MARSHFIELD, OREGON.
Thursday, 11:11:11 April 2, 1885

Notice.

Parties knowing themselves indebted to the undersigned, at either Coos Bay or Empire City Drug Store, are respectfully requested to settle their accounts at the respective stores up to January 1, 1885. [JAS] HENRY SENGSTACKEN.

Go to Garfield's to get your barbed wire cheap.

Garfield has for sale the celebrated Buckeye mowers, the best in use.

Mrs. E. S. Robertson has been engaged to teach the public school at the forks of Coos river.

E. Sinclair, late of San Francisco, is D. F. Gould's successor as clerk at Golden's drug store.

When one preacher says another preacher has lied there is a lie out between the preachers.

S. A. Arrington and wife expect to leave the bay next Monday for a visit to his relatives in Douglas county.

A throw of 41 won the ship model raffled at the Bon Ton saloon last Saturday night. A. Wilson was the lucky man.

One of the ancient hand-marks of Empire—the old Luse saw mill, erected more than 30 years ago—is being obliterated.

The tug-boat Astoria, recently built at North Bend, and now in service at the Columbia river bar, is a Coos boat there, both for speed and power.

A gentleman who ought to know says Anderson is a member of the K. U. B. and that he is now receiving "benefits." That may be so; but such benefits! Go to with our interest in them.

Our subscribers who have received sample copies of the Philadelphia Press are requested to give it a critical examination. We club with the Press and our terms for it and the Mail are $3.

Yesterday J. D. Hawes, late principal of our public school, departed for his home at East Portland, carrying with him the best wishes of a host of friends he made during his sojourn on the bay.

County court will meet next week, when all taxes due will be returned delinquent, so delinquents had better see the sheriff, settle and save extra costs, for if you don't he will certainly be after you soon.

Tuesday last week the engine of the new mill at Empire was started by the generation of steam in three of the boilers. Friday three more of the boilers were tried, the results being satisfactory on both occasions.

Capt. W. A. Cox of Florence has purchased of Capt. Duffy the schooner Swallow, now lying on a mud flat in the Umpqua river. The vessel will be repaired, provided with steam machinery, and fitted for the Sitka trade.

Several persons on the bay have received neatly-printed invitations to attend the launching of the Newport coal company's new steel steamer at San Francisco to-day. Arago is her name, and she is the first iron or steel vessel built on the Pacific coast.

Miss Leville Clinkinbeard has accepted the offer made her to teach the public school in district 24, at Hon. J. H. Roberts' place below Myrtle Point. The directors, parents and scholars of district 24 will find Miss Clinkinbeard an agreeable and competent teacher.

Dr. Saubert & Co. are erecting their saw mill on the Sitka at a point called Gagne, three miles above Florence. The piles were all driven two weeks ago, at which time the proprietors of the mill expected to have its machinery in running order this week. The price to be paid for logs has been fixed $2.50 per thousand feet.

Last Sunday the Empire brass band chartered the steamer Coos and had a picnic at the forks of Coos river. The steamer touched at this place and took aboard some of our citizens as wanted to go. The day was fine, the crowd fully equal to the capacity of the steamer, and the excursion was enjoyed by all who participated in it.

Mrs. J. A. Egenhoff and children returned from Astoria last Saturday, on a visit to her parents on Coos river. Mrs. Egenhoff's numerous friends were glad to meet her and her children, all in excellent health. She likes Astoria and the place of residence. Egenhoff is well and prosperous and still chief engineer of the tug Astoria.

The steamer Arcata's stay in the upper bay this trip was brief. She reached this place about daylight Monday morning, left her freight and passengers, went to the bunkers and took in her cargo, and returned to Empire fully laden, ready for sea, and expected to sail Tuesday, but was detained by a bad bar until yesterday, when she went out.

A woman's relief corps of the G. A. R. was organized at this place last week by the election and installation of the following officers: Mrs. N. Signa, president; Mrs. M. C. Lightner, senior vice president; Mrs. M. C. Lightner, junior vice president; Mrs. M. B. Ramsdell, secretary; Mrs. E. J. Webber, treasurer; Miss Annie Webber, conductor; Mrs. E. Woodward, chaplain; Mrs. Frank Elrod, guard.

Last Friday night 50 or 60 of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nasburg assembled at their residence and gave their new house a jolly warming. The house is built in style, with all modern improvements and conveniences, such as no other house in the county has and as few in this part of the state have, and the party was in keeping with the house. Whatever Nasburg does he does well, and his friends were royally entertained. The wines were of the finest and the lunch for the occasion surpassed in excellence anything of the kind ever prepared in this place. Good music was also there and those who were fond of it tripped their light fantastic toes, while the more sedate played games and listened to the sweet strains of the piano and melodious voices, until the small hours of the morning admonished them that it was time to go, when they departed, wishing their host and hostess prosperity, long lives and unalloyed happiness in their new home.

CRIM. CON. CASE.

D. I. DeLauny Loads E. A. Anderson With Lead.

Something of a sensation was created in this place about 9 o'clock last Saturday forenoon by David I. DeLauny shooting Edward A. Anderson.

The shooting took place at the adjoining residences of the two men and the weapon used was a double-barreled shotgun loaded with slugs, bullets and buckshot.

DeLauny fired from a second-story window in the gable end of his house, while Anderson was some 30 yards away, planting some seeds near the high board fence along the south side of his lot.

Six of the shot or bullets took effect. One entered the left breast and ranged inward. Another penetrated the scalp near the crown of the head, passed under the skin and next to the skull for a distance of two or three inches, and passed out. Another struck on the outer side of the left leg, half-way between the knee and the hip, and passed out. Another struck about the center of the left thigh, ranging in towards the bone. Another passed through the victim's pants, left a lead mark on his drawers and burnt a round hole in the skin of the leg beneath, and a sixth struck the right hand, between the knuckles of the first and second fingers, followed the bone and came out near the wrist.

Anderson walked into the house and was helped by his wife to a lounge, upon which he laid down, when Dr. Tower was sent for.

Upon the doctor's arrival none of the wounds were found to be fatal and Anderson received such treatment as his case demanded.

The bullet in the breast and that one in the thigh were not found and extracted, but there are no symptoms of serious results from them and the doctor expects his patient to be able to be up and around in a very few days.

DeLauny fired only one barrel of the gun—one report in regard to the shooting being that the cap of one barrel failed to explode when he pulled the trigger, and another that he became too much excited after the discharge of one barrel to attempt the discharge of the other, which latter is doubtless true.

Anderson owes his escape from almost instant death to the fact that the gun contained too much lead for the quantity of powder used. The bullets that struck him lacked force and others scattered so wide of the mark that some lodged in the side fence and some in the front fence, while others buried themselves in Cedar street.

Those that lodged in the fences were easily picked out with the blade of a pocket-knife.

Evidently DeLauny shot to kill, but his judgment in loading the gun was at fault.

From the nature of the wounds received by Anderson, it appears that he was standing with his back to the fence and his face towards his house, holding a hoe-handle in his right hand.

Anderson did not see DeLauny at the time he fired, nor did any one else, excepting members of his own family, and it is not clear that they saw it, though it is evident that they knew that something of the kind was contemplated.

Miss Carrie Norton, who lives in the house next south of Anderson, heard the report of the gun and saw Anderson when he was hit, and so did his little girl, who was on the back porch of the house at the time; but the evidence to convict DeLauny, if he be convicted, will come from himself and his own family.

Immediately after the shooting, DeLauny was arrested and had a hearing before Justice Hyde, who held the prisoner without bail until the condition of Anderson could be definitely reported upon by the doctor. Later in the day DeLauny was taken to Empire and confined in the county jail.

DeLauny does not deny the shooting and he says that he would sooner sacrifice his life than have his children bear false witness in his behalf.

The cause of the shooting was alleged criminal connection between Anderson and Mrs. DeLauny. Intimate friends of the parties were not surprised at the culmination, for it had been expected for several weeks and Anderson had been repeatedly warned of his danger.

DeLauny lived in one of Anderson's houses, on the lot immediately west of his residence and south of his livery stable. It was from this house that the shot was fired. The next day after the attempt to kill Anderson, DeLauny's family vacated the premises and took up their abode at Aaronville.

One report is that Mrs. DeLauny accuses Anderson of at one time entering her bed-room after her husband had gone to his work in the morning and forcing her to prove false to her marital vows, after which, through intimidation on his part, the criminal connection was continued until several months ago, when she informed her husband of it, since which time mutual friends of the parties have been endeavoring to effect a compromise of the trouble that naturally grew out of it.

DeLauny is a man 40 or 45 years of age, and an engineer and machinist by occupation, who has the reputation of being the best workman in his line on the bay. He has been a resident of the bay for several years. Two or three years ago he went to Gray's harbor and placed the machinery in Simpson Bros' new mill there, after the completion of which work he returned to this place and has since that time been in the employ of E. B. Dean & Co. He is the father of five children, the eldest of whom is a daughter, some 18; then another daughter, 16 or 17; then another, 12 or 13, and the youngest is a boy, 10 or 11 years old. Anderson is the keeper of a livery stable; also engaged in teaming; owns in several vessels, and is one of our most active and best-known business men. He is also 40 or 45 years of age, married, and the father of three or four children.

That his children might not suffer the consequences of an exposition of the relations existing between their mother and Anderson, DeLauny desired to send or take them away. His impecuniosity prevented this, and in order to be able to do as he desired he authorized the proposition to be made to Anderson that if the latter would furnish the former with $3000 for the purpose of removing his family from this place the trouble would end there and then; but in case this proposition was not complied with, then Anderson must be prepared to accept the consequences.

At one time Anderson agreed to comply with the proposition and furnish the money, but subsequently he changed his mind or delayed the payment of the money, and the consequence was the unsuccessful attempt on DeLauny's part to kill him, which it was long ago believed by those conversant with the affair would be the result.

As usual in such cases, some people censure one of the principals, some the other, and many censure both, while all feel a deep sympathy for the innocent members of the two men's families.

Immediately after the shooting of Anderson the sympathy appeared to be mostly on his side, because of the cowardly manner pursued by DeLauny in firing from the window when unobserved and without giving his victim any show at all to fight or flee; but since all the circumstances connected with the case have been ventilated and talked over, public opinion seems to have changed in favor of DeLauny.

At first DeLauny was strongly censured by many for having offered to compromise for money and for not having gone after Anderson on the street and in a bolder manner; but it appears that Anderson had warning of what he might expect under certain circumstances until warning was of no avail, and other extenuating features of the affair favorable to DeLauny have brought many to his side who were at first against him. The end is not yet, and no one can now safely predict what the end will be. Time alone will truthfully tell.

We have not interviewed either Anderson or DeLauny upon the subject of this unfortunate affair and neither one is at all responsible for anything that we have said about it.

The foregoing report is founded upon rumors in general circulation on the street and is mainly true, so far as it goes, but it does not tell the whole story, nor the half of it, and it is not probable that all of the inside facts of the case will ever be written.

Upon the application of Crawford & Lockhart, DeLauny's attorneys, on Tuesday Justice Hyde issued an order that DeLauny be admitted to bail, the amount being $2500, which was given yesterday, when the prisoner was released.

Yesterday Anderson was able to be up and about his room and by to-day he will be able to take an airing outdoors if he so desires.

Notice to Parents.

All children in Marshfield or vicinity wishing to attend a three-months term of private school will meet the undersigned at the academy promptly at 6 a. m. Monday, the 13th of April. Do not delay having every one there who expects to attend. Classes will be organized and pushed on rapidly, under most thorough discipline, if a sufficient number to warrant it are present. If you intend patronizing the school no way wait, as there will be no organization unless the number is encouraging. Remember if the school is continued for another three months, those in attendance will have a decided advantage over the absentees in the regular organization in the fall. Respectfully,
F. A. GOLDEN.

Passengers by Steamer.

Arrivals by the Arcata Monday morning: Mrs. F. Mark, Miss M. Loeber, Capt. J. Parker, J. W. Thomas, J. L. Howard, E. Sinclair and six in the steerage.

Departures by the Coos Bay on the 25th ult.: John Granholm, S. D. Butler, E. J. Marsh, two in the steerage, and by J. S. Winant and several others of Yaquina bay.

Departures by the Arcata yesterday: R. M. Johnson, J. Wise, A. F. Graham, C. B. Watson, Charles Ellidge and Robert Cooper.

Remember the concert to be given for the benefit of the Marshfield brass band next Saturday evening at the new hall in Sengstacken and Smith's new building. The members of the band are still owing some on their instruments, and to help them out our citizens should see that the benefit be a substantial one. The tickets are cheap—50 cents each—and everybody can afford to and should buy one or more. The programme for the concert will consist of an opening chorus by the company; comic song by J. W. Bennett; instrumental overture by J. E. Hagenbuch; quintet by Brown, Huden, Crawford, Christensen and Ernst; song by Rev. W. Lund; music by the band; duet by Mrs. Tower and Miss Thompson; song by Miss Annie Short; duet by H. Huden and R. Brown; song by Miss Girty; character song by R. J. Lynch; song by Mrs. Tower; song, "Lime-Kill Band," by members of the band.

W. G. Webster and O. Schetter & Co. have had two rows of piles driven in front of their premises, for the purpose of enlarging their wharves, and to that of Schetter & Co. will be added a floating wharf, for the convenience of their customers and their extensive market business. Sengstacken and Smith have also had two rows of piles driven in front of their place, for the purpose of widening their wharf about 20 feet, and making it a good landing for large steamers, and soon the pile driver will be at work in front of the Holland building, to extend that wharf to correspond with those of Sengstacken and Smith and Schetter & Co. The town trustees should not have piles driven in front of a street and establish a water line along the bay beyond which none would be permitted to go.

School Report.

I herewith present the monthly report for March; also the report for the term ending March 28, 1885. I am pleased to note the interest taken in the examination this year; it is really gratifying when a large number of pupils show that they appreciate labor done for their benefit. We also succeeded, this month, in bringing the amount of tardiness to a respectable showing: January 141, February 106 and March 44. By a little care on the part of teachers, this school evil could be reduced to a minimum.

On Saturday there was an examination held at this place, at which second-grade certificates were granted to Mrs. E. S. Robertson, J. S. Edmunds, Miss Emma Stauff and Miss Alice Clinkinbeard—three failing. The examiners were D. L. Rood and J. D. Hawes.

Another Toll Gate Contemplated.

To the Editor of the COAST MAIL:
Jas. Laird of Brewster valley intends erecting a toll gate on the Coos bay wagon road between Sumner and Burton prairie. As he possesses the power to erect a dozen of them, if necessary, this communication is put forth as a "feeler," the object being to elicit opinions as to the advisability of collecting toll and expending the same in the locality where it is collected. The people who travel over the road with horses and wagons ought not to object to contributing towards its repair. Nemo.

Unclaimed Letters.

Following is a list of the unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice at Marshfield, Coos county, Or., April 1, 1885: Bouden W. Buckley, E. P. Fales, Wm W. Erick, A. C. Felton, L. W. Harvey, Hattie, Lewis C. J. Lewis, Jas. M. McGee, Wilson, Thrift Thos J. Vincent Clara H. Yoe Chas. Thos. Hirst, Postmaster.

The Gardiner mill company has filed articles of incorporation at San Francisco. The object of the corporation is to carry on a general merchandise business, buy and sell land, and manufacture lumber in Oregon. The capital stock is $150,000, of which $15,000 has been subscribed. The incorporators are William F. Jewett of Gardiner, Or.; Joseph Knowland and Charles C. Stevenson, Jr., of Alameda, Cal.; and John Dolbeare and Geo. S. Hinsdale of San Francisco.

Olaf Evensen has a commodious shop in Nasburg's former residence, opposite the postoffice, where he is prepared to do upholstering, picture framing, cabinet work and wood work of all kinds at short notice and on reasonable terms. He also keeps for sale some very nice chromos, and soon he will be prepared to furnish you with ready-made furniture of all descriptions. If you have work to do, you will find Evensen a profitable gentleman to employ.

March is past, and it was the finest March in the way of weather that this locality has had for many years, though two years ago March was almost as good a month as last month, when the time lost by loggers because of rain amounted to only a day and a half. Our winter weather for '84-5 is to come yet if we are to have any, and if it does come the fruit and the garden truck will suffer some damage.

In a saloon at San Francisco last Friday night Hiram Patterson and Arnold Frieler were skylarking and exchanged friendly blows several times. Finally Frieler struck Patterson in the right side just above the hip. The man fell to the floor and died in a short time. Both men had been firm friends for years. Frieler disclaims any intent to hurt Patterson.

In appointing officers for Morrow, the new county created by the last legislature, Gov. Moody selected one-half from the democratic and one-half from the republican party. Did ever a democratic governor do the like?—Pleideader.

Butter Making.

Dairying will soon be in full operation, and the figure Coos county cuts in this industry is important. There will be, from Elk river up, about 400 cows milked, while between Ellenburg and Chetco probably a like number. This means about 85 tons of butter for export during 1885. And the industry is capable of practically indefinite expansion in the county. So far only the flat lands along the coast have been utilized for dairy purposes. It will not be long ere miles and miles of our hill ranges will be made to contribute largely to the annual total of butter production. The strict enforcement of the anti-oleomargarine law will greatly promote enterprise in this direction. The new dairy law provides that any person who, being engaged in making butter for the market, shall use the milk of cows within 15 days before and five days after parturition, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be punished by fine and imprisonment. This is right, and the law ought to be rigidly enforced. Lost for gain must be subordinated to the general health and the instincts of common decency.—Recorder.

To the Ladies.

They will find at Mrs. F. MARK'S the Ross Novelty Rug Machine. Very simple and easy. Any child can use it; but any one not fully understanding the art can receive instructions, free of charge, from Mrs. Capt. Chester, who will be found at Mrs. Mark's.

Clumps and frames, and Turkish rugs of all patterns and styles. Also all shades of yarn, for $1.10 per pound. J. D. HAWES.

Supervisor Dimmick, with several hired hands, has commenced work on the road between King's landing and Southport, on Isthmus slough, and before the 4th of July there will be a good wagon road over which teams can trot at a 2:30 gait from this place to Coquille City. The road to Southport is now in good condition, and the work to be done between Southport and King's is only some grading and the building of a few small bridges, the larger bridges having been built last fall. The opening of this road as soon as possible is a matter in which all good citizens should take an interest, and the supervisor should receive every encouragement to which he is entitled in the way of men paying their tax or doing their road work. Where they can pay the money as well as not, it is better to pay the money, for the supervisor can generally get more work out of a man that he hires than a man will do in working out his tax.

There should be a good, substantial plank road between this place and Myrtle Point, via Coquille City, and the sooner such a road be built the better it will be for everybody interested in it, and all the people of the county are interested in it, directly and indirectly. In fact, all of the roads in the county ought to be planned, so that they could be traveled in winter as well as summer. Such roads would be of actual benefit at all times and in the end they would be cheaper than the roads we now have that are impassable about half the time. As a starter, we are in favor of a plank road to Myrtle Point, if the county has to borrow the money to buy the planks and do the work. Before the road would be worn out and need rebuilding the increase in taxable property created by the road would more than reimburse the county for the outlay.

On her last trip down the steamer Coos Bay carried to San Francisco the corpse of Samuel Winant, who died at Newport, Yaquina bay, on the 11th ult. Deceased was a brother of Mark Winant and of Capt. J. J. Winant of the tug Favorite. He was one of the pioneer business men of Yaquina bay and was at the head of the firm of Winant & Co., who opened up the oyster business there in 1862. In later years he was extensively engaged in planting and cultivating eastern oysters at San Francisco, in the firm of Terry & Co.

Wool dealers predict a large clip this year, somewhere in a neighborhood of 10,000,000 pounds. The prices of last year will rule this season, as there is nothing at present to indicate a rise. A war between England and Russia would stimulate the demand and send values up somewhat. The London market is steady. Eastern and California buyers will come to the bay this summer and will purchase the entire clip. Wool men are amply prepared to meet the grower's views by selling the clip at home.—Portland News.
