Clover Support Price To Be Reduced

A ladino clover support price 15 cents a pound less than for 1945 is the new provision of the 1946 hay and pasture seed loan program most important to Oregon producers, points out E. Harvey Miller, chairman of the state PMA committee.

Under the 1946 schedule, top quality certified ladino clover seed will command a loan rate of $1.35, compared with last year's $1.50. More than 75,000 pounds of the 1945 crop were placed under loan by Oregon producers.

Loan rates for two other seed crops have been lowered one cent a pound to eight cents for biennial sweet clover and three cents for farm-stored sudan grass. Rates for other kinds of seed remain unchanged from 1945.

Unchanged are alfalfa, common at 33 cents and certified at 40 cents; alsike clover, 25 cents; red clover, common at 28 cents and certified at 34 cents; certified orchard grass, 15 cents; white clover, 50 cents.

These loan rates are for seed meeting basic germination and purity requirements. Appropriate discounts are provided for seed of lower quality. With the exception of sudan grass, loans will be made only on seed stored in approved warehouses. Details can be obtained from county agricultural conservation committees.

In addition to the support prices, extra returns are offered to producers who harvest any of three kinds of legume seeds for which increased production is urgently needed. Poundage payments of seven cents a pound for harvesting alfalfa and alsike clover and nine cents for red clover will be made through the 1946 agricultural conservational program with funds provided by congress to stimulate greater production.
