IT would seem, from the London News, that Jay Gould "beats the BOOT& SHOE MAKER Dutch." It appears that he has been negotiating with bankers in Amsterdam about the purchase of a Kansas railroad whose affairs have been in litigation for several years. He finally offered $1,300,000 for the first mortgage bonds held by the syndicate, which they accepted, with the proviso that interest should be added to the date of payment. BEST Gould agreed, but created a sensation by immediately writing a check on Messrs. J. S. Morgan & Co., of Shop on Front Street, opposite the London, for the full amount.
