A Strip of Blue.
I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is the rolling fields,
The farms and the garden beds,
The trees and the meadows green,
They bring me the life of the land,
With every breeze and every dew,
And I know that the life of the land,
Is the life of the people who live,
And I know that the life of the people,
Is the life of the land.

WORLD'S RICHEST NATION.
The richest nation in the world proportionately is not Great Britain, not fat little Holland, not even the United States.
For the greatest average individual wealth we must look to the Australian commonwealth.
Last year the total value of the products of the colonies forming the Australian commonwealth amounted to fully $550,000,000, of which their pastoral industries represented $350,000,000, their agricultural $140,000,000, their mineral products fully $100,000,000 and other industries the remaining $150,000,000.
The wool alone from the 120,000,000 sheep raised in 1900 was worth $100,000,000.
The mineral resources of Australia cannot even be guessed at. In the last 48 years the country has produced gold to the value of $1,800,000,000, in the last 29 silver to the value of $150,000,000.
Diamonds are found in one district, rubies in another. There is at least one emerald mine in New South Wales and opals equal to any in the world are found in Queensland, while the pearl fisheries of the northwestern coast produce a considerable portion of the most valuable pearls of commerce.—New York World.

Too Sweet For Any Use.
A Kalamazoo drayman in trying to unload a cask of sirup made a miscalculation, and as the package struck the ground, chime on, the bottom went out and $20 worth of sweet was spread out in the sun. A fashionably dressed lady who was attracted to the spot incautiously advanced a step too far, and there was where she put her foot into it. If that had been all, no great harm might have been done, but it was not all. She grew excited and began to flounder, and presently the other foot was in. This increased her excitement, and finding that neither foot responded to her efforts at locomotion, she uttered a little scream, threw up her arms, lost her balance, toppled over backward and came to rest a full length pitched of despair, sweetness and spotted silk. She was a visitor in the place, and seldom had a stranger become so speedily and so unqualifiably stuck on a locality. It required considerable effort on the part of the bystanders, and a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together, before she was induced to retire from the spot on her hands and knees, to quote an old song, and even then she did so "irritably."—Detroit Tribune.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.
"Something New Under The Sun"

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. They passers dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. An old and experienced practitioner who has had many a case study and spiky of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharge, and curing all inflammation. Yell of the Sawbones.
The medical students of Syracuse (N. Y.) university have adopted the following college yell:
Well man, sick man, dead man—sill!
Dig 'em up, cut 'em up, what's the dirt?
Hemorrhoids, tumours, blood and gore!
Spray 'em, spray 'em!

A LITTLE NONSENSE.
How a Man Was "Bounced" in a Street Car.

The undersigned, smooth faced man who boarded a west bound car at the corner of Sixth street and the avenue, evidently a just arrived traveler, was everything immaculate in togethery, from the tips of his patent leather shoes to the crown of his silk hat. He wasn't a chappie, but a middle aged man, who looked as if he might be old maidish as to his apparel. He took a seat of about the proper area for a full sized man; but, as stated, he wasn't full sized, so that he left a vacancy of about a foot on one side of him.

At the Seventh street transfer station the first transfer to enter the car was an old fashioned black mammy, who couldn't have weighed much less than 250. She made for the vacant space beside the immaculate undersized man and sat down in it—not in any pushing, militant way, but firmly and decisively nevertheless. She didn't appear to have noticed the smooth faced, undersized man. For five or six squares he sat invisible as to all of his anatomy except his feet and head, when he suddenly sneezed. The old mammy turned about and looked at him when he sneezed, and then she made an effort to push over and give him a little more room.

"Well, bless he all's ha't, Ah dun bin sneezin' de boy!" she exclaimed loudly.

Then the people in the car snickered, and the immaculate little middle aged man grimed, too, as he struggled to a standing posture to get off at one of the hotels.—Washington Post.

There is a suggestive fact in the material world. When the sun is immediately overhead, it casts no shadow. So when Christ sits in the month in our lives, which he sends to the meridian, his rays shine his rays down vertically into our hearts and we walk in his clear, unobstructed light, and we have undimmed sunshine, and the days are full of brightness.—Rev. When Matches Were Introduced.
The Atlas, a London newspaper, published on Jan. 10, 1830, the following paragraph under the head of "Distasteful Light." "Among the different methods invented for obtaining light instantaneously certain certainty to be recorded that of Mr. Walker, chemist, Stockton-on-Tees. He supplies the purchaser with prepared matches, which are put into boxes, but are not liable to change in the atmosphere, and also with a piece of fine glass paper folded in two. Even a strong blow will not injure the matches, because of the softness of the wood underneath, nor does rubbing upon wood or any common substance produce any effect except that of spoiling the match. But when one is placed between the folds of the glass paper and suddenly drawn out it is instantly inflamed. Mr. Walker does not make them for extensive sale, but only to supply the small demand in his own neighborhood."—Newcastle (England) Chronicle.
