To the Editor:

Your recent editorial "Squirrels" and your regrets that Oregon's Junior Senator can't devote more of his time to more important things, makes us wonder if you don't realize that there are two in this deal, both with important things to do.

Which reminds us of an instance in Central Point years ago, when a man operated what they then called a grocery and dry goods store, had a customer one day, a man who was head of one of the biggest enterprises in the valley. This man bought twenty-five cents worth of cigars, about half a dozen at that time, but had no change and said he would stop in in a few days and pay him. But after a month had passed the merchant saw him passing along on the plank sidewalk and went out and dunned him for the twenty-five cents. The man who was walking with a friend, replied indignantly, that this was a darned small matter to dun a man for. The merchant replied, yes, and it is a darned small matter to have to be dunned for.

Also this brings to mind an incident back in the 'days when fire blight first struck the orchards, an orchardist friend of ours was looking over his orchard accompanied by a blight expert with the idea of cleaning up the blight, when the visitor discovered a bird and her nest in a tree and told the owner he would destroy all these nests as the birds scattered blight. In answer the owner replied: "If I have to go around destroying all the birds nests, I'll go into some other business. The first of these loved fruit, the second, the little bird.

As to those who caused your editorial, one loved golf, the other our wild life. As to which is the most important to the welfare of the country to our mind it is six of one and a half dozen of the other, but neither, we believe, were trying to make the headlines, although they did as noticed Richard Neuberger's name in large type in the editorial column of the Central Point American.

Yours for a fair appraisal of what we see and read, and justice for both sides.—R. E. Nealon

Book Briefs

From Central Point
Public Library
By Evelyn Graham

The following books, with a spiritual message that speaks straight to the heart are recommended for this season's reading:

"My Spiritual Diary"

by Dale Evans (Mrs. Roy Rogers)

This book is a record of one soul's journey from heartache and defeat to the glory of ultimate victory. Here are excerpts from letters the author has written in her "Quiet Hours", or in the moments of rest between TV shots, or benefit performances. Here are glimpses into one of America's happiest homes situated in the heart of a supposedly pagan Hollywood.

"Peach with God"

By Billy Graham

The author explains in writing the book. "I am convinced that there is a great hunger of mind and thirst of soul on the part of the average man for peace with God. This book has been written for the man in the street. My purpose is to give him a clear understanding of a new way of life that was presented by an unknown Galilean two thousand years ago, and my daily prayer will be that in this hour of crisis, confusion, perplexity and bewilderment, this book will be used to bring you to peace with God."

"A Man Called Peter"

By Catherine Marshall

This is a biography of a young Scotsman of rare gifts who came to this country with a mere two weeks subsistence in his wallet. At the time of his death he had served many churches here and was the beloved Chaplain of the U. S. Senate. In this biography, written by his wife, Peter Marshall comes alive not only as an adored husband, but as a uniquely endowed man of God. This is an extremely inspirational book, written with grace and charm.
