MARSHFIELD OREGON

A POMPEIIAN VICTIM.

A rather touching discovery has been made in the field once belonging to the Barbatelli family, on the north side of Pompeii and within a stone's throw from the walls—that of a poor Pompeian who fell a victim to exhaustion or suffocation while trying to escape from the doomed city. His skeleton was lying at the depth of six feet below the actual level of the field in the seam by which the bed of lapilli and pumice stone is separated from the bed of volcanic ashes above. When struck by death the wretched man was carrying, tied in a bundle by means of a cord (made of hemp), the following objects of value: An exquisite silver spoon (caesareola) weighing 350 grams, the handle of which is ornamented with shellfish and mollusks of various kinds, a soup spoon with a broken handle, a spoon for mixing hot drinks, a silver penny of Domitian and two keys. There were also, lying in a heap, 187 copper pence, the oldest dating from the time of Augustus, the latest from the time of Titus, Rodolfo Lanciani in London Atheneum.

Do Not Sympatize Your Sorrows.

To become old is not necessarily to grow old. There are young old people. Do not brood over the past. The golden age is in the future. Forget all the unhappy experience you have had. Do not sympathize your sorrows and worries. Organize a trust and keep all your miseries to yourself. Remember that there are a thousand things in life to cheer us to each one that can sadden us.—Rev. Madison C. Peters, Baptist, Brooklyn.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun"

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, soft gasses, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membrane that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharge, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of one Dollar, each package, containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLIC in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. Its no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular package "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of the Dollar. Address Dept. 8627, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2320 4th Street, Philadelphia.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Now Stinginess Spoiled the Taste of Alfonso's Melon.

Little Alfonso sat on the stone steps outside his mother's door and licked his slice of melon. It had just been given him by old Rosa for running a message, and, indeed, it was a great reward. He was just taking his first cool, juicy bite when he heard a deep sigh.

"What's that?" he cried, jumping up and looking around.

"It's only me—little Nita," said a small voice, and then he saw that a little girl was sitting at the farther end of the stone step and had her heavy basket down in front of her.

"Don't do that again, then," said Alfonso.

The child flushed. "I didn't mean to frighten you," she said. "But I am so tired and thirsty!" There was silence for a few minutes after this, while Alfonso ate his melon. At last he looked up, with a frown.

"Why do you stare so?" he asked.

"I'm not a wild lion having his dinner that you should make such eyes at me."

The little girl turned away, with a sigh, and curled her ragged apron around her fingers.

"If you think," he continued fiercely, "that I'm going to give you a bite you're very much mistaken, because I'm not."

There was no answer to this last speech, but a big tear fell on the ragged apron.

Alfonso quite choked over his next bite. Somehow it did not taste nearly half as good as the last. He peeped at Nita under his long lashes, but she was still looking another way, and then quickly, with sudden deep dimples and black eyes shining like summer stars, he held out his piece of melon.

"Have a bite, little stranger; we'll go shares—we two."—Edith Farmalee in London Pictorial.

Crowded.

Little Mary not long ago heard a phonograph for the first time in her life. She was with her mother shopping at one of the down town stores. The mother dropped a nickel in the machine, and Mary stood listening in ecstasy, with her small mouth agape and her eyes filled with wonder. The selection was one of Sousa's band pieces that stirred the little girl's heart from the start to the finish. At the conclusion of the piece Mary removed the tubes from her ears with apparent regret that the hand had stopped playing. While her mother was busy she walked around the wonderful phonograph, surveying it critically. When her mother came to her side she was yet peering about the phonograph box.

"What are you looking for, Mary?" she asked.

"I was left waiting for the band men to come out," said Mary innocently. "They must be awfully crowded in there."—Detroit Free Press.

LET US BE STARRIFIED FOR YOU.

For you, beloved, be this great gift, the gift of everlasting usefulness. God will endow you this moment inexplicably as he endows the cell germs with all the potentials and wonders of this great human life. God will so mysteriously infill thee with himself that from this moment thy life shall be a new life from what it has been, and thy friends shall know thee as a different person, the same by name, but as one transformed into God likeness. He'll even walk, earth walk, hell walk, your decision. This heart, may it beat, "Thou shalt have me, O God." If this be not this answer, then a demon shall have it. Which shall it be?—Rev. S. Edward Young, Presbyterian, Pittsburgh.

Welcoming the Cities.

Howard Paul told an amusing story of his first Italian tour, when a party of 50 were plotted about by Thomas Cook, the founder of the famous firm.

"We are awaiting for a number of open carriages to take us from the railway station to the landing tower—about the only object of interest there was to see in that archaic place. I telegraphed to the mayor of Pisa that Cook's circus from England would pass through the town and that I desired him to announce it by bulletins on the Marine and my points where the public would see the circus; that they might extend to the troupe a hearty welcome.

"Not suspecting a joke, the mayor did as I suggested, and when we arrived, entered the coaches and drove in procession through the town, the streets were thronged with spectators, who now and then sent up delicious cheers and shouted 'viva' in demonstrative fashion. Mr. Cook (I rode in his carriage) was astounded at the enthusiasm of the inhabitants and was pushed to know how they knew the English tourists were coming, as he had only communicated with the station master regarding the vehicles.

"Of course, as the author of the little comedy, I could not enlighten him, and when my American friend and I called on the mayor to thank him for his courteous attention to my requests he gently inquired where the horses were, as the inhabitants would prefer to have seen us mounted. My Yankee partner in the 'well' was equal to the occasion, and, as he spoke a little Italian, he informed the official that the horses were so numerous they would come on by a later train.

"The secret was well kept, and, as Mr. Cook and none of the tourists were linguists and as we only remained in Pisa three hours, they all departed in wonderment as to why their advent had earned such extraordinary excitement."—Argonaut.

Teaching the Indians Politeness.

A teacher in an Indian school in Michigan writes as follows: "It is very interesting to study these children, especially as we have them from four different tribes, and I should very much like to write up my impressions only that I can scarcely keep up with my work as it is. These boys have a sense of humor. In my flag drill last Friday the partners were a boy and a girl, and where the lines intersect to form a cross I taught the boys to let their partners go first, and hard trouble I had to do it too. After the exercises Isaac Crane came up to me and in his solemn way said, 'Miss B., in letting the girls pass in front of the boys you have struck at the root of an Indian national custom.' I said, 'How so, Isaac?' and he answered, 'It is the custom for the man to go first, carrying his dignity, and for the woman to follow, carrying everything else.'—Washington Star.

Losing an Arm in Battle.

Some one asked Captain J. C. D. Creighton of Missouri the other day how it felt to have an arm shot off. Captain Creighton served during the war between the states in a Confederate regiment, and his left sleeve hung empty at his side.

"It doesn't feel at all," the Confederate veteran answered. "It is chiefly in the lack of feeling that you know you have been hit. I lost my arm at Gettysburg, and when the bullet struck me I couldn't imagine at first what had happened. There wasn't the slightest pain, only a slight tickling sensation, which soon gave way to numbness. In a few minutes my arm seemed to be an enormous weight hanging to my shoulder, but it was not until after the amputation had been made that I suffered actual pain. The after effects of losing an arm are not altogether pleasant. You sort of come to miss it in time, but so far as suffering is concerned I would much less rather a bee would sting me."—Washington Post.

"WASTE NERVE"

One of the most helpful booklets ever issued is that entitled "Waste Nerve" by Dr. Sawyer of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable and to the vast mass of false teaching which prevails on this important subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practical advice, and has the two great merits of wisdom and simplicity.

It is informed by both the religious and secular press. The Chicago Advance says: "A personal perusal of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment."

The book is 12.00, by mail, postpaid.

One of the most interesting chapters—chapter 22, on Nervous and Nerve Tonic—has been printed separately as a sample chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp by the publisher, The Pacific Pub. Co., Box 2652, San Francisco.
