MARSHFIELD, OREGON.
Thursday, August 21, 1884

For a fine cigar, try the Cupid Team, for sale at Norton's.

Capt. A. J. M. Campbell has purchased the steamer Wasp.

Col. T. J. Beale was at Roseburg last week, looking after his interests in Douglas county.

S. C. Rogers of South Coos river is closing out his stock of merchandise, which he is selling at cost for cash.

Next Monday is the appointed time for the meeting of the board of equalization at the county clerk's office at Empire.

There will be divine services in the Baptist church at this place next Sunday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

Geo. Campbell's little girl Marnie met with a fall at Newport last Saturday and cut her forehead severely by coming in contact with a piece of coal.

Elder G. W. Black will preach the funeral sermon of Mrs. Fox at the school house at the forks of North Coos river at 11 o'clock a. m. next Sunday.

F. P. Norton receives by every steamer a supply of fresh fruits, including grapes, peaches, oranges, etc. Coos river apples and plums he keeps on hand at all times.

Dave Young maintains the reputation of the soda works at this place for manufacturing the best soda made on the coast. If you want to keep cool, drink Young's soda-water.

Dr. McCormac and wife yesterday returned from a sojourn at their ranch on North Coos river. The doctor says the trout fishing is becoming good in the vicinity of his place.

Rev. C. P. Bailey went over to Gardiner yesterday, to remain until after next Sunday. He preached there last night and will hold a series of religious services the remainder of this week.

The G. A. R. hall at Norman's hall last Saturday night proved a pleasant party. The hall was not crowded, but it was full, and those who attended improved the opportunity to enjoy themselves.

The North Bend mill again commenced running Monday, but a break in some of the machinery stopped it yesterday. It will be all right and running again by this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

N. B. F. Norton would say to his subscribers that his papers did not come last week, and this week they were delayed on account of the fire at Roseburg, but Norton hopes that in future his papers will come regularly.

W. S. Vanderburg has purchased Dave Young's ranch on Catching slough. The ranch contains nearly 300 acres, about 75 of which are bottom land, and the price paid was $3000. Charley Vanderburg is now in possession of the place.

Robert, son of J. S. Jones, came from the Coquille to this place last Tuesday, to be treated by Dr. Tower for a disease of the spinal cord that has produced partial paralysis of the legs. Bobby's numerous friends hope that he may soon recover.

To make room for a large stock of new goods that they have coming on, Nashburg & Hirst are selling clothing at less than cost, and now is the time and their store is the place to obtain an unusually cheap suit of clothes, or anything else that you want in their line.

School teachers are in demand. Dr. McCormac, county school superintendent, says teachers are wanted at Sumner and North Coos rivers, and also in other districts. For further information, apply to the superintendent or to the trustees of the aforesaid districts.

Clemmenson & Co. of the Bay View brewery of this place are manufacturing an excellent article of lager beer and the home market for barrelled beer should be supplied by them. Don't send your money away from the bay for beer that is not as good as that made at home.

Wm. McKnight's dwelling house at his ranch on South Coos river narrowly escaped destruction by fire last Monday. The dry moss on the roof of the kitchen took fire from the stove-pipe, but fortunately the fire was soon discovered by a member of the family and subdued by a timely application of water before any great damage had been done.

Archy Galloway of Newport, a lad about 19 years of age, is likely to lose the second toe on one of his feet, from the effects of a crushing it received about two weeks ago, when a horse stepped on it. The boy was barefooted at the time of the accident, a remarkable feature of which was that only the one toe was injured, and for a time it was thought that it might be saved.

Ramsdell's announcement of his intention to go away has brought him such a rush of business in the photograph line that he has brought his family from Myrtle Point and become a permanent resident of our town. Mrs. Ramsdell is an expert in finishing pictures, and with her assistance he is now prepared to perform work with greater dispatch and with as complete a finish as it receives anywhere in the world.

Geo. Youngerman was yesterday brought up in Justice Hyde's court on an information filed charging him with running a faro game. He was bound over, under $300 bonds, to await the action of the grand jury at the September term of the circuit court. This is the first time the gambler has been molested here, but they have become so numerous of late that the town is in danger of being taken by them if something is not done.

The dedication of the Baptist church in this place took place last Sunday. Rev. J. C. Baker preached the dedication sermon. Prior to the dedication a subscription was circulated and enough money raised to free the church of debt. This new structure is pronounced, by those who ought to know, to be the nicest little house of worship in southern Oregon. Elders Black and Bailey justly feel proud of it.

A laborer named Geo. Bolster was badly injured at the Lobree mill early last Tuesday morning by being caught by the dirt of a bank that caved while he and another man were employed in digging it down. Bolster was brought to town, taken to the Western hotel and treated by Dr. Tower. An examination of the patient showed that four of his ribs on the right side were broken. He expectorated blood freely and for a time his symptoms were alarming, but yesterday he was in a fair way to recover. Bolster's companion in the work escaped with little or no injury.

The schooner Neptune, Capt. W. C. Martins, arrived in the bay last Friday, from the Amour river, East Siberia, to which place she took a cargo from San Francisco a few months ago, with the expectation of returning to and remaining on the Japanese coast, but the condition of business there did not justify it, and hence her return to this coast. The Neptune is now taking a cargo of lumber at North Bend. Capt. Martins was formerly master of the Annie Gem, and when he last left the bay, over two years ago, it was by steamer, in consequence of a lane knee which he was afflicted at the time.

Fire and Loss of Life at Roseburg.

Last Monday night a fire occurred in Roseburg that destroyed two of the principal blocks of the town, with the exception of three or four buildings, and caused the loss of several lives.

The fire originated in the Metropolitan hotel, about 11 o'clock, under the stairway, where the candles and lights were kept for the use of lodgers. It was first discovered by the Coos bay stage driver, who had been up late and was looking for the town marshal, to make arrangements to be called next morning. He sounded the alarm, but the fire spread with such rapidity that some of the inmates of the house perished in the flames and many others escaped in their night clothes by jumping from the second-story windows.

From the hotel the flames spread to other buildings on that block and on the block opposite the hotel, all of which buildings were consumed excepting the bank, Hamilton's drug store, Moore's harness shop and the Sheridan residence.

Next morning the ruins of the Metropolitan hotel indicated that five persons had perished therein. Among them were supposed to be the remains of a newly-married couple that had only arrived at the house the day previous. Their names we could not learn. An aged gentleman, name unknown, was also supposed to be among those who perished in the flames. The hotel register was destroyed by the fire, and it may be that the names of some of the persons lost will never be known.

Louis Ziegler, the landlord, is supposed to have lost his life by jumping from a second-story window and breaking his neck in the fall. His body was seen before it was burned, but the heat from the fire was so great that the corpse could not be rescued. One of the men, in his flight from the house, attempted to arouse Ziegler, whom he discovered to be dead.

Several of those who escaped from the hotel were on their way to Empire. Among them were J. W. Brown of Milwaukee, Wis.; T. J. Moore, late of the Coeur d'Alene mines, and Capt. Johansen, wife and son some 12 years old. Johansen escaped from the burning house, uninjured, by jumping from a window. Mrs. Johansen and the boy also jumped from a window, but when she reached the ground her night clothes and her hair were in flames and she was so terribly burned that her life was despaired of next day. The boy was also badly burned.

Brown escaped without injury and came on to Empire next day.

Moore escaped by jumping from one of the second-story windows, and was only slightly hurt in his hands and wrists by the feat. He saved the suit of clothes he was wearing at the time he retired, by throwing most of them out at the window before he jumped. He lost his trunk and personal effects to the value of about $500. Next day Moore came to Coos City, from which place he went to Empire by boat yesterday.

The postoffice was among the buildings destroyed, and Tuesday night no mail from Roseburg was received at this place, but whether the mail matter was burned with the office is not known at this writing.

The hardware establishment owned by Sheridan Bros. was destroyed. T. R. and Story Sheridan, two of the brothers, were at Newport when the news reached them. Charley Ziegler was here when he received the sad news of his father's death, and E. N. Moore, treasurer of Douglas county, was also here when he heard of the fire and the destruction of much of his property. They all left by stage for Roseburg yesterday morning.

Later.

ROSEBURG, Or., August 20.—Lou Ziegler was the only person who perished in the fire.

Mrs. Johansen, sister of the late Mrs. Capt. Harris of the Coquille, and formerly of South slough, Coos bay, and lately of Astoria, and two strangers, names unknown, were so burned that they will probably die.

Stanton's store and the postoffice did not burn. Sheridan Bros. were burnt out.

Latest.

ROSEBURG, Or., August 20.—6 P. M.—Mrs. Johansen died this evening and her little boy is not expected to live.

Following is a list of the losses by the fire of Monday night, as far as known at present:

Douglas County bank, $500; no insurance.

L. Bellis, jeweler, $25,000.

L. Langenberg, $7000; insurance, $3000.

The losses aggregate about $100,000.

Blue Damsen Plums.

Any person wanting blue Damsen plums of the very best quality can obtain them by applying or sending to

JAMES ROOKE of North Coos river.

The ladies' Presbyterian missionary society of Marshfield will meet at the residence of Mrs. J. T. McCormac on Thursday, September 4, at 7 p. m. Members are especially invited to attend, as there will be an election of officers for the ensuing term. Ladies desiring to unite with this society are requested to hand in their names.

MRS. O. E. SMITH, Secretary.

Reports from the hay crop in this vicinity are good. C. Landrith and sons of North Coos river have a heap bigger pile than they had last season and S. C. Rogers of South Coos river has all of 250 tons, 150 tons of which he saved without it being rained on after it was cut.

Wouldn't you have pure sunshine in your house? Something to stimulate and rouse your spirits on a gloomy day? Take my advice: go right away to the Coos Bay drug store and get a Can of "Sunbeam Tea." Imported direct from Japan only in Perfection Tea Cans.

Gethell & Co. have had 400 cases of canned salmon brought over from the Coquille to ship to San Francisco on this steamer. This shipment is made to fill a contract at San Francisco that could not be met by schooner from the river.

"Novely" is the name of the new steamer launched at North Bend last Saturday. If the new tug Astoria comes up to escort her, she will probably leave the bay for Gray's harbor this week.

Dr. J. H. Chitwood and daughter of Ashland, Jackson county, arrived on the bay last Saturday, on a visit to Hon. C. B. Watson of Empire, the doctor's son-in-law.

Miss Mary Houser had one of her ankles badly sprained at Daniels creek Wednesday of last week by jumping from a horse that was running away with her.

The birthday party and oyster supper at the forks of North Coos river last Saturday night was a grand success, numerically, financially and otherwise.

Capt. Olsen of the schooner C. H. Merchant has his wife and two children with him this trip.

Full of the genial warmth of the sunbeam, the Coos Bay drug store "Sunbeam Tea."

From the Coeur d'Alene Mines.

Clay A. Moore returned to the bay two or three weeks ago, after an absence of some four years. He left the Coeur d'Alene mines six or seven weeks ago, where he and his brother Ed. and their father went several months ago, and where he thinks they have valuable claims. His father is still at the mines, looking after their claims, some of which cannot be successfully worked until after water has been brought in by ditches.

The Laird brothers, who at one time logged on South slough, are owners in one of the best of the Coeur d'Alene mines.

Moore entertains a very high opinion of the mines and believes that they will develop into as good placer diggings as were ever worked on this coast. He has seen as much as 50 pounds of gold per day taken from the claim in which the Laird brothers own, one lump of which was worth nearly $500. So far no gold-bearing quartz ledges have been found.

In some gulches the bed-rock of the paying claims is shelly slate and in others it is granite. In some instances the gold penetrates the slate to a depth of one or two feet, and in such cases it pays to dig up and wash the bed-rock.

While Moore expresses unbounded confidence in the richness of the mines, he says the chances for obtaining employment there at fair wages are not good, and therefore he advises men not to go there with the expectation of hiring out, most of the claims being worked by their owners. Men of capital who own claims appear to be waiting for something—perhaps a time when they can work them with Chinamen.

Last week Ed. Moore was at Sprague, a town on the Northern Pacific road. His wife and child were with his mother at Dayton, W. T. Ed. and Clay will return to the mines at such time as they deem it expedient to begin the active development of their claims.

A Dwelling House Destroyed by Fire.

Charley Dickman's house at his Daniels creek ranch was destroyed by fire about noon on the 19th inst. The fire is supposed to have originated by sparks from the stove-pipe lodging in and igniting the moss that had accumulated and dried on the roof. Mrs. Dickman was preparing dinner at the time she discovered the fire and sounded the alarm, and Nathan Smith and Rev. J. G. Mosher were the first to hear the alarm and respond to it. Dickman was at work nearly a mile from the house when he discovered the flames and rushed to the scene. Some few things were saved from the house, but some of these caught fire and were consumed after they had been carried out, and hardly anything worth mentioning was saved. After running from his house to the house, and in attempting to save some of its contents, Dickman was overcome by the heat and fell helpless so near the house that he was only saved from death by being dragged by Smith to a place of safety. Mosher also became asphyxiated and was rescued by Smith. The milk house took fire and was burned, and a vein, in one of the pockets of which was a $20 greenback, burned after it had been carried from the house. Fortunately for Dickman, the house on his lower ranch was vacant at the time of the fire, and into this he moved for the present. His loss by the fire amounts to several hundred dollars and the inconvenience that it occasions him at this busy season of the year is no trifling consideration.

More Insanity.

Last week Judge Dyer visited the Coquille, and while there he examined Wm. Teutsch and Mrs. Berry, who were adjudged insane.

Teutsch is a man about 50 years of age. He lived at or near Coquille City, where he has a wife, son and daughter. The family came to this state from Texas only three or four months ago. He has some children in Texas. The family is possessed of some means and Mrs. Teutsch paid all the expenses connected with her husband's commitment and conveyance to the asylum. His insanity appears to have resulted from despondency, and one of his hallucinations is reported to be a fear of death by starvation, he having no faith in the fertility of our soil and its adaptability to the support of the people here. He started for the asylum Friday, in charge of A. G. Aiken, Ed. Gallier and R. Mast.

Mrs. Berry has been more or less insane for a long time. Only a few weeks ago Judge Dyer went to Myrtle Point to hold an examination in her case, but her symptoms took a favorable turn at that time and it was not deemed necessary to send her away. Last week, however, it became an imperative duty that she should be sent to the asylum, where she can receive such treatment as her case demands. Friday she was brought to the bay by Deputy Sheriff Hickey, and on Monday the deputy sheriff and Mrs. C. F. Luce started with her for the asylum at Salem.

The Newport coal company have built a pile driver for their own use and the hammer and engine for it arrived by this steamer. About the first work to be done will be the construction of the new wharf up the slough for the vessels to load at while the new bunker is being built. The piles of the wharf at the mouth of Coal-bank slough will be driven down until they become solid enough for a part of the bunker foundation, for which they will be used, and a sufficient number of other piles will be driven to make the bunker 40 feet longer than the present wharf. The work is under the supervision of John Kruse of North Bend. The Newport company are preparing to do a much larger business in the shipment of coal than has heretofore been done on the bay and the coal will be of a better quality than any heretofore shipped.

John Giles has completed his contract for the building of the county bridges at Davis, Carper, Pogue and Wall sloughs. The only bridge now to be built in this district on the road leading to Coquille City is one at Southport, and Super-visor Whitney is preparing to immediately begin work on that. Since Whitney took the matter in hand, no less than 12 bridges have been built on his part of the Coquille City road, some of them being nearly 1500 feet long and none less than 300 feet. The road will not be passable for wagons this year, but it will be equally next spring.

Daniel Wagoner, a rancher of the south fork of the Coquille, came to the bay last week, on his way to California, to test the medicinal virtues of some of the noted springs of that state for healing dropsy of the abdomen and legs, with which he is afflicted. He took passage on the Laura May, and will first stop at Santa Cruz, where he has relatives.

Major Tower and family, I. Hacker and family and Dr. J. H. Chitwood and daughter went up to the major's South Coos river ranch last Tuesday. The doctor and his daughter returned to Empire yesterday, but the major and Hacker and their families intend to fish and recreate until they get enough of it for this summer.

The Independent says Jacob Tichenor has returned from Curry county, and is again located at Roseburg. He reports his father, Capt. Tichenor, as very low with a paralytic stroke.

The steamer Arcata sailed from San Francisco at 6 o'clock Monday morning and was due last night, but had not arrived at the time we went to press.

Personal.

To the Editor of the COAST MAIL:

What does the Coast Bay News mean by its reference to the new "editor of the Coquille Herald?" Is it jealousy, the loss of an indispensable auxiliary, or does the Herald have a new editor every week? I have watched the course of the News and the MAIL, since their establishment in Marshfield, and it will be no news to numbers of Marshfieldites to be told that Mr. Starkey was, for years, an adjunct of that paper (the News). An adjunct is not the correct term, as he was an essential appendage; writing most, if not all of the original matter that appeared in it. Many of us in this place, myself among the number, have not approved of Mr. Starkey's political theories, but we would scorn to use any little wedges of bitterness that might be used to injure him in his new position. He kicked a little during the late canvass, hence the little trifles of spleen that are exhibited. As an original writer, whose friendship was worth cultivating, why did they always ignore him? They possessed no ability, and do not to-day, in the ranks of the Coos county democracy that surpassed his; then, why should he sit down and work for them, and see some of the most blatant ignoramuses in the community boosted into office. I would like to see them open out on him boldly, just for the fun of seeing him wipe them out, and if language is capable of it, he is the medium most fitted for the job.

MARSHFIELD.

In accordance with instructions received from Washington, United States District Attorney Watson has commenced suit against the Portland lumbering company to recover $5625.

The facts upon which the suit is based are as follows: Edward Borline, of Freepore, W. T., filed a declaratory statement on the southeast quarter of a certain section of government land November 13, 1881, and relinquished his claim to the said quarter section October 22, 1882.

From this piece of land 800,000 feet of logs were cut and sold to the Portland lumbering company. As Borline is not responsible, financially, it was deemed best to hold the lumbering company responsible for the value of the timber. In the complaint it is alleged that Borline filed the declaratory statement simply for the purpose of defrauding the government out of the timber on the land. Suit is therefore brought to recover the value at the rate of $6 50 per thousand feet.

We have received a note from S. Hudson, at the south fork of the Sises river, in which he says: "After an absence of nearly two years, on revisiting this place I find the miners busy at work in their claims. I visited the grave of Thomas Jenkins, who died here on the 4th of February last and was buried amidst these lofty and rugged mountains. Thomas Wilson has placed a nice paling around the grave, to mark the final resting place of the mortal remains of his friend and partner. At the head of the grave two small trees have been planted, one on each side of the head-board, and they are green and growing nicely. There was also there a beautiful bouquet of flowers, presented by Mrs. G. H. Guerrin of Eckley, and a carpet of green velvet grass covers the red soil of the grave."

The Oregonian says orders have been promulgated from the war department at Washington relieving Capt. Charles F. Powell, United States engineer in charge of public works in the department of the Columbia, and ordering Major W. Jones, United States engineer corps, to take charge. Capt. Powell is unable to state just when he leaves, nor on what duty he will engage upon his arrival in the east, but will probably go within a month or six weeks. Major Jones, who succeeds him, is now stationed at San Francisco. The change is one of a dozen made by the same order, and is in accordance with the usual custom of transferring officers from one department to another at stated intervals.

Volume XXII. of H. H. Bancroft's elaborate history of the Pacific states has been received. This is an interesting volume, intended as a prelude to the forthcoming histories of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia. As to seacoast discoveries, it is confined to the space between 42° and 54° of latitude—substantially between California and Alaska—and the time closes with 1800. But interior exploration stretches over the vast area of British America, between the Rocky mountains, Arctic ocean, Hudson bay, Rupert's land and the American lakes, and is brought down to the end of the great Hudson bay company, well into the nineteenth century.

Mr. Weeks, Oregon cadet at the naval school at Annapolis, has resigned his cadetship, having been appointed a lieutenant in the army. The secretary of the navy has therefore called upon Hon. M. C. George to name some young man to fill the vacancy. The candidate must present himself at the naval academy not later than September 15, and must be between 14 and 18 years of age, and physically sound, well formed and robust, and must be proficient in reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, history and algebra. Congressman George is ready to receive applications at Portland.

At Portland, a week ago last Sunday, Hon. J. W. Nesmith suffered an attack resembling stroke or apoplexy. He was the guest of J. B. Montgomery, and in the afternoon had gone out for a walk. About 6 o'clock he was found sitting on the edge of the sidewalk in the western part of the city, in a semi-unconscious condition. He was conveyed to Montgomery's residence and the next day was able to be out, but he has no recollection of the events of the previous day.
