Why do U. S. Army, Navy Marine Corps and Air Force Helicopters

USE TCP

and What does This Mean to you, Mr. Motorist?

SIMPLY THIS:

In a helicopter, lead and carbon deposits create a highly critical problem of power loss. TCP is used in the majority of military helicopters today because it has ability to overcome the power crippling effects of lead and carbon.

These same deposits are also the major cause of power loss in all automobile engines. By using Shell Premium with TCP, motorists can re-power their engines without mechanical overhaul before they have driven 400 miles.

You get all this in Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP without the cost of so called additives.

Remember, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP in the most powerful gasoline you can use in your Car.

Drive in today and say... "fill it up with Shell Premium with TCP." You'll be glad you did!
