The Coast Mail,

MARSHFIELD, OREGON:
Thursday, : : : : : : : : : August 28, 1884

For the boss cigar, go to Sengstacken's drug store.

Mrs. Capt. Parker of Parkersburg is visiting on the bay.

Sheriff Simpson expects to move his family to Empire to-day.

Wild ducks have made their appearance in the bay below North Bend.

Capt. H. R. Reed went on to Portland by the new steamer Coos Bay.

Goods are selling at bed-rock prices at Sengstacken's Rocky Point store. *

Last week Capt. Littlefield had 30 or 40 men in the government employ at Rocky Point.

W. C. Deubner has moved into his new house. He sold his old house to W. A. Willard.

It should enter like a sunbeam into every parlor—the Empire City drug store "Sunbeam Tea." *

The Arcata brought up a fine stock of clothing, hats and dry goods for Sengstacken's Empire City store. *

Salt salmon were quoted in San Francisco last week at $6 50@$7 50 for bars and $3 50@$4 for half barrels.

Otto Anderson, the sailor, died of paralysis at the county hospital a week yesterday and was buried Thursday p. m.

The fore part of last week John Yoakum of South Coos river lost a two-year-old filly from what appeared to be the effects of poison.

Wm. Reichert's jovial countenance is no more illumines the Bayview brewery during Mr. Clemmensen's absence in San Francisco.

After the next arrival of the Arcata at least 100 Blaine hats will ornament the heads of that many republicans of this county who have sent for them.

Andrew Lockhart, his sister Aggie, C. H. Sengstacken and Miss Carrie Wolff went to North Coos river yesterday for a week's camping, fishing and a good time generally.

Manly Roberts and wife are now residents of this place and Manly is purser of the steamer Comet. Tom Lewis is Roberts' successor as engineer of the Coquille tug Katie Cook.

J. & I. Landrith of North Coos river return the thanks of ourself and wife for a box of remarkably nice plums of the Lombard variety, which will be properly preserved and duly appreciated hereafter.

J. J. Wilson and wife have returned to Grant's Pass, Jackson county, to reside with their sons on Rogue's creek. Mrs. Wilson's health is not good in the valley, and hence their return.

Mary Sengstacken has established a general merchandise store at Rocky Point, to meet the demand there for goods since the resumption of government work at the jetty. Taylor Siglin has charge of the new store.

Laredo & Son of the XLNT cash store have just received a large assortment of dress goods, embracing all the leading styles. It is no trouble for them to show goods and you are invited to call and inspect their new stock. *

Mrs. S. H. Hazard and wife returned to South Coos river Tuesday evening. Present Mrs. Hazard is stopping with her sister, Mrs. McLaughlin, of this place, and yesterday she was quite ill and threatened with an attack of fever.

J. M. Garrison, an employe of the mill, has taken a three-years lease of Mallory's ranch at Haynes slough. He pays a rental of $150 per annum for the place and the stock on it and is to receive half the increase of the stock, which includes a dozen cows, the best of thoroughbred Angora goats and about 50 chickens.

A delegation of democrats were engaged the other day in getting up a subscription list for Cleveland and Hendricks. What success they had we did not hear. They should hurry up, for the life of that hat is very short. In less than ninety days not one will be seen, and soon thereafter Cleveland will be out of sight except as the man who did time in a northern state.

County Sheriff Hickey and Mrs. C. F. Berry, who took Mrs. Berry to the insane asylum, returned home Saturday. They experienced very little trouble with their patient. As long as they were traveling she was comparatively quiet and went along under the hallucination that she was on her way to Europe. The only trouble they had with her was at the stopping places.

Chief Alison, chief engineer of the steamer Coos Bay, had the misfortune to have a fall while he was examining the steamer's machinery as she was coming up from San Francisco, and in the fall his right hand was caught in the machinery of the engine, which took off the ends of the two middle fingers and the end of the little finger. The hand was dressed by Dr. Tower after the arrival of the steamer at this place.

Mrs. Flanagan of Newport has been very seriously ill at her home during the past month. She returned from Portland when the road was in its worst condition, and soon after her arrival at Newport was taken sick and has had a succession of troubles since. During this time she has had a large abscess, which added greatly to reduce her already frail body. She is at present suffering from nervous exhaustion, but is improving slowly if no further complications arise.

Dr. R. C. Hunter returned from the lower Coquille Tuesday evening.

County court will meet next Monday and on the following Monday circuit court will meet at Empire.

Ah Soo, late steward of the Arcata, is now at the head of the cuisine department of the new steamer Coos Bay.

The Newport mine is now yielding per day 140 tons of the best coal it has ever yielded and the best coal that has ever been shipped from this bay.

Valentine Gant has returned to his Rowland ranch for a time. It wasn't hot in Tulare county, Cal., but Valentine finds Coos a cooler and pleasanter retreat at this season of the year.

Frank Lang offers for sale a very desirable residence in this place. It is the West house, next to Capt. Dunham's, and is worth more money than Frank asks for it. For particulars, see Frank at Empire or his father at this place.

Mrs. Abe Higley has reopened the restaurant in S. R. Crawford's building at the north end of Front street, where she serves excellent meals at 25 cents and sells bread, pies and cakes of the best quality at the lowest living rates. *

W. Phillips, formerly superintendent of the Eastport mine, left San Francisco for Mexico a short time ago, to inspect some mining properties there. His wife arrived by the last Arcata, on a visit to her relatives and friends at this place and vicinity.

The new tug Astoria arrived in the bay Tuesday and is now at North Bend, where she will be detained the remainder of this week, pending the doing of some work on her that needs to be done before she goes to the Columbia. She presents an admirable appearance. Capt. A. M. Simpson came up with her.

W. E. Newsome, agent for A. G. Walling's History of Southern Oregon, returned to the bay yesterday from his trip down the coast. He is on his way to Portland, for which place he will leave Empire to-morrow morning and go by way of Gardiner, Scottsburg and Drain.

Geo. Davis succeeded in raising Getty's scow that was sunk near Centerville a short time ago, and on Monday the scow was towed to Empire. None of the coal was lost. Whenever Davis goes after a thing it has to come. In his lexicon there is no such word as "fail," and he does not have any use for the word.

Dr. O. E. Smith and Henry Sengstacken have purchased of John Norman that vacant lot between Whitney's market and Mrs. Luse's millinery store, on the east side of Front street, and are making arrangements to immediately erect thereon a two-story frame building, 60 by 80 feet in size, half of the ground floor of which will be occupied by Sengstacken's drug store.

John Walin, son of Z. Walin of Willanch slough, had the misfortune to lose his left thumb last Thursday in a somewhat singular manner. The boy had been sent out to bring in a couple of horses. He had caught the horses and had them tied together with a piece of baling rope and a piece of a hair lariat, when his thumb became entangled in the rope, which the horses pulled taut in such a way as to cut, crush and twist the thumb off between the first and second joints, until the half of it hung by only one of the tendons. In this condition the boy was brought to town and taken to Dr. Tower, who severed the tendon and bestowed upon the thumb the treatment that the case required.

A gentleman who arrived by the last Arcata reports L. Simkins in San Francisco, healing the sick, lame and halt. He hasn't yet reached the blind. Simkins claims to have worked some wonderful cures. He declines to reveal the secrets of his process, but it is safe to say that it is of the spiritualistic nature. A medium cured Simkins of the lizzard he had in his stomach by convincing him that there was no lizzard there, and he is now fat and healthy, with pocketful of money. The mysterious dispatches that Simkins recently sent to the bay telling several persons where to search for "the body" were prompted by an "evil spirit" having told him that his wife at this place had committed suicide by drowning.

The new steamer Coos Bay, Capt. Denny, arrived here last Monday. She is a nice, staunch vessel, with accommodations for 24 cabin and 12 steerage passengers. In coming up her speed was about 8½ knots per hour. Mr. Lyle of the Coos Bay stave and lumber company and Capt. Thos. Harkins, two of the principal owners in the Coos Bay, came up on her and are well pleased with the vessel and compliment Capt. Reed very highly on his success in her construction. Champaign popped and flew and a good time prevailed in the dining room of the Coos Bay from the time she entered this port until she left. She having been built here and named for us, we all feel a special interest in her welfare, and none were backward in drinking to her prosperity. Her cost was $45,000; her state-rooms are large and well furnished, and her accommodations for passengers are first-class in every way. Her officers are: James E. Denny, captain; Geo. H. Freiermuth, purser; Frank Dowd, first officer; Joe Shingle, second officer; Chas. Alison, chief engineer; Alex. McDonald, second engineer. Monday evening the Coos Bay went up to the Newport wharf, where she remained that night and took in coal. Tuesday morning she went down to Empire and about noon Tuesday she left the bay for the Siuslaw, the Umpqua, Yaquina bay and the Columbia river. It is probable that she will reach here again some time next week, on her return to San Francisco.

THE ROSEBURG FIRE.

List of the Losses and Incidents Connected with the Conflagration.

[From the Plaindealer of August 23.]

About 12:10 Tuesday morning our citizens were aroused by the cry of fire and the vigorous ringing of the fire-bell. Scarcely had the cry been raised, when the whole town was brilliantly lighted by the flames, which broke out of the Metropolitan hotel, on the southwestern corner of Main and Jackson streets, and in a few hours two lives and many thousands of dollars worth of property were destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated from the explosion of a lamp in the Metropolitan hotel. The blocks on both sides of Jackson street, between Oak and Washington, were consumed, with the exception of a few buildings, and it was through the almost superhuman efforts of our fire department and citizens that Roseburg was not entirely destroyed.

The fire had scarcely broken out of the hotel when the buildings on the opposite side of the street were in flames, Moore & Cannon's saloon being the first to succumb to the fiery elements. All the buildings from the Metropolitan hotel up to Caro Bros. store, including the Metropolian and Criteser & Sheridan's saloons, were consumed in a very few minutes. The Warehouses and sheds in the rear of Caro Bros. store were next consumed, and then J. Jaskulek's jewelry store and Sheridan's hardware establishment followed. Here the fire was checked by the trees and evergreens growing in Mrs. Sheridan's yard.

On the opposite side of the street, from Hamilton's drug store up to the bank, nothing remains. The fire spread almost instantaneously, and L. Belfils' jewelry emporium, Hadley's barber-shop, Moore & Cannon's saloon, I. Langenberg's shoe store, Haynes' fancy goods store, and P. DaMotta's shaving saloon soon burned to the ground. The United States signal service office in DaMotta's building was consumed, only one instrument being saved.

Lou Zigler, proprietor of the Metropolitan hotel, was the first to raise the alarm. He ran from room to room in the building, awakening his guests, and undoubtedly many living to-day owe their lives to his noble and heroic conduct. He was finally overcome by the smoke and fire, however, and perished in the flames, his body being taken out of the ruins about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, in a charred condition. It is supposed that he injured himself in jumping from the second-story of the hotel, and hence was unable to save himself. Mrs. Zigler and her son Stell were quite seriously burned, but the others of the family escaped uninjured.

Many of the guests barely escaped with their lives, several being dangerously injured in their endeavors to escape the fiery elements. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Johansen of Astoria were severely burned and Mrs. Johansen died at 2 p. m. on Tuesday. She was severely burned all over, and was also thrown out of a second-story window. Johansen was burned around his head, neck, back, breast and feet, but will recover. He and his wife and son arrived here Monday evening, on their way south on a pleasure trip. He had been intimately acquainted with Zigler, and remained here that night to visit Zigler and family. Johansen's boy was badly burned at the fire, but he will probably recover. Mrs. Johansen's remains were taken to Astoria Wednesday for interment.

J. Newcomer and party, consisting of Miss Carrie Atchinson, Mrs. E. Schaffer and Ed. Atchinson, of Indiana, who were stopping at the Metropolitan hotel, barely escaped with their lives. They lost all their personal effects and some money, amounting to about $500.

When L. Belfils opened his safe, after the late fire, he found that out of $56 in paper money but one dollar remained, that being but slightly damaged. The rest fell to pieces as soon as touched. Some gold was also melted in his safe.

Judge H. A. Gaston of San Jose, Cal., had a very narrow escape. He lost all his personal property, including a fine gold watch and some money.

J. N. Casteel saved himself only by jumping from a window to a pile of lumber. He was soon supplied with clothing, however, by our liberal citizens.

Chas. Muir, an employe of the Independent, had a very narrow escape. When he awakened his room was in flames, and he jumped from his window and ran through the fire, burning his feet considerably.

During the explosion of powder and cartridges in Sheridan Bros. store, W. F. Owens, Wm. Saubert, Fred Tolls and A. W. Slimmon were holding the nozzle of the hose company, and are deserving of much praise for their bravery in standing at their post, while playing on that building.

E. F. Walsh, who roomed on the ground floor in the new addition to the Metropolitan hotel, states that he was awakened by the cry of fire, and on going to his door he was met by a sheet of flame and smoke. Closing his door as quickly as possible, he gathered up a few clothes and jumped through the window. As soon as he got into the alley he saw Mrs. Johansen walking along in a dazed condition, with her clothing on fire. He tore her clothing off and took her to a place of safety as quickly as possible. In making his escape from the hotel, Walsh saw Zigler. He was then lying with his head toward Jackson street and with his face toward the building, and was trying to protect his face from the fire by holding his arm against his face. Walsh sounded the alarm, but it was too late to save Zigler, who was quickly surrounded by the flames.

Miss Lucy Hay went out to Jackson county Monday evening to canvas for Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress." She too was one of the late boarders at the ill-fated Metropolitan hotel, where she left all her clothing and other things and will probably lose $300. She was, however, fortunate to escape so well. Had she been here it might have been even worse.

Many persons not mentioned were seriously but not dangerously hurt in escaping from the hotel and considerable private property was lost and a great deal damaged in its removal from the various houses that were burned.

Sheridan Bros. will in a few days open business in H. C. Slocum's new building.

The entire loss by the fire will amount to about $111,120, and the insurance is about $40,500. Following are the losses and insurance, as near as can be ascertained:

J. F. Barker, groceries; loss by removal, $400; insured.

Arthur Ostrander, restaurant, $400.

E. M. Moore, two buildings, stable and sheds, $3000; no insurance; damage to brick store, $700; no insurance.

S. Marks & Co., damage to building and stock, $3000; insured.

Mrs. T. P. Sheridan, damage to furniture and dwelling, $250; insured.

Ivan Moore & Co., saloon, $700; no insurance.

Criteser & Sheridan, saloon, $1500; insurance, $700.

H. C. Stanton, damage to store and postoffice and loss of warehouse, $6000; insurance, $3700.

Sheridan Bros., hardware, $16,000; insurance, $6000.

L. Langenberg, boots and shoes, $8000; insurance, $3000.

Phil. Da Motta, barber-shop, $4000; insurance, $1000.

D. C. McClellan, loss on hotel building, $3500; no insurance.

Zigler & Son, loss on hotel furniture and stock, $3000; insurance, $1200.

Caro Bros., loss on general merchandise and warehouse, $35,000; insurance, $12,050.

S. Hamilton, loss on buildings, etc., $3000; insurance, $2000.

Chas. Hadley, barber-shop, $200; no insurance.

Louis Belfils, jewelry, cigars and notions, $4000; no insurance.

R. McCulloch, saloon, $1000; insurance, $800.

A. C. Marsters & Co., drugs, loss to stock by removal, $200; insured.

John Levens, groceries, loss to stock by removal, $20; no insurance.

C. & R. Parks, groceries, loss to stock by removal, $50; no insurance.

Humphrey & Flint, bankers, damage to building, $500; no insurance.

M. Josephson, general merchandise, damage to stock, $2500; insured.

J. Jaskulek, jewelry, etc., $7000; insurance, $3000.

H. C. Slocum, building and saloon furniture, $3000; no insurance.

George Haynes, building and fancy goods, $3700; insurance, $1500.

Cannon Bros., saloon fixtures, $50; no insurance.

United States signal service office, $750.

The Oregonian of the 21st says: "Yesterday afternoon the remains of Mrs. Johansen, who lost her life Tuesday morning in the Roseburg fire, were brought to this city under escort of Dr. J. W. Strange and T. Ford, a committee from the Roseburg Odd Fellows. They will be taken to Astoria to-day. Two grown sons of Mrs. Johansen came up from Astoria last night. Johansen and his son, aged 16 years, were very badly burned about the face and head, each of their bodies being almost a solid blister from the shoulders up. It is thought both will recover. The hotel faced two streets, and was surrounded by a veranda, so that all occupants of the main part escaped by rushing to the veranda and jumping into the street. The fire caught in the oil room under the stairway, and this was the first to burn. Johansen and family occupied rooms in the second story of a wing, and did not know that a small back stairs led to the yard below. They heard the fire, and opening a door leading to the main stairway, were struck by the flames and severely burned. They retreated to their rooms and Johansen jumped to the ground, telling his wife and son to follow, he going first so as to break their fall. As soon as he touched the ground some man jumped from the building on him and stunned him so that he was insensible for two or three minutes. The boy jumped out. While Mrs. Johanson was waiting for her husband's call, and he lying insensible below, the flames enveloped her. A one-armed man named Walsh, who used to be in Portland a great deal in 1882, knew the existence of the back stairs and was making his escape that way, when he saw Mrs. Johansen, seized her, carried her down with his only arm and tore her burning clothing from her, himself being severely burned.

On the 10th inst. Andy Wilson, a farmer residing about eight miles east of Florence, was drowned in the Siuslaw river, on the way home. He was in company with two men named McDaniels and Rawlins. Wilson was standing up in the boat, when it happened that he stumbled and fell overboard, which capized the boat, with its contents. He sank once, then rose and attempted to swim, but gave up and went to the bottom. The body had not been found at latest accounts.

There are two very good reasons why "Sunbeam Tea" should possess aroma and invigorating power of high order, and these reasons are that it has been scientifically cured by the Perfection Process, and is imported direct from Japan by Henry Sengstacken, only in Perfection Tea Cans, for his Empire City drug store. *

The Plaindealer understands that ex-Sheriff John Lane will settle up his affairs at Empire City and soon move to Roseburg.

Circuit Court Jurors.

Following is the circuit court jury list for the term to begin a week from next Monday:

Sam. Hancock, Parkersburg—farmer;
L. M. Noble, Marshfield—teamster;
A. Urquhart, Freedom—farmer;
Wm. Rohm, Coquille City—laborer;

Passengers by Steamer.

The steamer Arcata arrived at Empire last Thursday morning, with a large quantity of freight for that place and North Bend, and she did not reach her wharf at this place until late in the afternoon. Following is a list of her passengers: Mr. Chessround, Mr. Coon, A. S. Wadleigh, Mrs. W. Phillips, Capt. G. A. Holt, D. I. DeLauny, D. L. Harback, E. Saunders, Frank Gamble, Sherman Gamble, A. Sutherland, Mr. Jacobi, David Holland and 14 in the steerage.

The Arcata sailed last Sunday, with the following-named passengers: D. H. Getchell, M. V. Brown, F. Johnson, Lars Clemmensen, Mrs. Galloway, Mrs. Maguire, W. Wagner, W. Grotegut, E. W. Sprague and family, Mrs. Cotton, Mrs. Hepburn, J. K. Vanderburg, J. McCoy, Chas. Charmak, Al. Dye, Geo. Clark, John Messerlie, A. J. Isaacs and M. J. Strickland.

Following is a list of the passengers aboard the new steamer Coos Bay when she arrived Monday: Miss Jennie Ross, Miss Jennie Thelin, Miss E. Anderson, J. D. Klopstock, J. F. Miller, Kennith McIntosh, F. Bischoff, Mr. Lyle, Capt. Thos. Harkins, Capt. H. R. Reed and family, Edward Reed, W. M. Ross and Chas. Hollan.

Parkersburg Items.

To the Editor of the COAST MAIL:

The rattle of machinery and the singing of the circular saw by day and the flapping of the salmons' tails, the steady thud of the oar and the merry whistle of the fisherman at nightfall make Parkersburg the liveliest point on the river.

A new school house has lately been erected here, and the school, under the management of Prof. Welsh, has proven to be second to none on the river.

A grand hop was given at Bandon on the night of the 16th, at which all had a good time, and the salmon had a rest, while the fishermen danced, till midnight.

A few days ago the news reached us of the death of the babe of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Steward. This makes the fifth family burial within the last four years. The bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of this community.

The cannery here has proven to be a great auxiliary to the fishing interest on the Coquille. Everything is now ready for a large run of salmon. About 40 white men and 19 boats are employed, with a delegation of 90 Chinamen to do the dirty work. At present the cannery is putting up only about 75 cases per day, with a capacity to put up about 500, which it is expected to do later in the season. TARANTULA.

Parkersburg, August 25, 1884.

Last Sunday evening as John J. Clinkinbeard of Daniels creek was preparing to partake of his evening meal, one of the neighbor boys ran to his house and said he saw a bear crossing Clinkinbeard's pasture. Now, John has no intention of having his own or his neighbors' hogs eaten by bears if he can prevent it; so, seizing his rifle and a handful of cartridges, he started in hot pursuit of Bruin. When he caught sight of that bear, John meant business and blazed away, wondering, meanwhile, what the good people would think, as hunting on Sunday is one of the unpardonable sins; nevertheless, he still meant business; but that bear didn't fall when John shot; it kept slowly moving over the brow of the hill. John felt and looked as if there was something strange about that bear; but he let drive at it once again, when, lo! (to improve on Scott,) "From bush and brocken, near and far, a laughing man arose." It was only Bruin's skin that John had been bombarding. They had it fixed up pretty well, both for the bear and John; but what gets away with John is that they were all church members or church members' sons—from little boys to old grayheaded men—returning from divine services, one good brother holding a rope attached to the skin in order to draw it into the bush. John acknowledges the joke, and says if it were not for fear of hurting the feelings of most of the crowd he would treat; at any rate, he will stand the cigars, as most of them consider them quite a luxury.

Biographical Sketch of the Late Lou. Zigler.

[From the Plaindealer of August 23.]

During the fire Tuesday morning, Louis H. Zigler was endeavoring to awken the guests in the Metropolitan hotel, and it is supposed that in jumping from a second-story window to save himself he was so injured that he was unable to escape. He was seen by parties, who were unable to assist him, lying in the alley, with his head toward the street, and trying to protect his face by holding his arm up against it. In the death of Mr. Zigler Roseburg loses one of her most highly-respected citizens, and a man universally beloved by all who knew him. The following account of his life will be found to be nearly correct:

Louis H. Zigler was born in Botetour county, Virginia, May 20, 1829. When only three years old the family moved to South Bend, Indiana, taking him along, and there remained until Louis attained his majority. During his residence at South Bend he learned the blacksmith trade and followed that business at intervals during the remainder of his life. At the time of the gold excitement in California he concluded to cast his fortunes in the wild west, and accordingly, in 1850, crossed the plains and arrived at Portland, Oregon, the same year. He found employment there, but remained only a short time, and then went to Yreka, Cal., and mined on Humbug in 1852. From there he went to Jacksonville, and in May, 1855, was married to Miss Sarah Plymale, and to them was born a family of eight children, six of whom are living. He lived in Jacksonville about 20 years, and while there engaged in blacksmithing and mining. In 1872 Mr. Zigler came to Roseburg and engaged in the hotel business. A year and a half later he went to Coos bay and was in business there eight years, and in 1882 returned to Roseburg and leased the Metropolitan hotel, in which business he was engaged at the time of his tragic death. Mr. Zigler, at the time of his death, was 55 years, 2 months and 29 days old, and leaves a wife and six children to mourn his untimely death. He has several brothers and sisters living at South Bend, Indiana, and a large number of relatives and a host of friends throughout Oregon. "Lou.," as he was familiarly called by those intimately acquainted with him, was well-known throughout southern Oregon and northern California, and was noted for his liberality and kind-heartedness. He was generous to almost a fault, as he would give his last dollar to any one who would ask for it or to one in distress. He is closely connected with the early history of Jacksonville, and his death will be greatly regretted by the pioneers of Rogue river valley who survive him. He was kind and generous to his family, whom he provided with everything that it was in his power to obtain for their comfort and happiness, and their distress and sorrow in this terrible hour of affliction involves this once happy family in excruciating pain. The strongest sympathy is due them, and is freely given by their large circle of friends, whose prayer is, that God in his infinate power and mercy extend his protecting arm over them, and sustain and comfort the grief-stricken family of him who was borne to his last resting place in the Odd Fellows cemetery Thursday, August 21. May he rest in peace.

Prof. Mart. Taylor, well known in southern Oregon, says the Plaindealer, was recently examined before a commission of lunacy at Red Bluff, Cal., to determine whether or not he was insane. Next day Taylor was peddling charts of Cleveland and Hendricks, which was an evidence of insanity.

A 15-year-old son of Adam Andre was killed near McMinnville on the 18th inst. by being thrown from a load of reaped wheat by a runaway team. The wagon passed over his body, killing him almost instantly. He was driving the team, and was an unusually bright and promising boy.

Peter Salling, an old and highly-respected citizen of La Grande valley, was shot and killed by his son Henry on the 17th inst. while they were hunting deer. The boy surrendered himself and explained the circumstances of the tragedy, but it didn't restore his father to life.

W. S. Jenkins was taken before Justice Hyde last Tuesday on a charge of selling liquor at Sumner without a license and was held in the sum of $100 to answer before the grand jury at the next term of circuit court.

Ten bridges, says the Plaindealer, are being built by Salisbury, Hailey & Co. on the Coos bay road, between Roseburg and the North Fork hill, besides numerous repairs being made to the road and other bridges.

Herman Bischoff, a laborer employed at the Summit on the Oregon Pacific railroad, was killed almost instantly on the 18th inst. by falling from a trestle 35 feet high and striking on his head.
