

Plans Set for 4-H Summer School

Plans are set for the 34th annual 4-H club summer school on the Oregon State college campus June 15th to 25th with an assured enrollment of 1800 young club members representing every county in the state. L. J. Allen, state club leader, has announced.

In addition to the club members a group of volunteer local 4-H club leaders and county extension agents will be on hand to instruct and supervise activities. Allen points out that all club members attending summer school this year will be present on scholarships provided by county, state, private and public organizations. The scholarships provide all or partial expenses, he adds.

Through a county quota system based on the number of completed 4-H club projects the summer school enrollment is limited to 1800. Otherwise, he says, the attendance would be several times that many. Facilities are not available to handle more.

Approximately 28 college fraternity and sorority houses in addition to the regular college dormitories and co-operative living groups are being made available to the 4-H summer school students. Girls living groups; boys organizations by at least will each be chaperoned by two women. Allen states that most of the chaperones are regular O.S.C. college students, many of whom are former 4-H club members.

To provide medical service, facilities of the college infirmary staffed with doctors and nurses will be available during the 10 day 4-H session. All 4-H summer school students will have received, prior to leaving home, official notification of the name and address of the living organizations to which they have been assigned. Thus, the youngsters will report directly to these organizations upon arrival in Corvallis, Allen explains.

First official meeting will be a get-together party Tuesday evening, June 15. As in previous years, classwork will occupy the morning hours, with assemblies and recreation making up the afternoon and evening programs.

Class Reunions to Feature School End

U. of O., Eugene, May 31—Class reunions will feature the seventy-first annual commencement weekend June 11, 12, and 13, at the University of Oregon, according to Lester E. Anderson, alumni director. June 12 has been designated as Alumni Day, he said.

Opening the activities of the week end will be the annual Pauline Potter Homer memorial tea in the library browsing room Friday afternoon. Saturday events will start with the traditional breakfast of the state association of University of Oregon women, when women of the 50-year class of 1898 and this year's senior women will be honored guests.

The semi-annual meeting of the Oregon Alumni association is slated for Saturday morning with a luncheon following in John Straub hall.

Outstanding event of Saturday is the ground-breaking for the Erb Memorial Union. This ceremony will be held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The president's reception for alumni will follow and in the evening class reunion dinners have been planned at local hotels. Graduates of '98, '08, '18, '28, and '38 will meet for these events.

Saturday evening will conclude with the Felling-Beekman orations. Dr. Henry N. Weiman, visiting professor of religion in the university, will address the graduates Sunday morning for the baccalaureate service, which will be held in McArthur court.

Open house is planned on the campus Sunday afternoon with museums and buildings open to visitors. The traditional flower and fern procession will also be a feature of the afternoon.

At 8 o'clock Sunday evening, more than 1100 seniors will form a procession for the Commencement exercises in McArthur court. Dr. H. K. Newburn, president, will deliver the charge to the graduating class.
