The Democratic Party Not to be Judged by its Resolutions.

From a Speech by R. J. Ingersoll.

We have got to use the instrument of party. Now what party must we choose? We must, if we are honest men, choose a party that will preserve the good and destroy the bad. The Democratic party can pass good resolutions, but good resolutions don't make a good character. If every man could get a character by passing a resolution, why we would all be gentlemen in fifteen minutes. [Laughter.] The whole Democratic party would be civilized in one day, if resolutions would do it; but a character is to be built up by years of toil and years of honest endeavor; and we should judge of character, not by what people say they will do, but by what they have done. Take the Democratic party. I admit that thousands and thousands of Democrats went into the army. I admit that if it had not been for the Democrats we could not have put down the rebellion; and I admit that if it had not been for the Democratic party there would have been no rebellion to put down. I thank every Democrat that went to the war. I thank every Democrat that fought to keep our flag in the sky. I tender my thanks to every one, and I want to ask them: "While you were away in the war, what did the Democrats do that you left at home?" That is a question that you ought to remember—the record of the Democratic party. It ought to be told every day to every man, woman, and child in this great Republic. And allow me to tell you, every Democratic soldier—I want you to remember that they who said, "This is not a nation," were Democrats; I want you to know that the men who tried to tear our flag down were Democrats; I want you to know that every secessionist was a Democrat; that every man that shot a Union soldier was a Democrat; that every Union soldier who received a scar by the war will carry to his grave a SOUVENIR of the Democratic party; that the men who starved our soldiers at Andersonville and Libby—that the men who fed the soldiers upon crusts that the worms had eaten before—that the men who shot down the Union soldiers at the "dead line"—that all these men were Democrats. Recollect it—that the men who tried to burn Northern cities were Democrats; that the men who wanted to burn New York and Cincinnati were Democrats; that the men who tried to scatter yellow fever in Northern homes were Democrats; that the men who tried to release Southern prisoners that they might burn down the cabins of Union soldiers while they were away at the front fighting for their country were Democrats; that the men who said the greenbacks would be worthless were Democrats; that the men who said the bonds would never be paid were Democrats; that the men who slandered out 65 cents of every dollar were Democrats; that the men who wept when slavery was abolished were Democrats; that the men who wanted to rob the cradle were Democrats; that the men who wanted to see women sold on the auction block were Democrats; that the men who believe that bloodhounds were the apostles of civilization were Democrats. [Tremendous applause.]

Recollect it—that the men who were glad every time the Northern army was beaten were Democrats. ["Good, that's so!"] That the men who prospered when this country was in trouble were Democrats. I want you to know that the Democratic party of the South and the Democratic party of the North that staid at home were not in favor of the salvation of this country. You cannot trust them. They carry a yellow passport. It is a ticket of leave man. It is simply on its good behavior, and after it has behaved itself, for fifty or one hundred years then we may trust it with some of the smaller offices. [Great laughter and applause.] Let us vote as we shot. Jackson and Lee fought for State sovereignty. Our side fought for the splendid principle of nationality. And unless we preserve the Union for which the people shot, then that war was all in vain, and all the heroic blood was wasted. ["Good!" and loud applause.] Can you trust the Democratic party? ["No, no!"] Yes, you can, but you will never get your pay.

A Remarkable Woman.

A Boston paper gives an account of a remarkable woman born in Wellfleet, Massachussetts, and now ninety-three years old. When she was but twenty-four years old, having two children, her husband was brought home to her from his wrecked vessel an invalid for life. He saw nothing but destitution staring him and his family in the face. Then it was that her wonderful energy was equal to the occasion. She started a store, very small at first, but its profits gradually increased, and she says that many a day she has taken in over $100. For 50 years she made monthly visits to Boston in small sail boats to replenish her stock. For fifty years she took care of her husband, who was unable to even dress himself. She educated her two boys, and started them in business. She also adopted, clothed, fed, educated and placed in good positions in the world twenty orphan boys and girls, besides visiting and taking care of the sick at all hours day and night.

A House of Gold Bricks.

Cheyenne Leader.

There is a certain house in Cheyenne, not a thousand miles from the Leader office, which is almost worth its weight in gold. The bricks in its walls are at least impregnated with the precious metal to a valuable extent. The discovery was made accidentally by a gentleman who has an office near by. He frequently noticed shining yellow particles in the bricks, and imagining that the colors were gold, he took out a brick from the wall for the purpose of ascertaining the fact. This brick he first pulverized and then "panned out" the colors. He could not get rid of all the dirt, and concluded to send the residuum to an assayer in Denver. In a few days the assay certificate arrived, and showed there was 38 cents worth of gold in the brick. The gentleman then took out two other bricks in different parts of the building, and panned them as he did the first. The same assayer gave his certificate as follows: Sample No. 1, gold, 47 cents; sample No. 2, gold, 24 cents. With remarkable secrecy the gentleman proceeded to learn whence came these bricks. After considerable inquiry it was learned that the bricks were made in a yard that was formerly situated on Crow creek, near Cheyenne, but which is now obliterated. Further investigation among old residents, divulged the fact that placer mining had at one time been carried on along Crow creek, but the miners thought that the pay wasn't big enough, and they therefore abandoned their claims. It was near these claims that the brick-yard mentioned above was started, and that explains how gold dust got into the bricks.

COX'S BARBER SHOP.

IN FRONT OF THE CENTRAL HOTEL.
Marshfield, Ogn

If you want an easy shave,
As good as barber ever gave,
Just c ll on me at my saloon,
From morn 'till night or busy noon;
My razors' sharp, my scissors keen,
My shop is neat and towels clean;
And there I think that you will find
Each article to suit the mind;
I trim the hair with skill for cents,
Of course the price is fifty cents;
Shampooing, too, I do that well,
Give me a trial, that will tell;
So help me gracious if I make you holler,
You need not pay a quarter of a dollar.
