

The Coast Mail. MARSHFIELD, OREGON: Thursday, August 6, 1885

The News says: "Intelligence, honesty and decency! Oh! Lord, that makes a fellow want to go out doors." Well, we knew the presence of such qualities would make the News crowd want to leave, but we did not quite think they would own up in so public a manner.

The secretary of the association of veterans of the Mexican war has received a communication from Gen. Hancock stating that a delegation of veterans of that association will be accorded a place as mourners in the funeral procession of Gen. Grant, should they present themselves.

Gov. Moody has issued a proclamation in which he requests the people of this state to do reverence to the memory of Gen. Grant by suspending their usual labor next Saturday, the day of his final obsequies, and in such way as may seem proper pay the respect that is due the lamented chieftain.

The editor of the News calls us a carpet-bagger. This cuts to the quick. If it came from some flannel-mouthed Fenian bog-trotter, who did not have the brogue off his tongue sufficient to render the declaration of independence properly, we could bear it; but from the editor of the News—Pity us.

The Overland Monthly for August is received. This number is replete with interesting matter, most of which relates to this coast and is of special interest to our people. "Grant and the Pacific Coast" and "Grant and the War" are very readable reminiscences of Gen. Grant, by A. M. Loryea and Wm. Olney. The Overland is a peculiarly Pacific coast publication that deserves well at the hands of the people of the coast, who should extend to it the most liberal patronage within their power.

The following-named senators, who were requested by the vice president to represent the senate at Gen. Grant's funeral, have notified the sergeant-at-arms of their intention to attend the funeral: Justin S. Morrill, John Sherman, John A. Logan, Matt. W. Ransom, John J. Ingalls, Frank M. Cockrell, Wade Hampton, Joseph E. Brown and Charles F. Manderson. The committee has been requested to meet in New York this evening. Vice President Hendricks will also be with them.

Secretary Manning has appointed George W. Albright of Albany, New York, a "skilled laborer" in the sixth auditor's office, at an annual salary of $1000, and assigned him to duty as assistant to the chief of the appointment division. It is understood that he will soon be appointed assistant chief of the division, to succeed George M. Rose, who will be reduced to a fourth-class clerkship. There is a question as to the authority for such an appointment under the civil service law. It is also said that Albright will eventually succeed Higgins as chief of the appointment division.

A correspondent in one of the journals says: "There is nothing more pathetic in the closing scenes of Grant's life than the knowledge of the complete destination in which he was left by the Grant & Ward failure. Everything relating to his military career was taken from him, so there did not remain to the family a single uniform in which to cloak his remains. Not even his sword was left to lay upon his coffin. Grant's personal trophies and effects were all taken by the government, which did not leave the semblance of a military emblem with the Grant family. The officials at Washington have made no sign of their having thought of the lack of a uniform and sword for the dead soldier."

A circular signed by Chester A. Arthur, chairman, William R. Grace and Hamilton Fish, vice chairmen, and Richard T. Greener, secretary, of the Grant memorial commission, has been issued. It says action will soon be taken for the organization of committees to represent the entire country for the erection of a suitable monument above Gen. Grant's grave. Pending this the committee calls on all newspapers, railroads, telegraph and express companies, postmasters, banks, churches and municipal authorities, commercial bodies and exchanges, manufacturing and business establishments to co-operate in the immediate collection of contributions, to be forwarded to Drexel, Morgan & Co. for this committee, or to the Mayor of New York. All contributions will be acknowledged. The Western Union telegraph company has sent instructions to the managers of all its offices throughout the country to receive contributions from the public and forward them to the committee.

The Gold Beach Gazette expresses the belief that the republican papers of this state are almost unanimous in favor of an extra session of the legislature, and the Silverton Appeal urges Gov. Moody to call an extra session, that Moody himself may be elected to the United States senate. As the editor of the Gazette is a member of the lamented legislature, his wish may be father to his belief, and the Appeal's boom for Moody is somewhat premature. If he has displayed the ability that entitles a man to the senatorship, we have yet to hear of it. The republican party of this state has a good, easy-going majority, but it cannot handicap itself with too many blunders and still win. The party blundered in many of the men it sent to the last legislature, and it cannot now afford to blunder by slapping the tax-payers in the face with an extra session at an expense of $50,000 or $40,000. For that reason we are opposed to an extra session, and we have yet to hear the first republican of this county express himself in favor of an extra session.

National Debts. The consular report for June contains a table of the comparative indebtedness of the leading European nations, furnished by John A. Kasson, ex-minister to Berlin.

France has the largest public debt of any foreign nation, and the figures are prodigious. With a population of something over 37,000,000. France has a debt of $5,309,695,675, making a per capita debt of $128.67. The people of France have an interest burden of $211,299,787, or an interest charge per capita of $5.12.

England stands next in the luxury of public indebtedness. The debt amounts to $3,632,099,184, with the late war preparation expenses to be added. The English people have a debt charge of $100.84, and are compelled to pay $3.97 interest per capita.

Russia ranks next, with a debt of $3,186,764,705. The Russian debt charge per head amounts to $23.10, the latter figures being small on account of the large population. The Russian interest burden is $1.10 per head.

It is a significant fact that the nations most thickly populated have heavy debt burdens. England, for instance, has 200 inhabitants to the square mile. France has over 180 inhabitants to the square mile.

Russia has a larger population than either France or England, but the individual debt burden is comparatively small, and there are only ten persons to the square mile. If numbers and extent of territory have a tendency to lighten public burdens, Russia is really in easier financial condition than any other leading foreign nation. But Russian credit does not indicate a remarkably sound financial condition.

Foreign nations make an exceedingly poor showing financially in comparison with the United States. It is extremely doubtful whether a single nation in Europe will ever be able to pay off its national debt. The main hope now is to lighten the burdens of taxation by avoiding extraordinary expenses, and surpluses are not popular.

The national debt per capita in this country has never exceeded $79. It was highest in 1865. Since that date the debt has been reduced until at the close of the fiscal year in 1884 it amounted to only about $25 per capita, and the interest charged per capita is now less than 86 cents.

There are about 14 persons to the square mile in the United States. Great Britain has over 20 times as many inhabitants to the square mile, and France about 14 times as many.

These are only a few of the comparisons favorable to the people of the United States, but they demonstrate that the inducements to immigration from the old world are still powerful.

The Treasurer and Bankers.

The financial situation is evidently becoming serious in the estimation of government officials. The nature of the discussion at the meeting of New York bank presidents, which was attended by the treasurer of the United States, is gradually becoming known to the public. The sum of the situation is, that the reserve gold is being drawn from the national treasury and the danger limit will soon be reached unless remedial measures are adopted. Treasurer Jordan claimed that he was not at the meeting in an official capacity, but his statements to the bankers lend color to the belief that he knew that such a conference would be called, and that he was really anxious to have some kind of understanding. From Jordan's statement it is evident that the payment of $18,000,000 more gold on various demands against the government will exhaust the reserve down to the limit of $100,000,000, required by law as a reserve for the redemption of the legal tenders. His statement revealed the further fact that the $18,000,000 would soon be demanded. In the mean time silver dollars to the amount of $67,000,000 remain in the treasury unrepresented by silver certificates. Although the conference was called to consider the silver question, gold seems to have been the main subject of discussion. When Jordan had stated the situation, the bankers made rather an extraordinary proposition. They offered in case of necessity to loan the government from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 in gold. This is a queer proposal to be made to a government which has been borrowing for months about a great surplus which Hendricks wanted to divide among his Indiana constituents. Jordan was not taken with the proposition, and the conference broke up without any definite conclusion. We doubt whether Jordan was wise in attending the meeting at all, for he could have gained all the information he received without showing any anxiety. As the matter now stands, he has called attention to an exceedingly unpleasant matter, and in return has simply found out that the bankers are willing to help on the gold side, but not on the silver side. When Jordan explained that he might find it necessary to use more silver in current transactions, profound silence ruled among the bankers. They heard that they would help put gold into the treasury, but that they would not help take silver out. If the drain of gold is to continue, it is not evident that any benefit can be derived by borrowing gold to keep up the supply. The people are anxious to know whether means can be discovered to use the silver as well as gold, and if that is impossible, the sooner silver coinage is stopped, at least temporarily, the better. The tendency is now unmistakably toward a single standard, and that standard will be as the law now stands.

There is no way to escape the record in this matter. From 1792 to 1834 this nation passed from a gold to a silver standard, and all the time an attempt was being made to maintain the double standard. From 1834 to 1853 the transition was made from a silver to a gold standard. And the gold standard was maintained up to 1862, when gold was forced out of circulation by paper currency of the nation until the resumption of specie payments in 1879. All these transitions are caused by changes in the relative value of the two metals. In 1834 it was claimed that gold had advanced in value instead of silver depreciating, and accordingly over 6 per cent was taken out of the gold dollar. The immediate result of this work was to cause the withdrawal of silver from circulation and the substitution of gold. In six years a silver dollar was worth 102 cents in gold and by 1853 a silver dollar was worth 104 in gold and silver had disappeared as a circulating medium. This result came in spite of laws and expedients. It came by force of natural causes, which are in force today. Perhaps there is more financial wisdom now than in the earlier history of the nation, but appearances indicate that the government is rapidly passing through the same history on the way to a silver standard.

A new firm has recently been formed here for the purpose of transacting a general law and land business, consisting of James S. Negley, Jr., George W. Hood, Chandler B. Watson and James A. McGee, under the firm name of Negley, Hood, Watson & Co. Negley is the son of Gen. James S. Negley, the present member of congress from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He has been engaged for some years in the practice of law at that place. Hood is also a lawyer by profession, and has had considerable practice in the courts of Pennsylvania, and is at present a member of the senate of that state. Watson is the present collector of customs for the southern district of Oregon, a lawyer by profession and well known throughout the state. McGee is a young man of large business experience, and is at present identified with several important industries affecting the business interests of our state. Senator Hood and Negley left this morning for San Francisco by the overland route, to look after the interests of some English capitalists, in the state of California, and intend making a careful examination of the resources of that and other states on the Pacific coast. It is understood that Senator Hood will look after the interests of the firm in the east and Negley, Watson & McGee in the west. During the sojourn of Senator Hood and Negley in Portland they have expressed themselves in the highest terms of the city and the very generous and courteous treatment they have received at the hands of her citizens.—(Oregonian August 1.)

The electric lamp used for examining Gen. Grant's throat was manufactured by agents of the Edison Light company. It is mounted on a hard rubber holder, about seven inches long, having a reflector at the lamp end, by which the light can be thrown to any desired angle. The holder is connected by two silk-covered wires to a small storage battery carried in the pocket of the physician. The light is turned on by simply pressing a small button on the rubber holder, and the quantity is governed by another button convenient to the operator. The lamp is inserted in the mouth almost to the palate, with the reflector above the lamp, which throws the light down the throat. The lamp has no unpleasant heat, and gives a light equal to half a sperm candle. The extreme simplicity of the whole appliance makes it very valuable to the physician and dentist.

The president having been requested by Mrs. Grant to name the pall bearers for Gen. Grant's funeral, has appointed the following: Gen. Wm. T. Sherman, Lieut. Gen. Philip H. Sheridan, Admiral David D. Porter, Vice Admiral Stephen C. Rowan, Gen. Joseph E. Johnston of Virginia, Gen. Simon Buckner of Kentucky, Hamilton Fish of New York, George S. Boutwell of Massachusetts, George W. Childs of Pennsylvania, John A. Logan of Illinois and George Jones and Oliver Hoyt of New York.

The jail at Baker City burned a few nights ago and five prisoners perished in the flames. Their names were Louis Miller, Geo. Plumb, Sam Brown, Wm. Lamb and John Cooley. The first four named were confined upon charges of larceny and the last named was charged with the murder of Jas. Lavery. Jas. Winkelman, another prisoner, accused of killing Allen and Rivers, was rescued, so badly burned that he may not recover. It is supposed that Winkelman fired the jail.

Sutton of the Gold Beach Gazette boasts of being the fastest type-setter in Curry, Coos or Douglas counties. That must be a goak, or a fling at Upton of the Recorder. The Gazette doesn't exhibit much of Sutton's swiftness, but the fourth page of that paper looks as if it might be improved by some of his antinomian speed, if he possesses it to a high degree. Nothing personal intended, Brother Sutton.

Capt. Jas. Coogan of New York city is negotiating for the purchase of the house at Point Pleasant, Ohio, in which Gen. Grant was born, with a view of having it set up in Central park. He offers $5000 for it. The owner, Michael E. Hirsch, wants $10,000.

Hibbs, the Lewiston (Idaho) postmaster who robbed the government by issuing fraudulent postal orders and then fled to British Columbia, has been surrendered by the authorities of that province and returned to Idaho for trial.

A sensational dispatch from St. Petersburg to a Paris paper says that war between England and Russia is certain directly after the election in England.

Death of an Old Pioneer.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—Henry A. Pierce died in this city today at the Union club, of which he was a member. Deceased had had a peculiarly adventurous career. He was born in Boston in 1808. In 1824 he started on the brig Griffin on a trip round the world. He arrived at Honolulu May 25, 1825, where the brig was refitted, and then started for the Hudson Bay company's possessions, that which now constitutes Oregon and British Columbia, going as far north as Alaska, where he bought a quantity of valuable furs. Returning, he arrived in San Francisco, then called Yerba Buena, in September, 1828. He remained here several months, and became one of the Hudson Bay company's agents. Afterward he returned to Honolulu, where he accumulated a large fortune. Then he made a tour of Europe. When the California gold excitement broke out he returned here with a cargo of goods, which he sold at a large profit. He returned again to Boston, where he established a line of clipper ships in the California trade. He gave $50,000 to the government during the war, to help the union cause. Gen. Grant tendered him the position of minister to Hawaii, which he accepted and held for eight years. He spoke the Hawaiian language as fluently as a native. The king of Hawaii appointed him chief of his cabinet. He accompanied the king to Washington, and aided in procuring the passage of the reciprocity treaty. Afterward he came back to San Francisco, where he has lived ever since, making the Union club his headquarters. Deceased was 77 years of age, and leaves a wife, who resides in Boston, and a daughter, the wife of ex-Mayor Clapp of Greenfield, Massachusetts.

How to Make Cucumber Pickles.

For those who care to know how to prepare pickles (cucumbers) for the market or for home use, we give what are said to be two of our good recipes as ever were practiced, and better than most that have been published. The author of them says he knows about what he talks on this subject from 11 years of practice. No. 1.—Cucumbers for immediate use may be pickled by making a brine—a saturated solution of salt, all the salt the water will take up; cover the cucumbers with it, adding water if necessary. The brine will act sufficiently in one night if poured on hot; if cold, give it 24 hours. Drain, and pack in a jar and seal with cloves, cinnamon, and a lump of alum big as a marble for two gallons of cucumbers. Pour the spiced vinegar hot on the cucumbers and add a piece of horseradish root large as a human finger, and if desired two or three green peppers. These pickles are ready in three days, and with the horseradish will keep indefinitely. If the whole root of horseradish is not at hand, use some of the grated horseradish for the table. No. 2.—For family use or the market, as occasion requires; pack the cucumbers in salt, "the coarse-fine salt" is best, covering them properly. When needed for pickling, freshen them in water three days, changing the water twice, or four days if they are desired fresh, and add cold vinegar, spice if wanted, and the piece of horseradish.
