

WHILE ON A VACATION recently, Lee Orvis of Rogue River fished in Yellowstone Lake where he caught the limit of these five cutthroat trout, averaging 16 inches. He caught other fish in other lakes and streams and the ocean too.

Knowledge is Power

1. WHICH FAMOUS STATESMAN WAS A CONCENTRATION CAMP INMATE?

2. HAVE ANCIENT GREEK OLYMPIC RECORDS BEEN BESTED?

3. IS THERE A CURE FOR HICCUPS?

(1) Dr. Leopold Figl, chancellor of Austria and recent visitor to the United States, spent five years in the notorious Dachau concentration camp. He was arrested in 1938 when the Nazis took over Austria. Guards whipped him with steel-threaded oxhide lashes. Once he was forced to stand 54 hours at attention in the open air with 3,000 other prisoners, until the last of six escaped prisoners had been recaptured.

Only his native toughness, his faith, and his will helped him survive the ordeal. Kees Van Hoek relates the story of Figl's life in the London Tablet.

(2) There's no telling. Take the pentathlon, which consists of the dash, broad jump, discus, javelin, and wrestling. The Greeks didn't even measure the jumps, the discus or javelin throws, but contented themselves with determining who had made the best mark and won the event.

The winner of the pentathlon, explains Richard M. Haywood in the August Catholic Digest, was determined by a system of scoring firsts, seconds, and thirds. The idea of keeping records, and the keen interest in record breaking is quite modern. It arises from the desire to attract a large paying public to athletic contests.

(3) Doctors have more than 200 methods of curing hiccups. Many of the folklore treatments sometimes work, reports Jack M. Swartout in Today's Health magazine. The most consistently beneficial, probably, is rebreathing air exhaled into a paper bag.

Paper bag rebreathing can cause fainting; if you do it, guard against falling. When you take back exhaled carbon dioxide into your lungs it stimulates the respiratory areas of the brain which are involved in hiccups.

Doctors apply the same principle when they place a mask over your face and have you breathe a mixture of carbon dioxide and oxygen.

LIVE OAK GRANGE THANK YOU

The Live Oak Grange of Rogue River wishes to thank the public for their support and cooperation in making the rummage and cooked food sale such a success.

Surprise packages prepared by Mrs. Maude Dengler and Mrs. Laura Douglas were won by Mrs. Shirley Dick and Mrs. Odagard.

There will be a Harvest Dinner October 18th, turkey and all the trimmings for a nominal charge. Keep the date in mind.
