LET'S MAKE THIS HUNTING SEASON A SAFE HUNTING SEASON!

By C. A. Lockwood,
Oregon Game Director

With the opening of the deer hunting season in Oregon on October 1, close to 200,000 hunters will go afield. It is fine that so many will avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy this fine recreation however, the very numbers who will hunt place a heavy responsibility on each hunter. This is a responsibility that is manifold and one that must be assumed by all.

That each hunter must observe the game laws is obvious if these resources are to be maintained in the face of pyramiding pressure. Another responsibility, not quite so obvious, is that each hunter going afield is also responsible for maintaining the habitat in which game animals live. Fire must be in our minds constantly. How easy it is for just one small thoughtless act to destroy thousands of acres of deer food. One campfire left untended can destroy a whole watershed which, in turn, means not only loss of valuable timber but means loss of trout streams and loss of life-giving top soil as well. One cigarette stub flipped away can mean hundreds of starving deer.

Let's be extra cautious this year, whether we hunt in the forests or on the desert ranges, for fire means loss to all.

Our responsibility, however, does not stop here, for each hunter is carrying in his hands the greatest responsibility of all—the responsibility of life itself—the lives of our fellow men. Better that we never get our buck than to destroy a human life. During the hunting season in Oregon last year six people lost their lives from gunfire. Six people such as you and your loved ones were killed as the result of human carelessness. We all know that one fatality, even one accident, is just one too many. We must keep this in mind. We must handle our firearms with the greatest of care and never shoot until we are absolutely certain.

We ask your aid. We ask you to observe the game laws. We ask you to be careful with fire and above all we ask you to use your firearms with the greatest care. Let's make this season a safe hunting season!

GOLD HILL NEWS

With the stage show details completed, with a whole flock of turkeys in the fattening pen, and Queen candidates entering the final week in a whirlwind drive to earn the Wedgewood range, Bendix laundry, and Fowler water heater, interest has quickened in the First Anniversary Festival at Gold Hill Grange Saturday night, October 8th.

In the interest of clarifying certain debatable points, it is pointed out that no dance tickets will be sold in advance, only at the door, starting at 9 o'clock. No dinner—only tickets will be sold in advance, available for cash at the door. Children's plates will be 75 cents, and dinner starts at five o'clock, the show at seven o'clock, the dance at nine o'clock, and the awards to the winners will be made at ten o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hogan have sold their place on South 2nd street to Mr. and Mrs. Mel Cotton, who have taken possession of their new home here and the Hogan family with their mother, Mrs. Stella Fox, have moved to their new home on Poor-man's Creek up the Applegate country, and are equally pleased with their new home.

Mr. Howard Holden has resumed building on his three new business houses on Oak, will be a great improvement to see all those fine buildings, and there seems to be plenty of people wanting to rent in Central Point if there were places available.

The new roof on the Christian Church shows up very nicely from Main street and is a great improvement and was much needed.

Mrs. C. L. Munn had the misfortune to step on a toy on the floor and fall breaking her hip Sunday evening. She is in the Community hospital.

Mrs. Emory of Koshkonong, Mo., a sister of Jack and John Tharp, is visiting her brothers and families here. This is also her first visit to Oregon. At the same time Mrs. Jack Tharp's cousin of Richmond, Calif., Mrs. Verne Simmons, is spending a week with them, and to make it more interesting, the two ladies that are here visiting are old friends and are just having a wonderful time talking over old times.

Mr. E. F. Heinrich recently returned from Alhambra where he visited his wife and her mother, Mrs. Stine, who has been unable to return home on account of Mrs. Stine's health. Mr. Heinrich found the mother greatly improved and he is expecting them to return home soon.

We greatly regret having to report that Mrs. Bertha Bonney, formerly of Central Point, but now of Ashland, is seriously ill. She has been removed from the hospital there to the home of a friend.

Mrs. M. C. Gleason and son Jim were attending business in Klamath present in Prineville, Oregon where present in Pineville, Oregon where he is employed by the State Game Commission for the next few weeks.

Leaving the city Thursday are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hill, who will visit their two daughters and families in San Francisco.
