

FOR PRESIDENT JAS. A. GARFIELD, OF OHIO. FOR VICE PRESIDENT CHESTER A. ARTHUR, OF NEW YORK. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS. GEO. B. CURRY, of Grant, E. L. APPLIGATE, of Linn, C. B. WATSON, of Lake.

How English Secured the Nomination.

Since it became known and admitted that English was one of the most unpopular men that could have been found by the Democrats in the whole country, for the second place on their ticket, the question has been asked how the party came to commit such an egregious blunder as to place him in nomination. The fact has been developed that his nomination was the result of shrewd and underhanded work on the part of English himself, rather than any preference that was felt for him among the people. He was a professed friend of Hendricks, who aspired to the nomination, but in order to pave the way for his own preference, at his own expense he had a long and fulsome account of his life and public services prepared and published. This, says a Times correspondent, was stereotyped by him, and furnished, already printed, in any quantity, to whatever paper would issue it as a supplement. This sketch states that "it should be understood that Mr. English seeks retirement," but that there is a general and "unsolicited association of his name with high official trusts," and it asks: "Where is the man whose views will better harmonize the East and West, and the North and South?" "The logic of events points to him as a distinguished native Indian, who should circumstances create an inevitable necessity, would exhibit to the country those exalted traits of character which in these times are sought for with profound solicitude." Mr. English was in daily correspondence and communication with leading men in all the States. He haunted newspaper offices to see how the account of his life was received. He paid a visit to Mr. Tilden, and conferred with the New York leaders several weeks before the Cincinnati Convention. His movements gave rise to much bad feeling on the part of Mr. Hendricks' friends, culminating in a personal quarrel in his own ward meeting, called to select delegates to the State Convention.

Hancock's Followers in Mississippi—No "Free Vote" wanted There.

The following, from a late Washington dispatch, sounds very much like news from the same region in 1860. They had large Democratic majorities down South in those days, and they were maintained by the same means by which they were proposed to swell Hancock's vote:

J. H. Randall, a prominent Greenbacker, canvassing the South and speaking in the interest of his party, writes a letter in which he relates his experience in Shubuta, Mississippi. When he appeared to address the audience, he was greeted as follows: "There's a Greenbacker,—him!" "Three cheers for Hancock;—him!" "Yankee Greenbackers! He ought to be killed,—!" "Let's give him,—!" and other phrases of like character. Halting a few minutes in his address, a well dressed young man, perfectly sober, separated from the throng and approaching him, delivered a note written on a leaf from his pocket book: "Dear Sir—We will give you and your 'pard' just 35 minutes to pick up your duds and get out of town as lively as you can heel it. Yours to death, Boys of Shubuta." Randall replied, "Do you mean to tell me, an American, law-abiding citizen, attending strictly to business, that I cannot stay in this town?" "Take the first train of cars, young man," was the reply of the Mississippi bulldozer. "We know you and you cannot stay here. You must go to the next station," Randall demanded, "Who gives the order?" and was answered by the bulldozers, "The boys of Shubuta. Your time is passing. You had better be getting along or you will catch —!" Randall understood this to indicate that they did not desire that he should expound any greenback theories in that neighborhood.

An exchange whose editor is very ancient, claims to have known a man named Orton when he was a boy, and says Orton was an old man then; that he "is losing his mind" etc. From the sound reasons he gives for supporting Garfield, it would appear that he could lose a great deal more of his mind and still have more left than the man who knew him while attending school.

Let every other county do as well as Coos as the coming election and Oregon will be alright.—News. Yes, in that case Oregon will take her proper place, among the Republican States.

AN agent for a fire-extinguisher was exhibiting the machine on a pile of lighted tarred boxes in the public square at Mentor, O., in the presence of a large crowd, among whom were Gen. Garfield and his little boy, Jim. A man accidentally stepped on the boy's foot, whereupon he savagely sprang at the man and dealt him a blow with his fist about as high as he could reach. The father saw it, and immediately had the crowd open and ordered the firemen to turn the hose upon Jim, and the boy was extinguished in less than a minute.

There arrived on the steamship Granada from Panama, recently, twenty-seven passengers, portions of nine families en route for Washington Territory. They are the advance of a colony of thirty-six families residing in Brooklyn, New York, who will locate on Government land in the vicinity of Tacoma, on the co-operative system. They propose to work for five years on the plan of equal shares for the heads of the families.

The Intelligence says: The big ship that has been building at Seabeck for two years past, and the large schooner building there during the past two months will be launched together, at high tide on the 21st instant. This ship will be, perhaps, the biggest lumber carrier that floats, and the occasion of her launching, added to the launch of the three masted schooner, will be one of the most interesting in the history of our Territory.

The most prominent racing men of Walla Walla valley are now considering a proposition to get up a race in November next for a purse of $2000 free for all, distance three miles. The Salem races take place on September 28th, the Statesman says, and the highest prize offered is $1500. A purse to the amount proposed will at once place Walla Walla in the van of all other cities.

PAID THE PENALTY.—The Crescent City Courier says: At Happy Camp last Thursday, L. P. Smith shot and killed Ah Lim, a Chinaman, charging the Chinaman with robbing his sluice boxes. Smith delivered himself up to the authorities after the killing, and sent to this place where he is now awaiting trial. We have not learned the full particulars of the affair sufficient for publication.

The interior department is informed that 600 of Sitting Bull's followers have surrendered up to date at Fort Keogh, Montana. Secretary Schurz telegraphed the department that he will visit Fort Keogh after his visit to Yellowstone Park. He proposes to designate agencies where the surrendered Sioux are to be located.

The farmers of Goose Lake Valley, says the Herald, have been considerably disappointed at the results of the season. Crops generally will yield probably more than did those of the preceding season, but our hopes will not be realized by a considerable extent.

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. Defense Medication. Is a precaution which should never be neglected when danger is present, and therefore a course of the Bitters at this season is particularly desirable, especially for the feeble and sickly. As a remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness, and bowel complaints, there is nothing comparable to this wholesome restorative. For sale by all druggists and dealers generally.
