 Parties knowing themselves indebted to the undersigned, at either Coos Bay or Empire City Drug Store, are respectfully requested to settle their accounts at the respective stores up to January 1, 1885. [ja8] HENRY SENGSTACKEN.

Go to Ramsdell for the best photographs.
 Fine imported cigars at Sengstacken's drug store.
 The Sewing society will meet at the reading-rooms to-day.
 C. H. Merchant left Portland for San Francisco last Friday night.
 Full line of school-books and stationery at Sengstacken's drug store.

The Herald editor's clothes don't appear to set well with his new ears.
 For pure wines and liquors for medicinal use, go to Sengstacken's drug store.

S. R. Lane is reported to be doing a paying business at his black-sand mine near Randolph.

How to make home cheerful: Go to Golden's drug store and get one of those handsome gold-fish globes.

The bar has been rough this week and the steamer Arcata is still at Empire. She may get out to-day.

Ed. Moore and wife returned to the bay last Saturday and proceeded to her mother's residence, on South Coos river.

John Kenyon has a splendid assortment of valentines. What he cannot supply you with in that line you don't need.

Schetter & Co. have enlarged and changed things around at their market until it is fully up to the requirements of the times.

A bill to incorporate Empire City has been introduced in the legislature. There being no opposition, of course it will become a law.

Drugs and medicines fresh by every steamer, at Golden's drug store. If you have to take medicine, be sure it is fresh and pure, and get it from Golden.

The new bunker of the Newport coal company was completed last Tuesday, at which time they commenced dumping coal into it. Vessels will load there hereafter.

New styles of valentines at Golden's drug store—some with easels, some to hang on the walls as parlor ornaments, and some so comical as to make the soberest smile.

The sewing society surprised Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Connell at their residence Wednesday evening of last week, armed and equipped for the occasion, and a pleasant party ensued.

Ole Eversen has leased a part of Dillon & Ross' new building south of the postoffice, where he has opened a shop and is prepared to do cabinet work and all kinds of wood-work in his line.

Yesterday the wreck of the Sol Thomas was towed from Empire to North Bend, where Geo. Davis delivered it to Simpson Bros' representatives in the condition that he had agreed to deliver it.

John Hardin, the shoemaker, has moved from Utter City to Empire, and now the once-thriving place of Utter City, like Henryville, its neighbor across the slough, is without an inhabitant.

Golden is offering the finest gold and silver watches at astonishingly low prices at his drug store. Why buy cheap ones when you can get first-class ones under a guarantee from him at "cheap prices?"

Last week Lyman Noble lost an ox. While the team was being pulled to pull a log, the ox got his neck twisted in the bow and yoke in such a way that it was broken by a sudden and violent movement of his mate.

In going to the concert last Saturday night Mrs. C. Stora lost her purse, containing $30. There was nothing remarkable about this, but it was remarkable that it was found on the sawdust next day and returned to the owner.

John A. Rode has left his place on the Coquille, above Myrtle Point, and is now residing at North Bend with Charles Eckhoff, his son-in-law. Mr. Rode has passed his three-score and ten, and will spend the remainder of his days on the bay.

Episcopal services will be held at Empire next Sunday, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. After the morning service there will be holy communion and in the evening a collection will be taken up to meet expenses connected with the services of the church.

The steamer Arcata arrived last Friday. Her passenger list consisted of Miss Mary McNamara, Miss Ethel Sherwood and one in the steerage. Among the freight of the Arcata was a large lot of machinery for the O. S. I. company's new mill at Empire.

John Woodmansee is again on the bay, our genial winter climate suiting his system better about this time than any other climate on the coast. The fishing enterprise in which he is interested at the Siuslaw is dormant at present. Woodmansee was in the big snow blockade on the Northern Pacific this winter, and he says the victims of it had a tougher time than has ever been reported.

Matt Stora had a birthday party at his place on North Coos river last Sunday, and those who attended say they never had a more enjoyable time in all their lives. The music, wine and viands were abundant and of the best, and the passengers that the steamer Bertha brought down Monday evening showed that the crowd from this place was large and returned home as merry as if just from a marriage feast.

The San Francisco coal market is said to be overstocked and the shipments from this place are to be cut down until an improvement takes place. Last week Newport coal was selling at $6 25, and Renton and Seattle at $7.

The Sunday School Concert.

The amateur entertainment given at the academy building last Saturday night for the benefit of the Marshfield Sunday school is pronounced a grand success in every way. The house was crowded and all who took part in the concert performed their respective parts quite as well as could have been expected, while some did much better than their most sanguine friends anticipated, and no one who attended regretted having gone. The programme consisted of Music by the Marshfield brass band.
 Song of greeting.
 Dialogue—"The Hoyden"—by Miss Sadie McKnight as Miss Jennie Harding, an heiress; Miss Blanche Bates as Mrs. Harding, Jennie's stepmother; Miss Helen Greene as Miss James, a school-mistress, and J. W. Byers as Geo. Grant, a young student.
 Tableau—"The Bridle Scene."
 Reading—"Don't You Tell"—by Miss Sadie Hall.
 Recitation—"Bingen on the Rhine"—by Miss Allie Clinkinbeard.
 Dialogue—"Plain Speaking"—by Miss Sadie Hall as Aunt Judy, and Miss Carrie Norton and Miss Emma Davis, as Aunt Judy's nieces.
 Reading—"Cleopatra Dying"—by Miss Mollie Hall.
 Song—"Where is My Truant Boy"—by Miss Mary Girty. To an encore Miss Girty sang "My Good-Looking Man."
 Recitation—"My First Step"—by J. W. Byers. To the encore Mr. Byers gave "The Courtship."
 Dialogue—"A Precious Pickle"—by Miss Hattie Crippins, Miss Emma Anderson and Miss Carrie Norton, as three city girls, and Miss Allie Clinkinbeard as Juno, a colored servant; Miss Charlotte Vanderburg as Miss Peas, Juno's mistress; Mrs. M. T. Chester as Mrs. Gabol, and Miss Ida Chester as Sissie Gabol.
 Recitation—"The Auction of Old Bachelors"—by Miss Charlotte Vanderburg.
 Tableau—"The End of Man."
 Song—"Good-Night"—by the choir.
 The entertainment concluded with a magic lantern display of sundry scenes, which, by the assistance of the boys on the back benches, created immense amusement and caused all to go home in a good humor except the man who bossed the business.
 The net proceeds of the concert were about $60.

Unclaimed Letters.

Following is a list of the unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice at Marshfield, Coos county, Or., February 1, 1885: Albers John H., Barlow A. T., Berlin Frank, Beasley David, Carrigan D. W. 2, Co Charles F., Greenlaw Lustrus, Gabriel John, Gallier E. M., Howland Mrs., Hamilton C. N., Hamilton E. J., Jacobs S. F., Leewey Jas., Schwahn Herman, Toft Iver 2, Wilson J., Wheeler Wm J. Tnos. Hinar, Postmaster.

School Report for January, 1885.

Number of days school kept open, 20; number of days attendance, 2612; number of days absence, 346; number of cases of tardiness, 141; number of boys enrolled, 74; number of girls enrolled, 81; total number enrolled, 155; average number belonging, 147.9; average daily attendance, 130.6.

This report still shows an alarming number of absent and tardy pupils. We sincerely hope that the parents will co-operate with the teachers, so that we can show a more favorable report in the future. Sincerely,
J. D. HAWES, Principal.
 Marshfield, February 4, 1885.

Cornelius Vandyke was brought from Gardner last Thursday, by Marshal Rhodes, on a charge of having stolen from Niels Rasmussen a pair of trousers, a vest, an oil coat and three pairs of blankets. Vandyke was tried before Recorder Hyde on Friday, convicted, and fined $30 and costs. Being unable to pay the fine, he was sent to the county jail for 15 days.

Mrs. Mary P. Butler of East Greenwich, R. I., formerly a resident of this place, contemplates visiting her sister here, Mrs. David Holland, this spring. Mrs. Butler intended coming some weeks since, but her visit was delayed by a fall that she received on an icy sidewalk, and by which she was severely crippled in one ankle.

D. Block of San Francisco came up a few weeks ago to inspect Abe Rose's black-sand mine near Randolph, and it is reported that he has bonded the mine at $3500. Block thinks he possesses a process by which most of the gold can be saved, and if he is not deceived, he has a big thing on black sand.

J. W. Catching of Sumner is adding, as he has opportunities to buy on favorable terms, to a band of young cattle that he will this spring drive to a ranch near North Canyonville, in Douglas county, where he and his uncle, R. M. Russell, propose to embark in the bovine business.

The San Francisco coal market is said to be overstocked and the shipments from this place are to be cut down until an improvement takes place. Last week Newport coal was selling at $6 25, and Renton and Seattle at $7.

To the Ladies.

They will find at Mrs. F. MARK'S the Ross Novelty Rug Machine. Very simple and easy. Any child can use it; but any one not fully understanding the art can receive instructions, free of charge, from Mrs. Capt. Chester, who will be found at Mrs. Mark's.

Clamps and frames, and Turkish rugs of all patterns and styles. Also all shades of yarn, for $1 10 per pound. ja22

Special Notice.

All notes and accounts in favor of H. F. WHITNEY are left in my hands, and all persons interested are requested to call and settle the same. In case this notice fails to accomplish its object, I am directed to place the notes, as they become due, in the hands of an attorney for collection. ECKHART O'CONNELL.
 Marshfield, December 18, 1884.

Hay for Sale in Quantities to Suit.

I have at my shed, at the mouth of Daniels creek, on South Coos river, as good an article of grass hay as was ever produced in Coos county, for sale at the lowest market rates and in quantities to suit purchasers. C. W. DICKMAN.

Restaurant Business for Sale Cheap!

Any person wishing to purchase a paying restaurant business, with tables, chairs, dishes, etc., for 50 or more customers, can hear of a bargain by calling upon MATT STORA, Jr., at the Marshfield lunch rooms, Front street. ja22

Homes Wanted.

For one girl, aged 12 years, and three boys, aged respectively, 8, 10 and 14 years. Persons wishing to adopt or bind one of these children as an apprentice can apply to any member of the board of county commissioners. ja29 3w

Coal in Quantities to Suit.

Coal delivered in any part of town, in large or small quantities, to suit purchasers, at reasonable rates. Parties will find it to their advantage to deal with us.
ROBT. A. CHURCH.
WALTER W. DUGGAN.

Notice to Loggers.

Spruce logs, 12 and 16 feet in length, are wanted at the Marshfield stage mill.
J. J. EARLE, Superintendent.

The 15 head of thoroughbred cattle that R. C. Dement of Myrtle Point brought out from Ohio last fall are reported as doing remarkably well in our mild climate this winter. Three Devons that Dement brought for Col. T. J. Beale were left at the colonel's place in Douglas county. The others were Short-horn Durhams. John Weaver of Sumner has a bull and two heifers, and a W. A. Luse of South Coos river has a bull and two heifers. Dement brought a fine bull for his father and two bulls and three heifers for himself. Subsequently Dement sold one of his bulls and a heifer to J. W. Catching of Sumner. The most of this stock came from Geo. Dun's farm, in Plumbwood county, Ohio, and those who sent for it are well pleased with Dement's selections and their bargains. Luse's three head cost him about $1300. Catching paid something over $500 for the two that he purchased of Dement, and he has a standing offer for them away above the amount he paid. Coos county is now the possessor of some of the finest Short-horn stock that is on the Pacific coast, and it will soon make its mark in big beeves. When Whitney returns next summer he is liable to bring more of it.

We had some strong wind at this place last Sunday night and the framework of the new Swedish church, recently erected on the sawdust, was blown down, and of course greatly damaged. This is to be regretted, for it is an uphill business to raise money in this place to build houses of worship once, and to have them blow down when partly up and be put to extra expense in rebuilding is really too bad.

Last week Geo. Davis found Louis Nielson's new gold watch in the wreck of the Sol Thomas, in the pocket of a vest that Nielson had evidently hung up prior to the explosion. The watch did not appear to have been injured by the water, but the works were immersed in coal oil, to remove any rust that might have formed on them. Subsequently the watch was left at the North Bend store.

Capt. H. W. Dunham is doing a good passenger and freight business on the new run that he has taken for the old and favorite steamer Coos. In lying at Empire at night, and making two round trips between that place and this every day, Capt. Dunham has filled a long-felt want, and the act is appreciated by the traveling public.

Last Monday Getchell's saw-mill at this place started up again, on an order for 4000 boxes for the glass-works at San Francisco and on an unlimited order for nail kegs, the recent rise in the price of nails having revived that trade to an extent to justify the manufacturers in again going ahead with it.

The Review says E. J. Kyes, the veterinarian and indefatigable saw-mill man, has just returned to Roseburg from a trip to Randolph, in this county, where he made arguments with S. R. Lane to erect a saw-mill on the latter's place at Deer creek, in Douglas county.

D. J. McLaughlin has decided to go to Green river, W. T., and expects to depart for that place within two weeks. Mrs. McLaughlin will remain here, with her mother, until her husband gets started in business at Green river and furnishes a residence there.

Chas. Gardiner, foreman at one of the bridges being built on the Oregon Pacific railroad, was knocked from the bridge by a passing train last week, fell a distance of 20 feet, and broke his neck.

The State Penitentiary.

"For a detailed statement of the management of the state penitentiary during the past two years" the governor "respectfully calls the attention of the legislature to the report of the superintendent." We have examined that report, and while it is depressing to see that the number of convicts is so large and that their number seems to be increasing out of proportion to the increase of population in the state, it is gratifying to learn that they are for the most part profitably employed. The superintendent says that "the results of the employment of the convicts under the existing contract so far are most satisfactory." On the 31st of last December there were 274 convicts; on the 31st of March, 1885, there were 190. The gross expense for keeping each prisoner has been $2 19 and a fraction, a cost somewhat greater than the gross expense for the previous two years. The net expense has been $1 23 and a fraction. This does not include "work done or brick furnished for the asylum, workshops and about the penitentiary, nor the value of brick and material on hand. A moderate estimate of the value of the property on hand, and uncollected accounts for bricks sold, would reduce the net cost below 75 cents a week."

Although the prison has been occupied but ten years, it needs extensive repairs, not only for the secure confinement of prisoners, but for their protection against disease and death. Many of the cells now in use are built of iron and are poorly adapted to a damp climate. Those of brick are less damp, but the greatest fault with them all is that they are not large enough. They contain 378 cubic feet of air space—180 feet to each man, including bedding and furniture, which is less than half the necessary amount of air space required for health. This defect causes many physical disorders, and it must at the same time so affect the nervous condition of the men as to interfere with the discipline of the prison. A man made neuragic by damp and confined air is not a fit subject for reformatory discipline. The object of the institution is thus defeated in a large measure, and at the same time the state suffers a large annual loss. The attention of the legislature cannot be too strongly directed to the necessity of making the repairs suggested by this report. We should remember that the inmates of the prison, although criminals, are still "God's creatures," as an economical but humane man in another state called the town's poor, and that the state is bound to take humane care of them.

The governor called attention in his message to the fact that within less than two years more than 40 persons were committed to the prison under 20 years of age. The degree of their crimes is not stated, but as we have no house of correction or reform school, there is no other place where any youthful offender can be committed who is liable to imprisonment. It is a very old question how far punishment, severe or otherwise, operates as a preventive of crime. It has not been answered yet to our satisfaction, nor can we say when it will be, if ever. It is not many years since in England a farthing's difference in the value of stolen property meant—the gallows; to steal the value of a shilling meant—hanging. The law is more merciful nowadays, but who can say, taking all things into account, that people steal more than when they had the hangman in prospect. Punishment has a two-fold object—the protection of society first, and then the reformation of the criminal. But the first must not be permitted to overshadow the second, so that it be lost sight of. The question is, how is the public, how is society to be protected against a recurrence of the offense? That is the question to be considered, in dealing with the offender.

So long as the offender is in prison society is protected against him, and there is no doubt that others disposed to crime are deterred to a certain degree by his imprisonment. Still it is to be regretted that there is no more suitable place for the punishment of youthful offenders than the state penitentiary.—[Portland paper.]

A Desperate Fight with Mutineers.

The Swedish brigantine Natal arrived at New York on the 28th ult. On her outward trip, from Boston to Brisbane and Queensland, a fearful mutiny occurred, of which Capt. Enstrom gives the following account: When two months out the captain was attacked in his berth at night by the carpenter, armed with a broad-ax, but aided by the mate he beat off his assailant, who was joined by the steward, also armed. The captain staunchly his wounds, and he and the mate armed themselves with a gun and a revolver and sallied out, where they were met by the carpenter, steward and three sailors, armed with axes, sheath knives and capstan bars. In the struggle the captain's pistol was captured, and the mate was shot under the right eye and in the chin. The captain received numerous wounds and slashes from sheath knives. The mutineers retreated into the forehold, where they were imprisoned, as was supposed, by the battering down of the hatches. The captain and the mate took in the topsails and outer jibs, and then searched for the second mate, who was the captain's son. He found his cap, gashed and bloody. He had been murdered and thrown overboard. Suddenly they discovered the carpenter skulking behind the captain, and he was overpowered and tied. The captain and the mate worked the vessel for four days, and then loosened the fore hatch and called on the mutineers to come up, disarm and surrender. They tumbled up, threw their sheath knives on the deck, and muttered that their pistols had been lost below. The captain had no log irons or handcuffs with which to secure them, and as he believed they lied, he shot the carpenter and the steward dead, and threw their bodies overboard. Rufus and Tonton, the two seamen, agreed to obey orders after that.

Dastardly Dynamite Deeds.

The most successful demonstration yet made by the dynamiters was that on the White-tower building at London on the 24th ult., when it was crowded with sight-seers. No one was killed outright, but two or three were mortally wounded, and the damage to the building is estimated at three-quarters of a million of dollars. There were two explosions. The first occurred in the crypt of Westminster hall, the great window over the main entrance to which was smashed to atoms and all the side windows blown out. Three minutes later a still more destructive explosion took place in the Parliament building, from dynamite placed under the peers' gallery on the left side. The force of this explosion was such that a man 300 yards away was blown to the ground and the lobby of the house was completely demolished.

The favorite theory of the police is that the dynamite which caused the explosion was carried to the place in each case concealed under the long cloak of a woman, whose appearance was thus made to resemble one about to become a mother. A woman in whom this appearance was very noticeable was seen among visitors of the tower shortly before the explosion occurred. She was escorted by a tall man with a military air. Neither of them could be found after the gates were closed after the explosion and when the visitors came to be searched. It is supposed the woman and escort escaped during the rush that occurred just after the explosion and before the gates were closed.

The explosion at the tower found vent at the roof by blowing out the skylight of thick plate-glass. The dynamite played its maddest tricks with a number of Martini rifles that were stored in the banquet hall, used as an armory, and which were shortly to be used to volunteers. Many of them were twisted into all eccentric shapes imaginable and their distorted forms scattered about the apartment in a marvel of confusion.

In the Parliament house the explosion wrenched off the Irish harp that forms a part of the ornamental work on the panels and the harp dropped into the seat of a Parliament member. Foster's seat was ripped up. At the gold letters "V. R." on the desk opposite Gladstone's seat the V. was torn away.

An Irishman named Cunningham is under arrest for complicity in the explosions. A St. Louis dispatch says he is the same young fellow who two years ago lived there and who was written up at the time as an explosive and infernal machine maker, and full of schemes to blow up all the public buildings of London. He was known there as Michael F. Byrne. He was a harness-maker by trade, and devoted his spare time to an' money to experimenting in explosives, and making infernal machines. He also lived in Chicago, where he was known as James Gilbert, and in Philadelphia, where he went by the name of James Cunningham. He claimed to have been obliged to leave Ireland because he was implicated in the murder of a landlord, but this story was not much relied upon by his friends. He was in Denver last August, but since then has not been heard from until his recent arrest in London.

When the Arcata left San Francisco last Capt. Gage of the steamer Uki was expecting orders to go to get sound and engage in the carrying of coal between that place and Portland, under charter by the Oregon improvement company.

A. J. Sherwood has returned from his trip to the valley and now makes his headquarters on the Coquille. He was on the bay yesterday. Sherwood says Marshfield presents a more prosperous appearance than any town he visited east of the mountains.

Jas. Laird has a large force of men employed on the Coos bay wagon road, and in a few days he will have it opened so that he can run wagons again.

It is surprising what elaborate valentines they are getting up now. Go to Golden's drug store and see the finest ever offered for sale in Oregon.

J. W. Hamilton and wife returned to Roseburg on the 28th ult., and were escorted a reception that evening at the residence of his parents.

Joe Howard, a native of this state, aged 40 years, and a somewhat noted character, died at Corvallis on the 23d ult.
