Portland has heretofore enjoyed a large income from the manufacture of sash, doors, and blinds, made out of wood vastly inferior to the cedar of the bay. A large and increasing demand for these products is coming from Eastern Oregon, and if such articles could be shipped from the bay, there would be a great opportunity for manufacturers to locate here. These are only samples of minor projects which would become assured facts on the completion of sources of coal and lumber and the shipping facilities of this harbor are matters too well known and too patent to require discussion.

The encouragement for such a road is not to be found alone in the material we may have to export. There is no reason why the bulk of the grain of the Wil- MILLINERY STORE. lamette valley should not pass out of this harbor. Even when it is put on the cars at Portland it is moving toward San Francisco. Put onto vessels here the trip to San Francisco is materially goes a distance to Portland which would goes a distance to Portland which would HATS, FEATREES, LACES, TRIMMINGS, FLOWERS, RIBBORS, ETC., ALWAYS then has to be sent down the Columbia before it finds the ocean. The great bulk of the grain of Western Oregon will find its natural outlet on this bay, and the same is true of Eastern Oregon, as soon as a road shall be constructed over the mountains. The business men of the bay should follow the example of Roseburg; organize a board of trade; organize for an active campaign in railroad matters, and never rest until with shrick of whistle and clang of bell the last spike is driven and the locomotive comes smoking over the bills.

Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, caught a Tarter at the last session of congress when he encountered Senator Ingalis, cialty. who exposed Vooshee's record as that of a Brick Pomeroy, Vailandigham copperhead during the war, a member of the treasonable order of the Knights of the Golden Circle, who in his public PIONEER MARKETS! speeches denounced Union soldiers as "Abe Lincoin's pups" and narrowly escaped being mobbed by the enraged audience on more than one occasion. Voorhees during the war was a far worse man than Vallandigham, for Vallandigham was a man of fine intellect, of upright private life, an eminent lawyer and as absolutely incorruptible in politics as Jeff Davis. Vallandigham was a gentleman in his public and private life, and in his opposition to the war was a sincere fanatic. Voorhees, unlike Vallandigham, was never anything but a red-headed, sensational, hard-drinking, volgar Indiana demagogne, of unclean bands and impure heart. He began his political career as United States district attorney under President Buchanan in 1858. He was six times elected to the lower house and has been in the United States senate since November 12, 1877, when he was appointed to the seat left vacant by the ath of Senator Morton. sat in congress from Indiana. Hendricks and McDonald were both able and upright men in private and public life, however intensely Bourbon they may have been in politics, but Voorhees was never anything but a noisy vituperative, sensational creature, and he was therefore the last man to posture as the exponent of purity in politics in Indiana, on the floor of the senate.-[Oregonian.
