There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I am to the good derived from it. I was a slave chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had spoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial netted like a charm. Send me a full sized bottle."

Rev. Dr Morris Wechsler,
Rabbi of the Cong. Beth Israel.

NEW YORK, JUN. 2, 1901.

DR. TAFT BROS., MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen:—I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for more than 12 years. Having exhausted every still as well as many others, I cleaned to see your sign upon your window or 12th street, New York. I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can conscientiously recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours Respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

Gentlemen:—I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies, but they have all failed. I ran across your advertisement and started with a trial bottle. I found relief at once. I have since purchased your full-sized bottle and I am ever grateful. I have family of four children, and for six years was unable to work. I am now in the best of health and am doing business every day. This testimony you can make such use of as you like.

BEFORE AND AFTER THE BOER WAR

(S. F. Argonaut.)

One of the important movements which led to the war in South Africa was the refusal of the Transvaal Government to accede to the demands of the mine-owners that the black native labor be forced to work in the mines, no matter how much the owners saw fit to reduce their wages. These propositions came out distinctly in the inquiry held at Johannesburg in 1897. The scheme clearly outlined by representatives of the mines was that Kaffir skilled labor should be reduced as low as one shilling and sixpence per shift and ordinary labor to one shilling or less.

If the Kaffir demurred and retired to his kraal, the government should step in and by piling of music and such instruction in industrial pursuits as will aid them to become independent and useful citizens.

The institution is located at Salem, where it has beautiful grounds, convenient buildings, and suitable apparatus for the instruction of the blind. It is only a few blocks distant from the business part of the capital city, yet it is isolated from it by a stream, thus affording pupils the advantages and privileges of city life with the quiet of a country home.

The literary department affords instruction in all the branches taught in the public schools.

The musical department is well equipped with instruments and books on music. Instruction is given on the piano, organ, guitar, violin, cornet, and other instruments. All the children are taught to sing, and those who display especial talent are given individual training in vocal music.

The school is supported by appropriations made by the Legislature, and the advantages it offers are free to all the blind youths of the state and those whose sight is so defective that they cannot obtain an education in the public school. The only expense parents are required to bear is in supplying their children with comfortable clothing in such quantities as to admit of the necessary change for washing and mending, and to defray traveling expenses to and from the school. If the parents, relatives or friends of a child are not able to provide these necessary expenditures, the county courts are required by law to render such assistance.

All pupils board and have their home at the institution during the school term. Board, furnished rooms, and medical attendance are free. The conditions of admission are: 1. Insufficient vision to attend the public schools. 2. Ability to receive intellectual, physical, and moral training. 3. Willingness to conform to necessary rules and regulations. 4. Good moral character.

School opens for the reception of pupils September 18th, when all are expected to be present so as to begin the work together. The session will last for thirty-six weeks.

Ask some men to advertise and they will say that they don't believe in advertising—a paper is never read. Let one of them be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or struggling along with a jag, and if the printing office is in the garret of a seventeen story building he will climb to the top and beg the editor not to publish it.

A large advertisement written by an expert ad writer, typographically arranged by the most skillful printer and published in your town, will bring to the store many possible customers, but the ad will not sell the goods; that is the business of the store, the clerks, and the character of the merchandise.

Culpable.

John Davis was picked up on the streets of Wheeling, W. Va., pronounced dead by two doctors, sat upon by a coroner's jury, which found that death was due to heart failure, removed to the undertaker's and within ten minutes sat up and sang the Doxology. He was hustled into court and fined $5 for drunkenness. The doctors and the coroner's jury were not tried.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OREGON INSTITUTE FOR THE BLIND.

The Oregon Institute for the Blind is a school of learning established by an act of the Legislature for the special benefit of the blind youth of the state. Its aim and purpose of the school is to give facilities to the blind for obtaining an education equal to those furnished seeing children in the best public schools. Also, to provide the means of acquiring a knowledge of music and such instruction in industrial pursuits as will aid them to become independent and useful citizens.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

WITHOUT TURNING A HAIR.

A Londoner Calmly Returned Money Given to Him by Mistaken.

A gentleman of my acquaintance had a curious experience of manners and customs of modern England a few nights ago at the theater. He had taken four stalls, but at the last moment found two of his party unable to come. On his arrival at the box office he left the two spare stalls at the box office, the clerk promising to call him if he could send the note to him when they were sold. He took his place and soon afterward was gratified to see his two surplus seats occupied. The individuals who took them were attired in evening dress and bore the outward semblance of gentlemen. My friend began to look out for the money which was to come from the box office. Presently an concessionnaire entered, passed down the row of seats and addressed one of the two newcomers. My friend noticed that the concessionnaire passed something to one of the gentlemen, who put it into his pocket without a word.

A sense of uneasiness stole over my friend with regard to the 15 shillings that was due to him, and as the evening was getting on he thought he would go and make an inquiry at the box office. His suspicions were verified. The clerk had sent in the money by a concessionnaire. The concessionnaire was called from the door and on seeing my friend at once realized that he had given the money to the wrong man. He promptly went back to the theater, my friend following to see the fun. The concessionnaire went straight to the party to whom he had handed the money and said, "Excuse, you've got 15 shillings that don't belong to you." The other replied in an unconcerned way, "Oh yes," took the money out of his pocket and returned it to the concessionnaire. "He showed no trace of embarrassment," says my friend. "He handed back the money, as he had pocketed it, without murmur or half."

I always like to think the best of people, and possibly this individual, being a stranger to me, half suspected the impression that it is the practice of the proprietors of such establishments to send a concessionnaire around from time to time to distribute small bonuses among the audience.—London Truth.

ANSWER TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

If you want to be saved, live in the time. God is ready to save money, and money can only come through Christ. An intercessor petitioned to paint a portrait of Queen Victoria. The favor was granted. This meant a fortune to the man. A place was fixed and a time set. At the time the queen appeared, but the artist was not there. He was not ready. When he arrived, a message was handed to him stating that her majesty had departed and would not return. His friends, the King Eternal, have even tried to get her. The place is fixed and the time set. Now is the accepted time, and this is the place. Are you ready?—Rev. James McFarland, Presbyterian, Denver.

The Silver Living.

There's never a day so snug,
But a little cloud appears;
There's never a life so happy,
But a little trouble appears;
Yet the sun comes out the brighter,
When the morning tempest clears.

There's never a garden growing,
With roses in every spot;
There's never a heart so hardened,
But it has one tender spot;
We have only to prune the border,
To find the fragrance.

There's never a place so pleasant,
But the weather is not always;
There's never a path so crooked,
And the way is not always;
At evening we put on our coat,
And the road is not always.

There's never a sun that rises,
That is not followed by a mist;
There's never a shore where waves,
And the water is not always;
At the breakers the waves roll,
At the breakers the waves roll.

There's never a man that's honest,
But will say now and then;
There's never a heart so troubled,
That the burden seems too great;
And the steps will only be easier
To a soul that is trusting.

There's never a heart so sensitive,
But will take no care for itself;
There's never a heart so simple,
That the burden seems too great;
There's never a heart so trusting,
That is losing the human soul.

Enigma.

(Theater "A.")

Two whispered in heaven and muttered in hell,
And echo caught tattered the sound as it fell,
On the earthen floor of earth its prison rebounded,
And the ring of the moon's prison reflected.
Two more in the blinding and heard in the twilight in the spheres when sleep combed,

Twice to be found in the spheres when sleep combed,
Anxious men sleep and shadows have no shadow,
And the stars are bright and the sun is yellow.
At the breakers the waves roll, at the breakers the waves roll.

There's never a man that's honest,
But will say now and then;

There's never a heart so troubled,
That the burden seems too great;

And the steps will only be easier
To a soul that is trusting.

There's never a heart so sensitive,
But will take no care for itself;

There's never a heart so simple,
That the burden seems too great;

There's never a heart so trusting,
That is losing the human soul.

"My dear," he said, "I forgot to post that letter this morning."

"Oh, you dear!" she cried. "That was just what I wanted. Now I can blame you when that supercilious Saddle complains that I don't answer her notes."

No Noxious Drugs—No Weakening of the Nerves—A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness.

A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by persistent or continual use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time or health.
