

THE COAST MAIL.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF COOS CO. SATURDAY, AUG. 22, 1879.

Harbor of Refuge.

Since the visit of the Board of Engineers to the different points on the coast, to select a site for the proposed Harbor of Refuge, it has been the opinion of many, who believe there is no necessity for the work, that the engineers "will declare officially" that such a port on the Northwest coast is unnecessary, and would only be a useless expenditure of money on the part of the government.

Hon. J. H. Mitchell has written a communication to the Portland Bee, in which he says the Board has no jurisdiction in the matter, and consequently cannot report the construction of such a port unnecessary. "Congress after a thorough investigation of all the evidence, consisting of divers reports of different engineers of surveys made at different points, numerous memorials of our Legislature running through a number of years, petitions from thousands of our people, memorials of boards of trade, chambers of commerce etc., etc., determined by solemn act, to which the Executive gave his assent, that the interests of commerce required the construction of a breakwater and harbor of refuge at some point on our coast between the straits of Fuca and San Francisco, and appropriated $150,000 with which to commence the work, leaving but one question to be determined by the Board of Engineers, to wit: the selection of the proper point, the interests of commerce general and local being considered, at which it should be located.

If, therefore, the Board are able to make a selection, whether that be Coos Bay, Port Orford, Foulweather Tillamook, or the mouth of the Columbia, it seems to me that those interested more directly in other localities would not be acting consistently with the best interests of our State by saying or doing anything that would tend to defeat the whole enterprise, one that will cause millions of dollars to be expended on our borders within the next few years, for the simple reason that in their judgment the location should have been different.

Should the Board be unable to agree, as suggested by general Lane, then Congress may remove the difficulty by making the selection itself, aided by such light as the reports of the Board of Engineers may lend."

A Horrible Deed.

The following is from the Portland Bee: Mr. Robbins and L. L. Cole were going to the farm of P. Kelly with a load of swill, where Messrs. Robbins & Kelly are engaged in partnership in raising hogs. When a short distance from East Portland, one of the horses, which was a lame he could hardly walk, let alone pulling his one half the load, balked and refused to pull. He was beaten with a club by either or both Cole and Robbins in a shameful manner, but the poor brute refused to move on. A piece of bale rope was tied around his tongue and he was tied in the other end, and upon which one of the men pulled with all his strength, until the rope cut off about three inches of the tongue. The horse, with the blood streaming from his mouth, was then compelled to pull the load to its destination. Yes, and found the piece of bale rope covered with blood, and the piece of tongue which had been torn off, lying by the roadside. To be certain that the tongue had been torn from the horse, they went out to Kelly's place, and after a long search found the horse out in the pasture, his mouth and lacerated tongue so swollen he could not eat. He would nibble off the grass and then would let it drop out of his mouth covered with blood, his tongue being too sore and swollen to swallow. Collins brought the tongue and rope to this office this morning, giving us the above details, after which he took them to the prosecuting attorney, declaring his intention to prosecute Robbins and Cole for their inhuman treatment. Because a man may own a horse, it is no reason why he should treat him in such an inhuman manner, and for such conduct the law provides a punishment.

L. L. Williams, formerly county clerk of Douglas county, has been the subject of a running off with the wife of Mr. Daniels. He says he "has never yet seen the woman he would run away with, nor the woman who would run away with him. Although it was not the intention of Mr. Williams to return to Oregon before taking a trip through the Yellowstone country, he now "feels it due to his many friends that the slander should be cleared up, and will at once return."

An old man named Harkins was killed near Mooror by his team running away.

Origin of the Yellow Fever at Memphis.

Satisfactory evidence has been furnished as to how the yellow fever broke out in the vicinity of Memphis. Its first victim was a shoemaker named Mulbrandon, of whom it is related that his wife lost several relatives by the fever last year. The household furniture and other effects of these people were removed to Mulbrandon's residence, and as a Memphis correspondent of one of the Eastern papers states, among these effects was a quantity of clothing and bedding that had been used by the diseased relative including even the sheets and blankets from the death beds. These articles had been packed away in boxes without being fumigated, until warm weather came, when they were taken from the boxes and exposed to the sun. As a consequence, the scourge was let loose, and it is now simply a question as to when its ravages will be stayed. It is the rule, in all infected localities, either to burn or to bury, which has been used by persons dying from the fever, and here it is seen to be a dangerous thing to depart from so judicious a precaution.

We learn through the Standard of the death of an old and respected actor Mr. Frank M. Bates, for a long time manager of the Oro Fino theater in Portland. A letter from his wife to a lady friend in that city states that he was murdered and robbed on the 26th of June, on the highway between Melbourn and Sidney, Australia. His body was found in the ditch by the side of the road covered with blood fearfully battered and disfigured. Mrs. Bates was in a distant city at the time, and arrived only a few moments before the burial. A performance was given a few days after, for the benefit of the widow and children, at the Theater Royal at which the leading actors of the various theaters took part; $1250 was realized, and another benefit is announced to be soon.

The Halifax Chronicle says: Capt. Logaa, of the schooner Katie E. Stewart, which arrived Saturday, reports that when off Whitehead he saw a whale about fifty feet long coming toward the vessel. He threw a billet of wood at the monster, which seemed to enrage it, and it dived under the vessel and came up alongside, blowing water on the deck. It was struck by several missiles but did not seem afraid. Then bilge water pumped overboard, this drove it off for a few minutes, but it came back and was evidently about to strike the vessel, when it was struck close to the bow-hole by a large lump of coal. This seemed to take the courage out of the whale, and it swam off in the direction from which it had first come.

A late telegram from England says: In consequence of a storm, traffic is suspended on the railway between Chester and Holyhead. The viaduct at Llandudow, Wales, has been washed away, and also some of the bridges. Several sewers were burst by freshets on the lines of Liverpool railways. Birkenhead is flooded. There has been thirty hours of continuous rain at Chester. In Derbyshire, Trent and Derwent, the rivers overflowed, and all lowlying lands are flooded. Wheat is gradually rotting, and any crops left standing are not worth the cutting. The rain at Sheffield was so violent as to wash away the foundation of five houses in course of construction.

E. W. Andrews, confined in prison at San Quentin, on the 7th inst. was brutally murdered by a fellow prisoner, named John Maguire. There were 37 other convicts in the cell which they occupied, and at the time the murderer Andrews was sent on a low bureau chatting with an old convict by the name of Brownlee. Andrews, it is said, had made some remarks derogatory to the Irish Catholics. Maguire, without warning rushed upon him with a knife and cut his throat from ear to ear, nearly severing the head from the body.

The usual suicide is by a man named Thomas Logaa, who was recently pardoned out of the penitentiary. The deed was done at Jas. Tipton's logging camp on the north Umpqua, at three o'clock on the morning of the 13th, the deceased arising from his bed in a room shared by Joseph Reed, and shooting himself through the head with a rifle. This is said to be the fourth attempt to take his own life within the past few years. He leaves a wife in Portland.

A German named Weingartner, an old resident of Solano, aged about fifty, attempted to kill his wife and commit suicide. He made a pretense of preparation to shave himself, called his wife to the room and seized her, but her throat from ear to ear with the razor and gashed her body and limbs in a frightful manner. The children alarmed the neighbors, who arrived and found that the walls and ceiling of the room were spattered with blood, and Weingartner and wife were lying insensible, neither yet dead. Both may possibly survive. Cause, jealousy.

A Mrs. Dolay, who keeps boarding house at the car shops at East Portland while returning from the city on the morning of the 14th after having collected some money, was followed and overtaken by two men, who demanded the money, threatening to murder her if she gave any alarm. Receiving the contents of her purse, which amounted to thirty dollars, the rascals succeeded in making good their escape before the lady who was badly frightened could reach the car shops and relate the facts of the robbery to the folks there.

Mr. Charles Applegate, a pioneer of 1843, died on the 9th inst., aged 74. He left his beautiful home and peacefully passed over the dark river to the other side. By his death his many friends and neighbors will lose the friendship of a good and generous man, for he passed away loved and regretted by all who knew him. He was elder brother of Jesse and Lindsay Applegate.

The Salem Town Talk, says several farmers on Howell Prairie are compelled to hire Chihamen in their harvest fields, owing to the scarcity of white labor.

EVERYTHING that Stokes has touched since his release from the penitentiary, has turned into gold. Leaving prison penniless, he is now, if not a millionaire, a very wealthy man, and one who, with all his worldly goods, will wander over the earth, with the curse of Cain upon his brow, and go down to the grave the deplorable wreck, both in body and mind, beyond a doubt.

Reliable information from Tampico to Aug. 1st says: We have a yellow fever epidemic worse than New Orleans last year. People die like flies. Quarantine at Bagdad against Tampico is still efficient. Medical Inspector Somerset Robinson, of the navy, and Mr. Daniel M. Burgess, several years resident of Havana, will perform the duties of inspectors—the former at Matanzas, the latter at Havana.

Gladstone, speaking at the opening of the art exhibition at Chester, England, said, that when America learned to trust entirely to her own splendid natural resources, the great genius of her people and the marvelous proficiency in adaptation of labor-saving appliances, in which she was at the head of the world, she would be a formidable competitor with English manufactures.

On the 12th inst., a man named Wm. Nidehoefer, suicide at Pomroy. His conduct led to the belief that he was suffering from temporary insanity caused by sunstroke. Sitting on the steps of the flouring mill, with a small pocket knife, he succeeded in severing an artery, the osophagus and wind pipe causing almost instant death.

The negro accused of an assault on the persons of Ida Dunn and Cora Hestlep, is discharged. The examination reveals some startling developments. The testimony of physicians, is that rape was attempted on Ida Dunn, and another benefit is announced to be soon.

The grading and bridging for the West Side extension, is so far advanced that the entire route could be prepared for the rails in two weeks. Work has been suspended for some time, but commenced again yesterday on the Luckiamute bridge. People along the line are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the rails, expecting to ship this year's wheat by the road.

An exchange states that recently large volumes of smoke were seen issuing from Mt. Hood, perhaps it is not known to people generally, but smoke arises from this mountain constantly. In 1875 we visited the summit and at that time steam and smoke with a perceptible sulphur odor was being emitted.

THIRTY-FIVE new cases of yellow fever reported at Memphis, for Aug. 11th. Great destitution prevails, and there appears to be no thought now of stamping out the fever, and the only alternative is to await the coming of frost. Fully thirty thousand have left the city.

AN unknown incendiary, at a late hour of the evening of the 12th inst., set fire to Mr. Cramer's butcher shop at Roseburg. Luckily the fire was discovered before it had made much headway, and was extinguished by the prompt exertions of the citizens.

The Albany Register, learns that the youngest sons of Asa Peterson and Abe Erwin, of Lebanon, were thrown from a horse, expecting Peterson receiving injuries from which it is feared he will not recover.

A telegram from Para, Brazil, dated 21st of July, states that 14,000 distressed inhabitants revolted in consequence of the stoppage of relief supplies. There was much alarm in Para, and it was feared the town might be sacked. The militia has been called out.

Gov. TRAYER, denies having pardoned Robt. S. Gibbons the murderer of policeman Schoppe, out of the penitentiary, whether he was sentenced for life.

T. P. Hyde, residing near Murphy, Josephine county, raised six inches that measured nine feet six inches in height. He had pea vines also which measured nine feet.

SCANDAL is busy with the names of Senator Conklin and Mrs. Kate Sprague daughter of the late Chief Justice Chase, and wife of ex-senator Sprague of Rhode Island.
