MARSHFIELD, OREGON.

Thursday, May 21, 1885

The Coos Bay arrived at San Francisco Sunday.

Read the Empire programme and prepare to celebrate.

Blank books at Sengstacken's drug store for 10 cents each.

Miss Charlotte Vanderburg is teaching the public school at Hayne's slough.

Matt Stora's logging camp on North Coos river is again in active operation, with a limited force of men.

If everything goes well with the new steamer Arago she will be due here the fore part of next week, if not sooner.

Why do people suffer from corns and warts when they can buy a sure remedy at Sengstacken's drug store for 25 cents.

Rev. G. W. Black of Gardiner arrived on the bay Tuesday, on his way to the meeting of his association at Sumner today.

The Grand Army post of this place has prepared a programme for decoration day—the 30th inst.—that we will publish next week.

Buy your eye-glasses at Sengstacken's drug store and look through them at his fine stock of jewelry and fancy goods before purchasing elsewhere.

Miss Sadie Hall of this place is teaching the public school at Kentuck slough. The school opened last Monday and the scholars in attendance number about 18.

The wharves of Schetter & Co. and Sengstacken and Smith are on the water line established by the town trustees, beyond which none will be permitted to drive piles.

Capt. Parker is on the bay. His mill is again running on full time. No schooners were in the Coquille at the time the captain left there, but the Truckee is due.

Have you tried the fresh fruit syrups at Golden's silver soda fountain? If not do so without delay. His list of cooling beverages will shortly be increased by the addition of Buffalo mead, Belfast ginger ale, spruce beer, etc.

Grim's race horse was raffled at the Bayview brewery last Thursday night and won by Clemmensen & Evanoff, one of their employes throwing 42 for them. As it were, the horse was an elephant to them and they sold him for $40.

Golden has received the finest lot of picture frame and cornice moulding ever seen on the bay, from which he will make frames and cornices to order at living prices. Send your measurements to Golden's drug store. Goods at all prices.

All members of Myrtle lodge, No. 3, K. of P., are requested to meet at their castle hall next Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. A full attendance is desired, and all those having uniforms are especially requested to report in person or by letter. By order of the C. C.

The sewing society of this place will give a grand treat at Norman's hall next Saturday evening and the entertainment should be liberally patronized, as the society is in debt and absolutely in need of the funds that it is hoped to raise by the sociable that they propose to give.

J. E. Hagenbuch received with last steamer a shipment of Domestic Sewing Machines, which he has already sold and delivered. These are really the finest sewing machines extant, with all the latest improvements, and sell at remarkably low rates. Agency at the Blanco drug store.

We have received a box of Huden & Young's Buffalo mead, which has been taken according to directions and found to be as they represent it, "the greatest health drink of the season." The soda now turned out at the Marshfield works cannot be excelled anywhere, for Huden himself is again at the machine.

The band boys got off on the wrong foot with their strawberry picnic last Sunday, and as a financial investment it did not pay anybody a dividend excepting Billy Barkas, who furnished the berries. As Billy did not have more than enough fruit to fill the orders for, he came out all right and is now ready for another raid of the same sort.

Prof. J. B. Hermann, late of Salem, is in town. He is a skilled pianist and organist, and desirous of sending for his family and locating in our midst if he can find pupils enough to justify him in so doing. The professor comes well recommended as a good teacher and a perfect gentleman, and we hope he will receive enough substantial encouragement from the music-loving portion of our town to enable him to continue with us.

An extensive warfare has been made recently on prices of paints, oils and glass, in town. Golden's principle at the Marshfield drug store is to cut down prices on all articles heretofore sold at exorbitantly high profits; but if others wish to cut on articles when there is so little margin, the Marshfield drug store will meet the cut and sell at cost, if necessary. See and price Golden's stock before making purchases. Business means business.

The time table of the steamer Comet will be so changed next week as to accommodate persons from this place who have business at the circuit court. The Comet will leave here in the morning in time to reach Empire before the court meets and she will leave Empire in the evening after the court adjourns, so that all who wish to remain in this place at night can do so, with a certainty of getting to and from Empire on time by patronizing the Comet.

STRAWBERRIES AND ICE-CREAM!

A grand strawberry and ice-cream sociable will be given by the Ladies' Sewing Society of Marshfield at Norman's hall on Saturday evening next, May 23. The evening's entertainment will consist of a lecture by Mr. John A. Gray, songs, recitations, and the humorous farce of "A Love of a Bonnet."

Come all ye who are weary and heavy laden, and seek rest in a 25-cent dish of strawberries or ice-cream.

Admittance: Ladies and gentlemen, 25 cents each; children free.

For the leading tonics and blood purifiers, go to Sengstacken's drug store.

It is reported that Rev. W. Lund was lately married at Jacksonville and that he and his wife will arrive on the bay next week.

John Kenyon and Alex Lang are at Salem, to represent the Odd Fellows of this place and Empire at their grand lodge, which met there Tuesday.

Farmers of Coos river and neighboring country, consult your own interests by sending your orders for coal oil, etc. to Golden's. Only $1 75 a car, addressed and put on board the steamer.

The News says the Marshfield post-master and the Coos bay collector must both soon go. As the clique that run the News are supposed to be members of the machine and on the inside, that paper ought to know.

P. C. Durgin threw up the contract that he took to build a road between T. A. King's place and Utter City and now King has agreed to do the work for $800, part cash on completion of the work and a note for the remainder.

J. N. Crawford of the Coos Bay market recently bought "the ark" and that fleet of small boats formerly kept at the Marshfield drug store, and now he is the man to see when you want to hire something in the way of a small boat or covered hunting scow.

Rev. H. P. Webb of Roseburg will be in Empire the latter part of this week and will preach Saturday evening. The meeting will be protracted through the following week. On the 31st inst. the quarterly meeting will be held, with the quarterly conference on Saturday, the 30th inst., at 2 p. m.

The front of the Blanco hotel has been newly painted and greatly improved in appearance—and so have the backs of some men's coats who couldn't loaf around there and read "paint" without leaning up against it. A new and substantial floor will next be laid in the lower part of the house.

J. E. Hagenbuch of the Blanco drug store has two fine samples of Electro-Magnetic Belts. That electrical appliances have cured thousands of the most obstinate cases of all nervous, liver and kidney diseases, paralysis, indigestion, colic, general debility, female complaints, backache, etc., is undeniable; trustworthy statements confirm it. Try the experiment and be cured in three or four months.

Parties in the country seeding ANYTHING in the drug line will consult their own interests by MAILING THEIR ORDERS DIRECT TO GOLDEN'S DRUG STORE. GOODS WARRANTED FRESH AND PURE. Care will be taken to fill orders promptly, and prices will be made the lowest possible. Any errors will be gladly corrected and goods may be returned and exchanged if not satisfactory. Don't fail to send a WRITTEN ORDER TO GOLDEN'S DRUG STORE.

The fishing smack that Capt. Jensen is building at the Parkersburg mill will be ready to launch next week. She will be 30 feet in length, with 14 feet beam, and her field of operations will be among the reefs and shoals along the coast in the vicinity of the Coquille bay, where several varieties of desirable fish are to be taken, the most valuable being halibut, that will weigh 300 pounds or more. Arrangements will be made to send these fish to the San Francisco market.

The Corvallis Baptist association will convene with the church at Sumner today at 10 o'clock a. m. The introductory sermon will be preached by Elder J. C. Richardson. On behalf of the association, Rev. C. P. Bailey extends a cordial invitation to all to meet with them, and it is hoped that a goodly number from this place and other points on the bay will respond to the invitation. Next Sunday the tide will serve at Sumner so that a steamer could reach there in time for the 11 o'clock service and remain until after the 2 o'clock service. There will be preaching at the Baptist church in this place next Sunday evening by some of the visiting brethren.

According to the Portland papers, the immigrants now arriving there bring with them considerable money. Some of those with money could do well by coming this way, for there are good opportunities here for good men with means; but poor immigrants had better give this place the go-by just now, for we already have enough poor people and more laborers than there is a demand for. The average wages paid loggers this year are only about $40 per month, and mill hands are working for less this year than they did last. But men who have money to invest can invest it here to advantage in many ways, and especially in good ranches, improved and unimproved; but it takes money to buy an improved place and money and muscle to improve one.

Adam Pershaker of Randolph was in town this week. He says that new saw-mill enterprise of his about which so many items have been published lately is a fixed fact and that the mill will in all probability cut lumber before Christmas; but the work of construction is not being rushed rapidly, as there is no urgent demand for it at present. The mill-site is opposite Machado's fishery, nearly midway between Randolph and Bandon, on land owned by Pershaker and where he has good and extensive boom facilities and an abundant and convenient supply of fresh water. The work in hand now is preparing the foundation timbers that are to be laid upon piles yet to be driven. Work upon the frame of the mill will not begin until in July. When completed the mill will have a capacity for cutting about 12,000 feet per day, but the mill will be constructed with a view to doubling its capacity whenever the demand for lumber will warrant it.

A gentleman who lately passed over the new road that Supervisor Dimmick is rapidly completing, to connect Marshfield with Coquille City, reports the work as being well done. This is as it should be, for a good road will greatly facilitate trade between the bay and the river. The farmers of the Coquille need a road to the bay by which they can come over in a day with a load of produce, market it, do such trading as they want to do, and return home the second day—thus avoiding the delays and necessarily exorbitant expenses incident to getting from the river to this place by the present portage with such articles as they have to sell. And with a great reduction of the expenses of getting to another market, and the doubling of their facilities for buying and selling, the Coquille farmers will find themselves so much benefited by the new road that their end of it will be kept in good repair, while the business men of the bay will not pursue such a suicidal course as to lose that trade by allowing this end of the road to retrograde after it has once been opened in good shape. Supervisor Dimmick is of the opinion that this year's taxes will not be sufficient to put our end of the road in as perfect condition as the trade that it is expected to accommodate will warrant, and if such be the case it would redound to the credit and commercial advantages of this place if our business men would second Dimmick's efforts to open the road as it should be opened by paying a portion if not all of their next year's taxes for the work. They would, without doubt, gain by advancing the money if it be needed. The opening of this new highway is a worthy enterprise, and all who contribute toward it will only perform a duty that they owe to themselves and which will be duly appreciated by the supervisor and the community at large.

A quiet wedding came off in this place last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, the contracting parties being Mr. M. P. Pendergrass and Mrs. A. E. Forstund, Rev. Irad Richardson of Empire officiating. The bride's mother is absent on a visit to friends at San Francisco, and the ceremony was performed in the presence of the father and brother and a few of the most intimate friends of the bride and groom, among whom were Dr. C. W. Tower and wife, Thomas Hirst and wife, Mrs. Capt. Hill of North Bend, John Church and wife, F. Mark and wife, Miss Mary McLeod, Miss Annie Webber, Miss Helen Green and R. F. Bowron. The bride wore a rose-tinted silk, draped with lace, which was very becoming to her, and the only ornaments worn were natural roses. The groom was dressed in an elegant suit of white broadcloth, with white vest and white kid gloves, and looked well and happy. After the ceremony, the party drank champagne to the health of the happy couple and then repaired to a sumptuous lunch prepared for the occasion. The bride's cake was handsomely decorated with forget-me-nots and the groom's trimmings. The presents to the bride were many, all appropriate and some very elegant.

The real estate transactions recorded at Empire show a transfer by Geo. W. Beale to Horatio and C. D. McFarlin of 55 1/2 acres of land on North slough. It is said the McFarlins purchased this for the purpose of raising cranberries on it, and that C. D. McFarlin, who departed by the last Arcata, went below with the expectation of soon returning and preparing the land for the business for which it was purchased. Coos county could raise cranberries enough to supply the world, and not half try.

If you want the natural and most effective remedy for catarrh, dyspepsia, asthma, scrofula, piles, etc., call at the Blanco drug store for El Dorado Mineral Water. This water is no manufactured product, but the pure outpouring of Nature's own resources. Everybody who has tried it is high in its praise. Also, natural Friederich's Hall Water, for all cases of long-continued disorders of the abdomen.

Hurrah for Coos County.

Arthur's Gone to Sleep.

(Sung by Mrs. C. W. Tower and Miss M. E. Thompson at the funeral services of little Arthur P. Kamadell at this place on the 13th inst.)

There's a pair of little hands
Laid to rest forevermore;
There's two peary, dimpled cheeks,
Whose rich blossoming is o'er;
Death has sealed two little eyes,
That will no more smile or weep;
Tiny windows of the soul;
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
So for him we may not weep;
Softly to the doorway came,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep;
He has only gone to sleep.

There's another bud removed,
Ere it felt the blight of sin;
There the dove the angels made
Darting Arthur has passed in;
Far beyond the azure skies,
Where the tiny stars are peep,
From all earth's sad doubts and fears,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Chorus—Angels bore him safely home, etc.

He will wake in fairer lands,
Where the angel voices sing;
There the flow'ets shall expand,
There shall love perfection bring;
He has reached the golden shore,
There the river cold and deep;
Angels bore him safely there;
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Little Arthur's gone to sleep,
Chorus—Angels bore him safely home, etc.

We have no hesitation in saying that this issue of the MAIL is printed on a press that stands nearer a wild coon's nest than any other printing press in the world. Several months ago W. G. Webster put a lot of wood-butcher's work on his building adjoining our office, and while the aforesaid butchers were banging and whanging around Webster's place it often seemed to us that they were trying to tear ours down, and ever since their departure we have felt very much inclined to bring an action against Webster for damages, for he has utterly failed to replace divers and sundry things that his men took down and that he repeatedly promised to put up. But, in going after Webster, we are getting away from the coons. Webster's house, or Hansen's Exchange saloon, stands too close to our office, and in improving Webster's premises his carpenters evidently took boards from our house and didn't fence against coons, for as soon as the carpenters quieted down around Webster's house the coons moved into and took possession of our garret, and they hold the fort till yet. The two houses appear to stand just near enough to each other to enable the coon to place his paws on one and his back against the other, and in this way he goes up and down at will, day and night, from our garret to the mud-flat under the wharves along Front street—sometimes a-fishing after clams, in the daytime, when the tide is out, and again after chickens at night, when he don't care a continental cuss whether the tide be high or low. This business went on all winter, and we didn't care, for Crawford & Lockhart inhabited the front part of the building at that time, and the coons stayed with them, and it was a happy family, until the ceiling over Crawford's table sprung a leak one night, when he and some of his legal papers got wet. He didn't swear much, nor very loud, but vengeance took possession of his soul and the next day he went after the coons red-eyed, drove them from their quarters over his office, and fenced up the place where they came in, after which peace and quietness prevailed while Crawford & Lockhart remained our neighbors. The coons had acted naughtily with Crawford and he was mad, and they knew it; but after while the lawyers moved out and then the coons moved in again and located over our part of the premises, in a corner near the press, where there appears to have been an immense increase in the family a few days ago. When the mother first returns from one of her foraging expeditions, the uproar in the family indicates that there are a dozen or more of them, and the chirping and squealing of one little fellow, who seems to always get left and crowded out, sound as if he would make mince meat of the others in short order were he only big enough to do it. When the press first starts there is profound silence in the coon family for a few minutes, but they soon become accustomed to the noise and go ahead with their music just as if they were cozily quartered in an old hollow tree. Yesterday the devil it undertook to raid the den, but when he put in an appearance the coons kept so still that he said he couldn't find them; but they are there, all the same, and chattered loudly and merrily at him in less than a minute after he left the loft. We suspect the boy felt friendly to the little ones, but he hadn't lost any old coons and did not feel anxious to engage in a controversy and combat with the mother. If some enterprising urchin wants to go coon hunting he can find a hot trail by applying at this office to-day.

Later particulars of the capsize of the ship Earl of Dalhousie at San Francisco say she was in tow of the tug Alert, which was towing ahead, the ship's yards being down. The wind was blowing strong enough on the bay to make it difficult to handle a loaded ship. The Dalhousie had hardly cleared her anchorage ground when the accident occurred, the spot where she sunk being a little to the southward of Mission rock. The vessel lies in shallow water at low tide. It is not definitely known whether she was insured or not, but it is probable she carried a harbor risk; but whether or no that was vitiated by the action of the captain is a mooted question among underwriters, the prevailing opinion being that the insurance companies are exempt.

In 1863 J. B. Torbett of Upton county, Ga., living near "the rock," buried $1,500 in silver on his place. It was placed in a meal sack and buried deep. The war over, he resumed his plow, and for 22 years he passed and repassed the place where the hidden treasure lay. The locality was marked and he could have secured it at any time. A day or so ago, having use for that amount of money, Torbett took a friend along with him and repaired to the spot. While they knew the exact location, it required nearly half a day to dig it up. When the treasure was reached there was not a thread left of the meal sack. It had vanished. The money, however, was there, though some of the coins had sunk to the depth of four feet from the main pile. It is possible that there was quicksand in the near vicinity, and the weight of the coins carried them down.
