-Rare days that shine out from all others we know

With a lovelier grace, a tenderer glow!—
When the music of waves, and air, earth and sky
Take no tone or tint from a cloud or a sigh:
When the thorn of regret is hidden from eight
'Neath the unfolding buds of hope and delight:
When mem'ries which darkened our cloudier days O'er the now illuminated air, leave scatcely And the thoughts that gave pain by night and by day Have spread their dark sails and have floated away.

—Charmed days, in whose restfulness Care fulls Rocked by the soft flow of tranquility deep;
And weariness rests from its pain, toil and strife
In a bower of peace,—'mid the desert of life!

O bright, green oases! days restful and free In the desert of Care! Oh, may you not be But given the weary—ah, even to me—As a type of that blest, that unfading day Awaiting the heart, beyond Life's desert way!
