A "No Stoppage Law."

The editor of the News, who is trying to work up a point that will help him into office says this:

"A law putting an employer's store on an equal footing with any other store would in a great measure remedy the evil. For instance, I work in the mill and have a month's wages due me, in the mean time I trade in Nasburg's store to the amount of $20, under the law as it now exists, Mr. Nasburg can't stop my wages by attachment, or in any way, but if I buy the same goods in the mill store, the employer stops my pay. This discrimination is the foundation of the 'store pay' system that has grown up, and the abolition of this distinction by passing what they call in England a 'stoppage no pay' law, or in other words permitting no set-off to wages, would put all business upon an equal footing, and this system would disappear, and a laborer would get his coin when demanded, because the inducement to keep him out of it, in order to have him take goods, would disappear. Money would get into general circulation and a healthier state of business would ensue. 'No orders, no goods, but coin.'"

In a former issue he asserted that such a law was in force in several of the States, and we called upon him as a lawyer to give the name of any State or civilized country where such a law exists. He now goes back on his former assertion as to the existence of such a law in any of the States, but says it is what they call in England a "stoppage, no pay law." Why does he not tell us what that law is, and that he is in favor of its enactment in Oregon, and that he will work for the passage of such a law?

The doctrine of off set of debts was adopted as the law of England early in the reign of George II. and from there was transmitted to the United States, where it is to be found as a part of our common law, as well as in the code of every State.

It will be noticed that Mr. Siglin does not now assert that such a law exists anywhere; does not say he is in favor of such an enactment, or that he will try to secure the same in Oregon. Why not? Simply because there is nothing in it.

We again ask Mr. Siglin to publish that law, tell us where it is to be found, and say to his constituents whether he will support it or not. If he is in favor of a law forbidding the payment of work for goods, let him so announce, or if he is in favor of a law forbidding the receipt of goods for wages, let him submit that as his platform.

This whole subject is now left with the parties who make the contracts. If a man who works does not want to take goods, there is no power that can compel him to do so, and he can collect his money. If he is willing to buy goods and pay for them, perhaps it is as well to let him have that privilege. Every honest man who buys goods expects to pay for them, either in money or some other commodity that will be acceptable to the party from whom he buys, and the same way with regard to wages. It sometimes happens that it is an accommodation to a laborer to have a chance to get provisions for his family before his wages are due, and in that case he should have the privilege. Let the laboring men know, Mr. Siglin, what law you propose to enact on this subject.

The Republican Candidates.
While the action of the late Republican Convention was in some respects a disappointment to the public its work was in the main well and judiciously done, and the candidates selected will be acceptable to the people.

M. C. George, the candidate for Congress is the best choice that could have been made in the State. He is a man who has resided long and received his education in the State. He did not inherit distinction, but he was endowed by nature with that force of character, which, coupled with habits of sobriety and uprightness is the sure key to success. He is a lawyer of high standing and honorable reputation, and as State Senator for the past four years has done more to shape the legislation of the State than any other man. As a speaker, he is the equal of any man in the State, far the superior of his opponent, and his election to Congress will be a favorable change in our representation.

The action of the convention in the choice of judges for the Supreme bench, does not meet the expectations of the people, but no one claims that the persons nominated are not lawyers of good ability and of undoubted integrity. They are doubtless men in every respect worthy of the honor, but the defeat of Judge Boile, in favor of men of comparatively little experience, cannot be commended. These men, however, are free from any suspicion of belonging to any clique or corporation, and may be expected to make an independent, able, and upright court.

The gentlemen who are selected as Presidential Electors are representative men of the party, and who are capable of making an able canvass.

The platform is a correct enunciation of the principles of the Republican party, and it should unite and draw to its support all who have acted in co-operation with that party within the past twenty years. Taken altogether, the work of the convention is a sure foundation for the success of the party it represents at the coming election.

The Democratic local paper here is trying to get up a "labor boom" in favor of the Democratic ticket in this county. A labor boom should be led by laboring men; or at least by men who have some idea as to what manual labor is, from actual experience. Let the laboring men glance down the list of Democratic candidates from the head to the candidates for Commissioners, and see how many of these men ever soiled their hands with work. It looks like a desperate attempt to induce laboring men to help them avoid labor.

Mr. SIGLIN wants to give the Democrats to understand that unless he takes snuff they have no right to sneeze, or in other words whatever the Republicans might be willing to concede to the people of Curry county the Democrats of that county will get no rights that Siglin sees fit to deny them. They can nominate a Joint Senator when Siglin promises it to them, not before. If this suits the people of Curry county, no one else has a right to complain about it.

EVERY MAN ON Coos Bay who is secretly opposed to improving the mouth of the Coquille river will vote the Republican ticket.—News.

The above is a specimen of the silly baits thrown out to catch votes on the Coquille. We did not suppose there was any one "secretly opposed to improving the mouth of the Coquille," and there is certainly no one more likely to be so than the Democratic candidate for the State Senate.

AGAIN in the last issue of the News says its publishers "are neither office seekers nor office holders." It is a puzzle to Siglin's friends how he expects to make votes by keeping that announcement before the readers of the paper. He does not expect to make votes by it, but when the votes are counted and Siglin is defeated, he can say "I told you all the time I was not an office seeker."

MARION county Democrats are in favor of reducing the income of clerks and sheriffs to a sum not exceeding $2500 per annum, and want the next legislature to pass a law providing for the location of the insane asylum at the seat of government, in accordance with the Constitution of the State.

SOME boys while cruising in the woods near North Seattle the other day, came across what appeared to be a boulder of peculiar formation. Upon examination they concluded to procure a wheelbarrow and trundle it out to Pike street. Those who have examined it closely declare it to be a solidified mass of clam and oyster shells. The question is, how came they there?
