The Editor:

Suppose the mythical man from Mars came up to you some day and asked you if you were an American. You'd say "Yes", of course. Then suppose he asked you another question: "What is an American?" Perhaps your answer would be something like this—or maybe you can improve on it: "I'm an American," you'd say. "When I hear an airplane, I don't look around for the nearest bombproof shelter. I know that it's carrying people and goods for the purpose of peace time progress. I'm an American. I know that my newspaper and my radio will give me a fair picture of what's happening in the world, to the best of their ability. I send my children to school where the teachers aren't merely vassals of the State—where the facts that are taught my children help to make them better, more intelligent citizens."

"I'm an American. I can talk freely with my friends, expressing my own opinions on both political and non-political subjects, without the fear that there are spies who listen to my every word, and then report it to some high and secret tribunal."

You'd probably say these things and many more besides. And saying them would, in these troubled times, make you realize something else, so that you'd come to say just one thing more:

"I'M A LUCKY GUY—I'M AN AMERICAN!"
