers about four times as many small articles as the average family would in two life times. So don't expect to find a spik-and-span shop when you call on us—at least not for a couple of months or so.

For we want all our friends to come on down and see our new quarters. This writer has spent more or less of his time for over fifty years in print shops, large and small, in all parts of the Northwest. No wonder that he had pretty definite ideas as to just what a printer needs.

He, like all the rest of the printers, had often said, "just wait until I build MY shop, and I won't have this, or I will have that." Of course, when that time DID come, we couldn't do ALL the things we wished for, but we came as near as finances and the OPA would allow, with the result that we seriously doubt if there is a more convenient, better lighted, better ventilated, print shop in the state of Oregon than ours. At least we haven't seen one.

We know it won't be quite as convenient for people who happen to be down town to drop in as it was in our old location. But we hope you will not find it too bad and that you will continue to find your way to the headquarters of your newspaper. We shall continue to do our best to boost our town as a clean, homelike place to live in and we will need your help. There is one thing more—on account of being so busy with our building, we have sort of neglected keeping in as close touch with the affairs of the city as we used to do, but now that we are settled and can take more time off from our own affairs we will endeavor to get going again.

So remember the latch string is always out at The American office and also remember that we are located just a block and a half north of our old shop—NORTH Second street instead of South, as before. We haven't taken time to put up our sign yet, but you can see our building from Pine street—in fact we are looking right into Wilson's window as we write this. We are just across the alley between Manzanita and Laurel.
