MARSHFIELD, OREGON.

Thursday, July 3, 1884.

For President, JAMES G. BLAINE.

For Vice President, JOHN A. LOGAN.

Presidential Electors, D. P. THOMPSON, WARREN TRUITT, J. C. LEASURE.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says the democracy cannot carry the country on the Ohio tariff platform...

That entertaining Overland Monthly for July comes to hand...

There is nothing remarkable about the opposition of the free traders to Blaine and Logan...

One ounce of pure gold is only worth $200 67 18-100. Jewellers calculate the fineness of gold in carats...

Some worthy men detect what they consider demagoguery in the republican platform. It was written, they gravely say, "to catch votes."

The democrats of Delaware have spoken. They are in favor of a tariff for revenue only and Thomas Francis Bayard...

The Rev. Dr. Armitage and the Rev. Dr. Storr, in interviews giving their reasons for supporting Blaine and Logan, make some excellent points...

Henry Ward Beecher is a great preacher, but he is a gusher in politics. His prejudices are strong, and his judgment of men and measures unsound.

Next Tuesday the democratic manager will open at Chicago with the largest and most varied collection of ancient and modern curiosities...

The Business Man's Candidate.

In commenting on the nomination of Blaine by the republican party the Pall Mall Gazette, one of the leading papers of England, made use of the following language:

"He will endeavor to replace English influence and trade by American. His intervention in the Penn treaty was most ominous when he declared he disliked England to win commercial triumphs in fields legitimately belonging to America."

If any evidence were necessary to prove that Blaine should receive the hearty support of all the business men of America we have it in the above remark of the Pall Mall Gazette.

There is nothing remarkable about the opposition of the free traders to Blaine and Logan. Their movements would attract less attention if they were not conducted under false pretenses.

The democrats of Delaware have spoken. They are in favor of a tariff for revenue only and Thomas Francis Bayard...

names a ticket to fit the deepest convictions and strongest purposes of the great body of its voters, then it suddenly leaps into new life, and displays startling vigor. James G. Blaine and John A. Logan peculiarly represent the great ideas of the republican party.

Why British Journals Dislike Blaine. Already those who began to throw mud have come to the conclusion that something more solid is needed to beat Blaine.

The democrats are just now amusing themselves by classing the Philadelphia Times, Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, New York Telegram, New York Truth, Chicago News, New York Herald, etc., as "republican papers which bolt Blaine."

A Ticket Representing Ideas. It is amazing to some friends, says the New York Tribune, that the ticket of the republican party is received with such extraordinary enthusiasm.
